Greenhouse Builders

About Lastingness

It makes absolutely no difference what type of construction you put up, the cost of the benches, the cost of ventilating apparatus, the cost of the heating system, the cost of glass, putty, and the cost of the glazing and painting, will be exactly the same in one house, as in the other.

These are fixed costs.

You can't fix them any other way, no matter how you figure.

This being so, it is only the logical thing to spend a few dollars more, and get a frame of everlasting lastingness, that will protect these fixed costs, and make their expenditure a permanent investment.

That is exactly what the L. & B. Iron Frame construction does.

When you are ready to talk business, say when and where, and we will be there.

Down Go Rose Prices

WE HAVE AT PRESENT

245,000 Rose Plants

in full crop

We are Rose growers especially for the shipping trade. We cut our Roses more in the bud, and grow them cooler, so that they will ship in better condition. All of our Roses are grown in one large range of glass, and are brought in from our greenhouses two and three times per day.

GUARDING GLASS FROM HAIL LOSSES

Where hail storms are frequent and insurance consequently high, screening greenhouses from the large stones is a protection cheap by comparison. How it is done in Colorado, where storms of great damage are customary spring visitors, is described for florists in the "hail belt."

IT IS exciting, but it could hardly be called a pleasure, to stand and watch hail-stones from the size of cherries up to the size of baseballs drop from the skies with an awful roar and bring with them the roof in splintered glass, which falls on the benches and aisles. Sometimes, when the storm continues for fifteen or thirty minutes, the damage to plants by the hail coming through the open roof is also serious. Many florists in sections of extra hail risk have had their enthusiasm as well as their glass smashed by hail, where they might easily have been protected with screening. One of the best florists' organizations in existence is the Florists' Hail Association, but even it does not pick up the splintered glass and repair the broken lights and plants.

Screen Prevents Severe Losses.

Somewhat over a year ago a severe hail storm cut down the outside crop and broke over two tons of glass in less than thirty minutes at the greenhouses of the Morgan Floral Co., at Fort Morgan, Colo. Part of this firm's houses are screened and part not screened. There was no loss of glass where the houses were properly screened with $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch mesh "rabbit wire."

At the time L. J. Reid, the proprietor, was on a vacation in the Rocky Mountain national park and at the very hour of the storm he was visiting C. A. Espelin, at Fort Collins, Colo., discussing the frequency of hail in different sections. Mr. Reid remarked that he had seen more than his share of hail damage and did not expect as frequent hails in the future as he had experienced in the past. It was not until three days later that he learned that while he was uttering those words the hail was hammering the glass out of his roof.

It may be of interest to other florists to know the method adopted by the Morgan Floral Co. to screen for hail. The illustration herewith shows the effect of the hail and also shows the absolute protection afforded by a $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch mesh of woven wire when used as a screen by being stretched from ridge to ridge. Only a small section of the place is shown, so as to give a close-up view, but throughout the whole place the same results were obtained by screening.

How Screen Is Placed.

On the left of the picture it will be noted there are some lath shades lying on the roof. These were being used as a temporary shade when the hail occurred, and they acted as a partial protection from hail, lessening the damage by about one-half. On the right in the foreground it will be noted that the hail broke practically every light on this, the west, side of the house, but just beyond, wherever the woven wire screen covered the glass, there was not a single pane broken. If you look carefully you can see the screen stretching from ridge to ridge over the glass.

Overcoming Objections.

The greatest objection to screening of this nature is that a damp, heavy snow will collect on it and weigh it down, thus making it necessary during a heavy storm to shake the snow through the screen with a pole. Also, if the screen is supported above the ridge with a framework of pipe, as on the ridge of the house at the right in the illustration, there is danger of this weight causing the framework to tip over, unless thoroughly braced. If the framework should give way, there might be much damage by splitting the ridge and breaking the glass. Where the ventilators are hinged at the ridge the screen can be allowed simply to rest on the ridges, of a ridge and furrow type of range, and if the screen is nailed thoroughly to the ridge of the two outside houses, then only a light framework is necessary to support the screen on the outside of the outer houses.

Where the Hail Screen Saved the Glass and Where There Was No Screen, at Fort Morgan Range.

Hail Screen Used by Florist at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Erecting Screen.

Where houses are built separately it will generally be found that the cost of supports is greater than the cost of the wire screening, and the same is almost true of the ridge and furrow type of houses where the ventilators open at the ridge, thus making it necessary to erect an iron framework two or three feet above the ridge.

Perhaps the most convenient type of houses to screen would be a range of ridge and furrow houses, each house from twenty to twenty-two feet wide and any convenient length, but with the ventilators hinged at the ridge. This would give a reasonable amount of head room for repair work, when walking in the gutters, and, further, the ridges which support the wire would be close enough to prevent too much sag in the wire. If the ridge is made from 2x6-inch beams like the older type of wooden houses, so that it extends a few inches above the house, the screen will give a better protection to the glass near the ridge on account of being farther from the glass. Of course the ventilators will be right against the screen when open, and consequently might be broken in a severe hail storm if left open, but since vents are always closed or nearly so when a severe storm threatens, there is little likelihood of a loss from this source.

Determining Size of Mesh.

The type of wire now in use by the Morgan Floral Co. is $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch mesh woven wire, made from No. 18 or No. 20 galvanized wire. This type of woven wire is frequently called rabbit wire and is made in several widths. Six-foot widths are commonly used and are tied together every eighteen inches with a loop of small wire, thus making a complete net resting on the ridges above the glass. The only objection to this method is that the mesh is so fine that it catches and holds the damp, heavy snow.

One-inch mesh would probably be more satisfactory and afford equally good protection. The company has now covered the rest of the houses with inch mesh. This, at first, would seem rather coarse, but since small hail does no damage to the glass and since the large stones will rarely come through the screen without striking at least one of the wires and thereby losing their force, it is expected that this screen will be a complete protection; also the 1-inch mesh is less expensive, lighter and less troublesome during heavy snow storms. It can be obtained from any dealer in poultry netting and is manufactured by several wire companies.

The cost of screening in this way, where no expensive supports are used, is surprisingly low as compared with the present cost of glass. The glass which was saved by screen in this one hail storm amounted to over three times the original cost of the screen, and, if the damage had been as great on the east side of the houses as it was on the west side, the saving would have been nearly twice as great. A screen of this sort is also sometimes helpful in protecting against flying shingles, slate, icicles from overhanging roofs, or baseballs.

Screens and Sunlight.

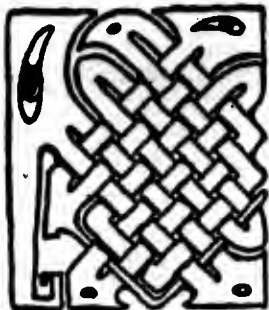

When asked if this screen does not shade the houses, Mr. Reid replied, "Before we started using this type of screen we wondered if it would have a detrimental effect by obstructing the sun in midwinter. We wrote to others in Colorado who had used this same type of screen and they replied that they were never able to notice any difference in the light or its effect where the houses were screened in this way as compared with unscreened houses. After several years' use we can say the same. The wire really obstructs little of the light and, being galvanized, it reflects some of the light. Also by preventing hail breakage we are able to keep the glass tighter, and with less laps, which helps overcome any little shade the wire may throw. Anyhow, we have lots of sunshine in Colorado."

There are many other methods of screening. Some prefer to make frames on which to tack their screen, so that it can be removed each fall and replaced each spring. These, however, are always more or less in the way, both when on the ground and when on the roof, and, should a hail occur early in the spring during cold weather, there is a chance that the screen might not yet have been replaced on the roof and thereby one might not only have a hail loss, but also frost damage following it. Some localities have experienced hail just at Easter time, followed by a freeze. Also some may prefer to screen practically as the Morgan Floral Co. is doing, but to roll the whole screen up for ever winter, perhaps letting it lie in a roll in one of the gutters. In this way damage by heavy snow is avoided, but there is the extra labor to be considered each year, and also there is still the possibility of a storm when the screen is not over the glass.

The question whether or not to screen one's glass depends on the hail frequency of the locality. If the locality has been visited frequently by hail, similar occurrences may be expected in the future, and surely persons living in such localities should consider the advisability of screening.

Springfield, Mass.—The florists' group of the local chamber of commerce have issued a formal declaration of war upon the "curbstone florist." At a recent meeting of the chamber, the florists joined their voices with those of other trades that are bothered with these non-rent-payers, in a protest that it is hoped will result in their elimination.

HANDLING COMPLAINTS BY MAIL.

Handling a dissatisfied customer is not easy. It is harder by mail than in person. If a customer is face to face with him, the florist can state his side of the case easily and meet the facts presented as adroitly as is possible. Not so by letter. But complaints by mail in this trade might be much more easily handled than they are if florists had the skill that has come to others as the result of long practice. Here are the most important points, according to a man so skilled, in handling dissatisfied customers by correspondence. It will pay all florists to give them consideration. They are:

Avoid hostility.

Avoid delays; if you cannot reply fully immediately, write anyway and promise information later.

Give your decision in the first words of the letter; don't hold it to the last. Be hearty in everything, not grudging.

Be just to yourself as well as to your customer.

Don't be merely liberal. Stand up for your goods. Don't let customers get a low idea of your estimate of your goods by being too liberal in replacing. And finally, be human.

TAKING STIR OUT OF EASTER.

That the holiday hurry is not a necessary part of Easter business was demonstrated this year at the retail store of the Miller Floral Co., Salt Lake City. On the day before Easter the store was filled to overflowing with customers, but there was not the least confusion in any department.

Mr. Miller decided last Easter, when he found it necessary for his store crew to work all night to fill orders, that something should be done. It was not only the working all night that bothered him, but the fact that when the time came to fill the orders, many items had been sold a half dozen times. This was especially true of cut flowers. The salesmen had been selling flowers from the same vase all day, with the consequence that when it came to filling the orders a great many substitutions were necessary.

The store March 26 showed that his efforts had surely been rewarded. Two packing and wrapping tables had been installed, large enough to accommodate four wrappers. As soon as a customer had made a purchase, the salesman took the flowers or plant, together with invoice and card, to one of the wrappers. The goods were immediately packed in the presence of the purchaser. If the order was to be delivered that day, the packer took the package to the route man as soon as it was packed. The man in charge of the delivery divided the city into four sections and used one truck for each section. As soon as he received the package from the wrapper he routed it and placed it in one of the four stalls provided. As soon as a driver came in from a trip he found a load waiting. Without the least confusion he was able to reload his wagon and start off again. If the order was not to be delivered until the following day the packer iced it and placed it in a large storage icebox built for the purpose. It was left in this icebox until early the next morning, when it was delivered.

Prices of everything in the store were in plain sight of the buyer. Special tags were made for the cut flower vases. On these tags were the name, the grade and the price of each item. Pot plant labels were printed and each pot contained a tag giving the price.

The whole system worked like a well oiled machine. When 10 p. m. came the doors were locked and everybody was ready to go home.

Mr. Miller has been highly complimented on his new system. He feels well repaid for the effort he put forth to perfect it.

DENVER'S NEW STORE.

The Rockmont Opens.

Two of Denver's progressive young men, long well known to the florists of the country, Herbert A. Clausen and Carl L. Gross, recently formed a partnership, incorporating under the distinctive title, "The Rockmont for Flowers."

Mr. Clausen was for many years a member of the firm conducting the America Flower Shop, of Denver, while

Mr. Gross was with the Alpha Floral Co., of Denver, for some fifteen years.

The location selected for the new store is in the Ideal building, at 821 Seventeenth street. It is the only florists' store on this street.

The store has been entirely rearranged and decorated, at considerable expense, and presents a most attractive sight. The street frontage is seventeen feet, with one large display window, thirteen feet wide, and on the alley side another window, fifteen feet wide. The height is about twenty feet, affording splendid space for display.

Interior Features.

As one steps inside the store, he is pleased by the soft, restful color. The walls are finished in a beautiful French gray, tiffany, with a small border of green, purple and blue in water colors. The ceiling has a white background, with panels of Moorish design done in water colors.

On the right of the store, about half-way down, is a beautiful display icebox, with an electric drop light, which can be turned on and off from both the store and the workroom at the rear of the store proper.

In the rear of the store is a large circular balcony, with large posts, which can be used for the display of large ferns and palms. This balcony is reached by an iron stairway, done in old copper, and in the rear of it is the office and rest rooms.

In the store on the left, across from the icebox, is a beautiful corsage table, with a small ribbon case, where fancy ribbons and corsage shields are displayed. In the design room, in the rear of the store, is a large flat work table and wrapping table. Back of the design room is another large display room and workroom, with mahogany fixtures and marble floor, where the stock is received and baskets displayed. This room in itself is a noteworthy part of the store. The ventilation is perfect, with windows on three sides of the store.

Thorough Preparations.

To be ready for the opening of the store, March 23, a large force of men worked late into the night of March 22, being still at work when the theater crowds were going home, but on the morning of the opening day, when men walked by on their way to their places of business, they were greeted by the beautiful sight presented by the display windows.

At 10:30 a. m., when the doors were opened, a long line formed, waiting to gain entrance, and from this hour until late in the evening the store was crowded with visitors. A large quarter-page advertisement was run in the two evening papers March 22, and also in the morning papers March 23. In addition, some 2,000 announcements, gotten up in elaborate style, with cover of Spanish leather, had been distributed throughout the city.

Successful Start.

Three clerks were kept busy distributing roses to the ladies. The supply of roses was exhausted by 2 o'clock, and next came carnations and jonquils, some 4,000 flowers having been handed out when the supply of these ran out.

toward the goal of all florists, "Better stores, better service and the education of the public to 'Say It with Flowers.'"

SOLDIERS AND FLOWERS.

A New Rehabilitation Plan.

Florists all over the country are learning that they can be of much help in the widespread movement to provide means of livelihood to the many men who came out of the war disabled in such a way that they were unable to continue at the trade which they pursued before the war.

In The Review for November 25, 1920, there was an article telling of the work among these disabled men that the Federal Board of Vocational Education, Division of Rehabilitation, is doing. The article also showed how growers and nurserymen could use these men. Since that time a number of these men have been placed in nurseries and greenhouses in various parts of the country.

Houston Heard From.

Now comes the news from Houston, Tex., telling of the latest example of this work among the florists. Its florists believe Houston can become one of the largest shippers of flowers in the country, that Houston can grow flowers that are now being shipped in from other states and in that way can give to these ex-service men the means of obtaining a livelihood.

A committee of business men and women have interested themselves in erecting an ex-service men's home and sanitarium, with the added feature of a nursery farm in connection. Some of Houston's florists have interested them-hospital features, clubrooms and other necessary places.

According to reliable information, Houston florists buying cut flowers from outside points send more than $100,000 out of that city annually and the state of Texas sends more than $1,000,000 out of the state annually for the purchase of flowers, palms and bulbs.

The plan is to erect this home for shell-shocked soldiers, sailors and marines, giving them a chance to become self-sustaining men, with the added chance of keeping their minds occupied and of keeping out in the open, where, according to doctors, they will have their best chance to get well. These men are now stationed in hospitals where the government is providing them with medical care and food only, with nothing for them to do in order to keep their minds off themselves. Viewed from a purely philanthropic standpoint, these are the men who have given their best in life for their country and now it is the people's chance to show that their sacrifice is appreciated.

Expected to Expand.

The establishment will be strictly a business affair, with the bulk of the profits going for salaries to the men and the upkeep of the place and the balance into the treasury to be paid back to the original donors or to improve the place and build further or do whatever the board of supervisors determines. This board will be made up of representative citizens of Houston.

A quiet campaign will be waged to start the first unit and put the place on a practicable basis.

GROWING FLOWERING ANNUALS.

For natural beauty and pleasing color effects it is hard to beat some of the old-fashioned flower gardens made up of annual plants. Nowadays temporary plantings are not relied upon when conditions will warrant the use of more permanent material, such as shrubs and perennials. Annual flowering plants, however, should certainly be encouraged where planting for winter as well as summer effect is not possible, says Farmers' Bulletin 1171, "Growing Annual Flowering Plants," recently published by the United States Department of Agriculture. The bulletin outlines different ways of utilizing annuals, tells how they should be started and grown, and describes many of the common varieties. It is a practical guide for the cultivation of such plants, and may be found useful by florists who do home planting or who are interested in annuals for cut flowers.

Copies of the bulletin can be obtained free on application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

MAUFF'S ANNIVERSARY.

This is the fortieth year that the Mauff Floral Co., Denver, Colo., has been in existence. As one of its anniversary celebrations, an attractive booklet is being sent out to the customers and friends of the company. The booklet contains a brief history of the company and its policy. It is well illustrated with views of the company's store and greenhouses and the portrait of Manager A. E. Mauff. The booklet is arranged in an appealing form and probably will be kept as a remembrance by many friends of the company.

New Store of the Rockmont for Flowers as Seen Through Window.

It is estimated that between 6,000 and 7,000 people visited the store between 10:30 a. m. and 6 p. m. During the afternoon music was rendered by an orchestra concealed behind a bank of palms on the balcony.

The members of the firm, Herbert A. Clausen and Carl L. Gross, were congratulated on their careful attention to the arrangement of all the details of this beautiful store, as another step selves in the venture and are backing it both financially and morally. They are giving their expert advice and obtaining facts and figures for the committee to use in their drive for a fund of $70,000 to buy the land and erect a home with all club and home features.

Plans Have Been Drawn.

Plans for the buildings have already been drawn and include greenhouses,

PROFITABLE ROSES

ROSES UNDER GLASS.

In Early Days.

My first experience in growing roses under glass began about twenty years ago. In the particular district where I was, American Beauty reigned supreme. Any bench that had head room enough grew Beauties and nothing else. Bride and Bridesmaid were grown on the side benches, with occasionally a few Perle des Jardins. Meteor for red had a house to itself, as to do it well required a high temperature.

At that time a man roomed in the greenhouse shed and boarded in a boarding house on place, being paid $10 to $18 a month, according to his ability. It was only an exceptional man that received $20 a month. On the smaller places he had to get up at 4 o'clock and help pack and take his turn at firing. To get a position at the better establishments he either had to have a friend or get his name on a waiting list.

The Transition.

Beauty in those days was a different rose from today. It was replanted with young stock annually and produced readily three times the flowers it does today and of better quality. It was a grand rose, but its day is over.

When Killarney first came nobody had a good word for it, but when its possibilities under proper culture were demonstrated Killarney and its sports were supreme. On the place where I was at that time we had 4,000 Killarney one year; the next year we had 60,000 of this family. We still have Double White Killarney, which, well grown, is still the rose par excellence in its color.

In red, meanwhile, we had General MacArthur, which, while a fine rose, was too single and opened too quickly. Liberty was not dependable enough. Then came Richmond, which for years had the field to itself. Following that came Milady, which with some growers is still the only red, a beautiful rose when well done. Hoosier Beauty would still be extensively grown were it not for Hadley, which when well grown is without a peer in its class. I remember, in March, 1917, at the show held in Philadelphia, a vase of Hadley with 7-foot stems, and flowers in proportion. I think it was the finest vase of roses I have yet seen.

In yellow we had Melody and Lady Hillingdon; the latter when well grown was a real yellow. Then came Sunburst and Mrs. Aaron Ward, which we still have with us, and both are money-makers for those who do them well. Ward as a corsage rose is in a class by itself.

Progress in Pinks.

In pink we had Maryland, which with some growers proved extremely popular, as, properly handled, it was a great producer. While Radianee was an easy doer, the flower was not liked. Shawyer had brief popularity. Antoine Rivoire, or Taft, as a fancy rose was a beautiful flower. Lady Alice Stanley was well liked by some and grown extensively. Jonkheer J. L. Mock had its brief run. Then came Mrs. Chas. Russell, which, well grown, was the finest pink rose of its day and is still popular. Then Ophelia gave us a class of pink which was an eye-opener. I have seen the flowers of this rose in its different stages sold as yellow, pink and, when open, white. It certainly is in a class of its own, and, with its sports and seedlings, will be with us for many years to come. Seedling of Ophelia and Shawyer, came Columbia, the finest rose of its color to date, a free grower, yet a good commercial rose in summer or winter, a money-maker at all times. A house of this rose in crop, well grown, is a sight to be long remembered.

Next came Premier, which is taking the place long held by American Beauty and, as I recall the vases of it at the unless for some reason the introducer advises otherwise, as under some conditions grafted and own-root do equally well, while under others either may prove superior. This should be determined by each grower for himself. Usually grafted plants will do equally well the first year, but be much better as they get older. I have seen them 6 and 7 years old and still quite profitable. In buying plants a grower should be particular where he buys, so as not to bring into his place some disease, which it will take time and money to eradicate. Doing his own propagating, he should avoid weak and sickly plants. The best bench on the place is none too good for young stock. Grafted stock, unless grown on a large scale, can usually be bought cheaper and better than the grower can propagate it, as the average grower has not the special facilities required for this work.

Choosing Varieties.

As to varieties the grower must be guided by the market to which he ships, as popular taste varies. Every grower should keep records of the number of each variety he grows and also the daily cut and money value of them. By this means he can, at the end of the year, tell which variety is paying him, so that he can increase or decrease his plantings accordingly. I cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of doing this. Unless a grower does this, he is only guessing at his results.

A grower must adapt himself to his own local condition of soil and greenhouses. Many establishments have houses in which roses cannot be grown profitably in the winter. If these are used for summer roses and rested in the winter months, they will be found to be profitable indeed if judgment is used in selecting the varieties grown.

Ventilation.

Roses vary so as to temperature requirements that only general rules can be given as to temperature. Sudden changes should be avoided. Night temperatures of 58 to 60 degrees, with no ventilation, suit the general run of roses; with ventilation on, 62 to 68 degrees, varying to correspond with the amount of ventilation used. On days when you have watered heavily or syringed, keep a little on the warm side. On days when the houses are on the dry side, they are better a little cooler.

Temperature for cloudy days should be 66 to 70 degrees, sunny days 72 to 78 degrees, varying between these as houses are wet or dry, or depending on outside weather conditions.

In watering, the grower must be guided chiefly by the condition of his plants, also by his soil, but as a general rule, if the plants are full of growth and healthy, in a soil where the drainage is good, more harm is usually done by not enough water than too much.

Preventing Diseases.

The common diseases of roses can best be prevented by proper culture, assisted, in case of black spot, by spray-

More than a quarter of a century of experience with roses and a reputation for producing some of the best stock that is received on the New York market lend more than ordinary strength to the utterances of Anthony Ruzicka on the subject of his "queen of flowers." The suggestions he gives in this article are of great value to those less familiar with roses and may be read with profit by all those who grow the florists' staple.

New York show, is well named, for it certainly is Premier in its color class.

Among the newer roses we have Dunlop, Pilgrim, Crusader and Butterfly. Of these only Butterfly has made a hit in New York. It is extremely popular. The others are still on trial. We have other candidates for favor coming this year, which, if needed, will find their place or be discarded, as they must prove profitable as well as popular.

Soil for Roses.

Soil for roses may be made from a good sod taken from any soil that will grow a good corn crop, laid in piles, with from one-fourth to one-third good cow manure, in alternate layers in the fall. A lighter soil requires less manure than a heavier soil. The compost should be thoroughly chopped down and mixed before filling the benches. At this time apply to a bench 4x150 feet thirty pounds of either 16-per cent acid phosphate or finely ground bone meal. Both are good and price usually governs as to which is used. The bench is then ready for planting.

Young Plants.

Every grower should try both grafted and own-root plants of each novelty, ing, or in the case of mildew by painting the steam pipes with sulphur. Both are preventives. Attacks of aphids or green fly any of the nicotine papers, properly used, will control. Thrips is best controlled by spraying the tops of the plants with brown sugar and Paris green in solution. In cases of crown gall or canker, burn the stock infected as soon as possible, and do not use the soil again, unless first sterilized, as it also is infected. Meanwhile, quarantine the house that has it. Club root, or nematodes, where prevalent, can be prevented by sterilizing the soil, or by growing grafted plants, or by not using upland soil but only lowland soil, which is under water for several weeks each year, as this will be found free of it.

The address of Anthony Ruzicka, of Madison, N. J., on "The Rose, Queen of Flowers, under Glass," given before the Philadelphia Florists' Club April 5.

Feeding the Plants.

Where it can be had, manure water is one of the best methods of feeding, as plants can actually be given just what food they need. Only one precaution is to be observed. Never water dry plants with it. Water these first with clear water.

Let each grower take a bench 150 feet long, divided into six equal parts, and use a different mixture of fertilizer on each part, keeping an accurate record of production. He will then in a year or two acquire a practical knowledge of his soil requirements as to fertilizer, which he can get in no other way than by trying out all the standard commercial fertilizers, as often a high-priced material, when judged by results, is much the cheapest.

An Efficient Range.

A modern icebox is a necessary adjunct to a rose range, as there is no use in growing good stock if you cannot take proper care of it afterwards. In tion companies have experts who will be glad to call and suggest such changes as are needed.

It seems a pity that so many fine ranges of glass are allowed to go to rack and ruin for want of painting and needed repairs. You can grow good roses in a tumble-down house, but the chances are much against you and the cost is prohibitive. On the other hand, I have houses that are 26 years old, iron-frame houses that are practically as good today as when built, and ready for another twenty-six. It has been my observation in traveling about that where houses are neglected and kept slovenly, the stock usually matches, but in a well kept place stock is usually in keeping with the surroundings.

In conclusion, the modern rose range, with its big iron-framers, efficient heating system and economical working conditions, has a big advantage over the old-fashioned range, where conditions are usually the reverse. So it behooves a grower who would keep up to date and meet this competition, to remodel his plant and bring it in line with modern conditions. He can get some good ideas by visiting some of these modern places and by consulting the trouble men of the greenhouse building concerns.

By all means, give our young men a thorough commercial education. This, combined with the practical knowledge gained by experience, will equip them for the keener competition which they will have to face.

TALKING OVER ADVERTISING.

St. Louis is nothing if not a live center of advertising florists. The first co-operative campaign after Milwaukee's was undertaken in St. Louis. And it is one of the most successful, both in rally talking over this subject with J. J. Beneke, secretary of the local publicity committee. They agreed that the Easter advertising of the local campaign aided greatly in making this Easter one of the best the city has had. W. H. Harvey, the official photographer for Grimm & Gorly, caught them in the act and "shot" them, as you may see on this page.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The week following Easter was, as usual, a dull one in the cut flower market. Despite the Easter cut of everything there was, all the week, a rather heavy supply of flowers, with a light demand. Those of the public who were supplied with Easter-flowering plants found them sufficient for the week; consequently it was hard to move post-Easter arrivals of cut flowers. This condition, of course, sent prices downward, and a recovery has not yet been possible.

Bulbous stock is much lighter in supply, and in some items is scarce. April 2 there were not enough narcissi to meet even the moderate demand, and there was much scouting around to pick up jonquils and daffodils to fill orders for spring flowers. Paper White narcissi seem to have passed even this early in the season. In tulips Couronne d'Or overtop the supply, and there are rather more of them than the market can absorb. April 2 the supply of all kinds of flowers was greatly in excess of the demand, and to prevent a carry-over to Monday concessions in prices were common to effect a clean-up.

Large quantities of forsythia boughs are coming in, and they are taken freely for purposes of store and window decoration.

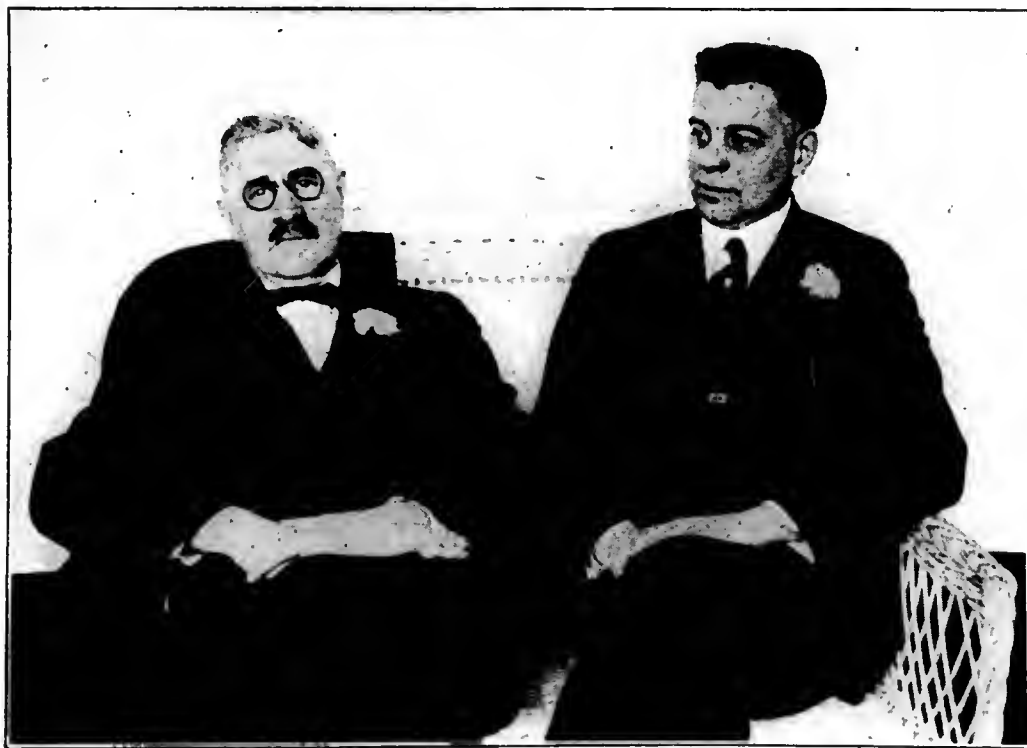

Roses are plentiful and their movement is slow. While American Beauty is not abundant, sales drag and specials have toppled to a range of $25 to $40 per hundred. Hybrid teas are in heavy supply and prices are down to the lowest range touched for some time. Bright weather has brought on an immense crop, difficult to handle with profit to the growers. The new rose, Mme. Butterfly, is making many friends, and from its regular coloring bids fair to oust the parent, Ophelia, from its position as the leading light pink variety.

Carnations are plentiful, but with a heavy supply of roses in the market prices are affected. For some days the top price was $4 per hundred, with Lad-die and selected Mrs. C. W. Ward bringing the usual advances.

Cattleyas continue scarce, but plentiful enough for the demand, which is small. Arrivals are almost wholly of Mossiae and Schroederæ, the former the largest and best. Spray orchids are rather more plentiful, and meet with a slow movement. Gardenias are in excess of the demand, and clearances are difficult even with concessions in price.

Easter lilies are in heavy supply and, the demand for them for funeral work being light, much stock is left over day by day. Lilies of the valley are plentiful and meet with slow sales.

Sweet peas are overabundant and the disposition of them profitably seems to be a daily problem. Some of the growers are going off crop with them, judging from the amount of haulm cut to lengthen the sprays. Violets are showing the effect of warm weather and prices are not really quotable.

There is an abundance of miscellaneous flowers, which move fairly well when prices permit their use for window decoration. Snapdragons are in unusually heavy supply and are hard to clear. Yellow and white daisies, calendulas, some fine delphiniums, French marigolds, stocks, gladioli, pansies, wallflowers, mignonette, iris in variety, myosotis, camellias, alyssum, cornflowers, freesias and English daisies about make up the list of available flowers. Southern-grown narcissi are coming in, of fairly good quality.

Various Notes.

The heavy frosts of Tuesday and Wednesday nights, March 29 and 30, did an immense amount of damage to fruits and other outside material, owing to the midsummer weather experienced for several days preceding. In New Jersey on the latter night the thermometer went down to 24 degrees, while the day shade temperature of March 28 was over 80 degrees.

Temperatures do not seem to have affected the tulip beds in City Hall square, which are now bursting into bloom.

It is understood that the greenhouses on the estate of Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., are being converted for commercial purposes, carnations chiefly to be grown. This will be sad news for the many who have appreciated the numerous excellent exhibits from these greenhouses seen at our flower shows, which, of course, under the new arrangement will be no longer possible. This establishment alone staged exhibits on fifty-eight entries at the recent international flower show.

Late reports show that the Easter business was exceptionally good all around. Plants cleaned up well, and cut flowers met a better demand than usual. Not only in New York city, but in the surrounding towns a lively demand for plants and flowers was experienced. Some of the timid ones who were pessimistic because they did not have a book full of orders a week ahead of the day and consequently cut down their plant orders are now bemoaning a lost opportunity to double the business they actually did. Pot lilies were in abnormal demand, and the supply was insufficient. Some of the bench lily growers dug up plants in an effort to meet some of the shortage.

Thomas Roland, president of the S. A. F., was a visitor April 1 and made a lengthy call upon Secretary Young at administration headquarters.

The usual display of magnolia bloom in suburban gardens will be missed this year, the frosts having entirely killed the expanding blooms of the Soulangiana variety, the first to bloom. Lennei, which blooms later, was little harmed, but trees of this variety hereabouts are not numerous.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held at the Engineering Societies' building, Monday evening, April 11. Important business is to be transacted, and a report on the recent flower show is to be presented.
J. H. P.

Henry S. de Forest, who for several years was connected with Hitchings & Co. and the Pierson U-Bar Co., is now with the William H. Lutton Co.

Miss Flora Lins and her methods of building trade at her store, at 126 East Forty-first street, were the subject of an illustrated article in the New York Telegram of March 28.

An opportunity will be given, in the latter part of May, to visit and inspect the largest collection of Darwin and breeder tulips ever brought together in this country. Through coöperation with the General Bulb Growers' Society, at Haarlem, Holland, a collection of over 17,500 tulips, the gift of that organization, was planted last fall in the New York Horticultural Gardens, located just opposite Fordham hospital on the southern boulevard. Another collection at the same place, the gift of John Scheepers, Inc., contains over 5,400 bulbs. In the two collections there are about 23,000 bulbs and 241 kinds. Another collection, more comprehensive in the types represented, is located in the beds in the court of conservatory range 1. Here there are over 9,800 bulbs in the seven beds and 167 kinds. The combined display represents a total of over 32,800 bulbs and, allowing for duplication, 325 kinds.

IRISES IN CALIFORNIA.

In the accompanying illustration are shown a field of Spanish iris and one of Iris tingitana grown for bulbs by the H. A. Hyde Co., Watsonville, Cal. H. A. Hyde has planted over one-third of a million bulbs of this stock and reports that the plants are coming along in fine style. The iris looms more and more important each year as a cut flower and many growers may be interested in Mr. Hyde's venture.

The iris finds a suitable environment more readily, perhaps, in California than in most other parts of the country. Coming, as most of the varieties of this genus originally did, from countries bordering on the Mediterranean, the iris requires a climate that is warm and dry in summer.

Planted out in the early fall, the Spanish irises make an early start and produce leaves which persist throughout the winter and are seldom injured in that part of the country. In May and June the blooms appear and are distinctively bright and colorful. This particular type of iris, according to some authorities, does best in ground inclining to moisture, although the stems will rot if subjected to stagnant water. The nature of the soil does not seem to affect the growth, as plants in heavy soil do as well as those in light soil.

New Philadelphia, O.—The Endres Floral Co. has purchased an 86-acre farm near Blicktown, and plans to expand its business, giving special attention to roses.

TATE'S TIPS

RESULTS OF ADVERTISING.

All Industries Watch Florists.

There is an old saying, "Blow your own horn, or no one will blow it for you." Recent issues of The Review have called attention to the fact that the florists have started other industries to talking about them, first, the Confectioners' Journal, then the New York Garment News. These are only two instances; there are many similar ones. This is absolutely free advertising of the best kind. The question the writer wants to ask is, what is the reason for these two publications talking about our industry? We all know that the Confectioners' Journal would hardly go out of its way to give its trade's closest competitors the advantage of free advertising. The florist has been blowing his own horn in the use of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." He has been blowing it so hard that it is beginning to attract the attention of others, and is not this just the primary motive in advertising? It was only recently that a moving picture film came to a certain city for a week's engagement. It opened Monday evening; Wednesday evening a prominent clergyman went to see it, and during the second act he left the house in disgust. The clergyman then went to the trouble of calling up the leading newspaper of the city and registering a protest. This paper, before printing his protest, called up the manager of the theater, informed him of the report given regarding the film and the source from which it had been received, and asked if he had any comments he would like to add. The manager replied that he had none, but asked the paper to give the minister's protest as much space and as prominent a position as possible. This the newspaper did. What was the result of this protest? Instead of running one week, the house turned people away for six weeks, with two shows a day. This was just a case of getting other people talking about you. Had that show depended upon its own advertising it would not have gone over its one week's engagement.

Free Advertising Appreciated.

The point I wish to emphasize is that while the florist has been blowing his own horn, it looks to the writer as though he was getting short of wind. The writer has seen "Say It with Flowers" used as much outside the trade as he has seen it in florists' paid advertisements. It has been frequently employed by cartoonists, and in the humorous parts of the daily papers.

This is all the best sort of publicity. It would be impossible to pay these men for using the slogan in their cartoons. Then, did you ever stop to think that a thing must have a prominent place in the mind of the public before such persons will use it? With the comparatively small amount of publicity this slogan has had, it is known throughout the world.

Only recently I was talking with a live publicity man, who said that if some private corporation had such a slogan and had it copyrighted, it would be on every telegraph pole from New York to San Francisco. Yet this valuable asset of ours is lying almost idle.

Is the Business Growing Too Fast?

In a conversation with a florist not long ago, we were talking about advertising. This florist said he could see no use in paying out money for advertising when the florists all over the country could at that time hardly supply the demand. Now, if this industry has reached its limit, then this is certainly a good argument. But this is not the case; the florists' business is still in its infancy. We need only look at its growth during the last twenty-five years; during the last five of them its growth has been almost as much as during the other twenty. If this is not due to publicity, then what has caused it? But our industry is going to grow much larger than it is today; it has been demonstrated time and again that flowers have now reached a place in the lives of the American people where they are a necessity. We need only go back a few years to the time of the war, when people were economizing in every conceivable thing. They were wearing clothing until it was threadbare. Why, we were even short on rations because of high prices! Yet during that period the florists were doing more business than they had ever done before.

Now, let us be honest with ourselves. There is a scriptural quotation which says, "Know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Let us look for a moment at the cause of the shortage of stock and consequent high prices that have been occurring from time to time of late. Is the business outgrowing those who are now engaged in it? Are we afraid to go out and tell the public we have the greatest commodity on earth, for fear if we do the public will demand it and we shall not be able to supply it? Let us remember that the eyes of the commercial world are upon our industry. The small amount of advertising we have already done is responsible for this. If we cannot meet this demand that has been created, then other interests are going to walk in and give the public what they want. The business world is awake to the fact that florists have a good proposition.

We have just been through an Easter season; more flowers were sold this year than ever before. I found stores closed to the public as early as 2 o'clock the Saturday afternoon preceding Easter. I am not condemning these stores for closing, for what else were they to do? Plants were all sold and cut flowers all ordered. I heard people begging for stock for corsage work, when there was none to be had. A further point I wish to make is, the growers knew Easter was coming and that there would be a big demand, but from appearances the demand went beyond their expectations, or else "someone was asleep at the switch." COOMBS' RISE

WHAT FIFTY YEARS WILL DO.

The Growth of the Coombs.

No doubt, florists who plan to attend the convention of the American Carnation Society at Hartford, Conn., next January, will be interested to know more of the famous firm with which the vice-president of the society, N. C. Osborn, is connected. The firm of Coombs the Florist is one of the largest and best known in New England. There are two stores at Hartford conducted under the name of Coombs, Leading Florist, and one, opened in November, 1920, at New Haven, called Coombs' Flower Shop. The New Haven Register of March 25 contained an interesting history of the Coombs growth and also showed portraits of John and Joseph F. Coombs.

The Coombs business was established in Hartford more than fifty years ago by John Coombs with one small greenhouse on Benton street, from which Mr. Coombs did all his retailing until about twenty years later, when he opened his first store, at Main and Grove streets. His love for his flowers and his work soon became noted and in ten years the business had so outgrown the quarters that a larger store had to be secured. This was opened in the Universalist building, which gave way for the erection of the Travelers' block in 1912, necessitating the removal of the Coombs establishment to the Hartford Trust Co. building. Even larger quarters were finally located at 741 Main street, the present situation. That didn't meet requirements; so, in 1915, a second store was opened in the Hotel Garde building at 364 Asylum street under the management of V. H. Olmstead, who has been with the Coombs organization for thirty years. The second store was remodeled in 1919 and now presents one of the handsomest establishments in the state.

Of course the little greenhouse didn't keep up with the demands of the stores and an entirely new range was erected on South street and is one of the best equipped and most up-to-date in the country. It was especially designed for the growing of roses, carnations and sweet peas, and placed under the direction of N. C. Osborn. At present about 10,000 roses and 20,000 carnations are grown annually in these greenhouses. The original Benton street range is still under the direction of the founder, John Coombs, who is yet active in his work and takes as much pleasure in his blooms as he did the day he started.

Coombs has won national recognition for the quality of the carnations grown. The first exhibit at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society exhibition in Boston won first prize. In January of this year at the exhibition of the American Carnation Society, at Washington, D. C., four first prizes and one second prize were awarded the Coombs displays.

The latest development of the Coombs business was the opening of Coombs Flower Shop at 978 Chapel street, New Haven, Conn. The opening was last November, when 10,000 visitors viewed the attractive store and display. More than 6,000 chrysanthemums were given away to the fortunate early callers. Music added to the pleasure of the occasion. The Coombs Flower Shop at New Haven is under the management of Mrs. Sara Coombs Martin, who was associated with the Coombs Hartford stores for fifteen years before her marriage and retirement four years ago, when she came to New Haven. In four months she has developed a large business.

Harry Barnett, for seventeen years a successful grower and retailer on Kimberly avenue, New Haven, Conn., is now with the Coombs Flower Shop. He dropped business cares a year ago because of illness and, now that his health is regained, he will be associated with the Coombs store.

ROLANDS AND ROSES.

Thomas Roland is known all over the country as one of the ablest growers in the trade, but more conspicuously as the president of the Society of American Florists. The pot plants from his greenhouses, at Nahant, Mass., are known all over New England and in some other states as well, not to mention those places to which their fame has traveled via visitors returning from Boston's big shows. What may be unknown to those who are not, comparatively speaking, neighbors of Mr. Roland's is the lady of the dimple in the illustration on this page. She is Flora Roland. She made her appearance in the Roland family in 1910, during the last national rose show in Boston. Now, she, as well as her father, are taking much interest in the rose exhibition in Boston this week, in which the American Rose Society is co-operating with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Inasmuch as Mr. Roland is a director of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and a member of the committee on commercial interests of the American Rose Society, his connection with the show at Boston this week is close.

THE NEW ROSE ANNUAL.

["The American Rose Annual: the 1921 Year-book of Rose Progress," edited for the American Rose Society by J. Horace McFarland. Contains 192 pages of text, besides seventeen pages of fine half-tone illustrations and one colored plate. Supplied to all members of the society whose dues are paid for the current year. To secure additional copies or further information, address the secretary, John C. Wister, 606 Finance Building, Philadelphia, Pa.]

The American Rose Annual is now generally recognized as being pretty nearly the ideal book for its purpose. One of its chief merits—a merit not always fully appreciated—is the fact that it is about equally interesting and valuable to both classes of rosarians, professional and amateur. Since the membership of the American Rose Society consists of both commercial and private growers, it is eminently proper that the subject matter of the society's annual should be, as it is, of such a nature as to meet the wishes of both groups of readers. It seems perfectly clear that the contents of the book, like the membership of the society, should be partly commercial in character and partly amateur—no, not amateurish.

But a point that may not be so clearly understood by everyone is this, that the book, so planned, not only treats both bodies of its readers, professional and nonprofessional growers, with absolute impartiality; it also renders to all of them a service that otherwise might be impossible. Articles written by well informed amateurs, and intended primarily for the perusal of amateurs, frequently supply a peculiarly helpful sort of enlightenment for trade growers. And amateurs may often derive the same unique sort of benefit from a study of commercial growers' views. Thus a judiciously arranged book, like this annual, serves as a means of bringing the amateur and the professional grower into closer acquaintance, to the undoubted advantage of both.

The present issue of the annual, the sixth in the series, fully maintains the high standard established by its predecessors. The editor of the book, in drawing attention to some of its most noteworthy features, mentions particularly its description of the world's new roses, the new-rose reviews by E. G. Hill and Courtney Page and the several discourses on the handling of commercial roses, written by "leaders in that most important pursuit." Among these commercial leaders who contributed articles to the book are Robert Pyle, S. S. Pennock, Wallace R. Pierson, Charles H. Totty, W. J. Keimel, Thomas Roland and—as already stated—E. G. Hill.

Editor McFarland himself wrote for the volume two articles that challenge attention; they are entitled "Other Possible Rose Stocks" and "What Roses Nursery Agents Sell." He also has conducted, in the pages of the book, an "editorial inquiry" on "How to Make Roses Grow" and "Rose Protection vs. the Rose-zone Map." Dr. W. Van Fleet, of the United States Department of Agriculture—what florist does not know about Dr. Van Fleet's achievements as a rose hybridizer?—continues his "progress-records," writing this time under the heading, "Rose Breeding in 1920 at Bell Experiment Plot." And many other noncommercial rosarians have aided in giving high quality to the book.

Memphis, Tenn.—Flowers were donated by the Memphis Floral Co., the Idlewild Greenhouses, the Johnson Floral Co. and the Flower Shop, to be sold on the streets in an effort to raise part of Tennessee's quota for the building of the Victory Memorial building at Washington, D. C.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

E. V. B. Felthousen, Schenectady, N. Y., recently rounded out his twentieth year at the postoffice stamp window, which was favorably commented upon by the local press. Between the acts, so to speak, a flourishing business has been worked up, whether it be a stock of geraniums for Memorial day or young chrysanthemums, in both of which the stamp of good culture is seen. Mr. Felthousen humorously commented upon the fact that he is the first to see The Review upon its arrival at the postoffice. This may in some measure account for his success.

"The sun had hardly set upon what was our finest Easter business," observed Henry Eberhardt, of the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., "when we received a funeral order which compelled us, owing to our being entirely sold up, to scour the surrounding country for flowers. We roused Fred A. Danker, of Albany, out of bed at 11:30 p. m. Sunday night, just as he had retired following the Easter rush. With his customary good nature he obtained a lantern and together we made a round. Finally we wound up with a supply that enabled us to furnish a number of pieces, including a blanket of orchids, roses and valley, the effort of Walter Dunning."

"Paul's Scarlet Climber rose and Hydrangea Trophee were real trophies with us this Easter," observed F. A. Danker, Albany, N. Y. "They headed the list in our sales and were mascots for what was the finest business in our experience. The elusive dollar did not purchase much florally, but was the basis and ranged up to a fiver, little beyond. Quality and less quantity counted. From inquiry among our neighbors we learn their experience was similar." Mr. Danker incidentally mentioned that Paul's Scarlet Climber should be propagated and grown in pots to insure blooming. He has a fine batch of young stock for future handling.

Shin Suzuki, of the Nippon Nursery, Woodside, N. Y., was overheard advising a customer to buy lilies liberally this year, as they would probably be dearer next season. The drop from 50 cents to 30 cents per bloom was an added incentive. The result proved the shrewdness of our worthy confrere.

G. Messeberg, Flatbush, N. Y., had a fine lot of pot roses for Easter and at the same time he deplored missing a batch of hybrid perpetuals, which can be held back for Memorial day, an event already engaging the attention of both wholesale and retail grower.

Fred W. Wagenfohr, Mount Vernon, N. Y., owing to forced removal just before Easter, was put about some, but, as he expressed it, "We were Johnny on the spot just next door and worked like Trojans to get straightened out and had fine results." His seed business is opening up well in the new store.

Victor Dorvall, of Victor S. Dorvall & Sons, Woodside, N. Y., attributes the brisk Easter demand to the few warm days the week previous, when much bulbous stock suffered and but little recovered or was aided by the later cool weather. The perfect system of cold storage stood in good stead, so that though the late delivery meant a big rush at the end, the holiday trade finished in a wind-up that satisfied everyone interested.

August Buckholz, Woodside, N. Y., commented upon the many blind tulips and the excellence of narcissi and hyacinths, with a general total that excelled anything experienced in the last ten years.

"How would you feel," asks Charles Zeller, of Charles Zeller & Son, Flatbush, N. Y., "if a load of blooming plants were refused by your best store customer early in the week on account of the fear that, owing to the warm spell, the stock would not hold up over Easter? This was an actual circumstance and we know of another grower who was not even so easily handled as ourselves. In our case, being a retailer as well as a grower, we disposed of everything salable. The cool weather preceding Easter day stiffened up the stock and helped hold prices firm and on a moderate level." W. M.

PUTTING PARK RANGE RIGHT.

You recall the illustration on page 20 of The Review for March 24. It purposed to show the greenhouses in the new park of that remarkable little town of Hibbing, up in Minnesota. It didn't, however. It showed, instead, the greenhouses on a large and well known estate in the east, far from Hibbing. A wrongly labeled photograph, sent by the contributor without realizing the error, was responsible for the wrong first impression, among Review readers, of the new greenhouses at Hibbing. Here is the right photograph of the Hibbing houses which resulted from the enterprise and effort of Superintendent of Parks Conrad B. Wolf and Mayor Victor L. Power.

GROWERS AT SPRINGFIELD.

The St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association will meet at Springfield, Ill., Tuesday, April 19. This meeting is of great importance to all flower growers in this district, says the secretary, J. J. Beneke. The meeting will open promptly at 2 o'clock. The executive committee will meet at 1 o'clock to transact such business as may come before it. W. J. Hembreiker, chairman of the entertainment committee, has arranged an interesting program.

St. Louis and St. Louis county have promised a large representation. The party will leave St. Louis via the Chicago & Alton railroad 8:40 a. m., April 19, arriving at Springfield at 11:25. Fare is $4.04 one way.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Easter business seemed to exceed that of all other years.

Stock at the beginning of the week was plentiful, and it looked as if the market would be flooded for Easter. Sweet peas and lilies were especially plentiful, but by the night of March 25, sweet peas were scarce and lilies were not to be had at all. American Beauties were plentiful, but the supply was readily taken up. Short roses were scarce.

The potted plants were exceptionally fine this year, especially the hydrangeas and the ramblers. Lilies were unsatisfactory this year, as there were so many soft blooms, which meant a great loss to several of the large local firms.

Violets were in great demand, as usual, in spite of the fact that they were poor.

Delphinium is now being offered in good quality.

The two cold nights, during the week after Easter, practically destroyed all outdoor flowers. Spring blossoms, lilac and all the Japanese flowering trees were frozen.

Various Notes.

The Dupont Flower Shop reports an excellent Easter, with the exception of the sale of large plants and baskets.

Mrs. Cooke was glad to say that she had received but one complaint on the enormous Easter business.

George C. Shaffer sold more plants than ever before, and made a general clean-up on all stock.

Gude Bros. Co. had a force of fourteen men making corsages from the morning of Saturday, March 26, until the noon of Easter Sunday. The telegraph business exceeded that of all other years. Ernest F. Gude, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude, and Ruth Baird were married at the First Reformed church, March 23. G. A. E.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

Easter business was quite satisfactory to all the Duluth florists and stock was plentiful and of good quality. The Easter lilies were of better quality than in other years, as they were dwarf and well budded and the foliage was good. Almost everyone cleaned up everything with a flower on. Roses were in great demand and the stock was excellent. The varieties most in evidence were Columbia, Russell, Premier, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Sunburst and White Killarney. Carnations were plentiful and sold well. The quality was good. Spring flowers were in great demand. The good sellers were daffodils, tulips and freesias. Sweet peas, violets and valley were plentiful and were used mostly for corsage work. In potted plants there was everything anyone could desire—hydrangeas, genistas, tulips, daffodils, begonias, rambler roses, hyacinths, deutzias, azaleas and cinerarias.

Various Notes.

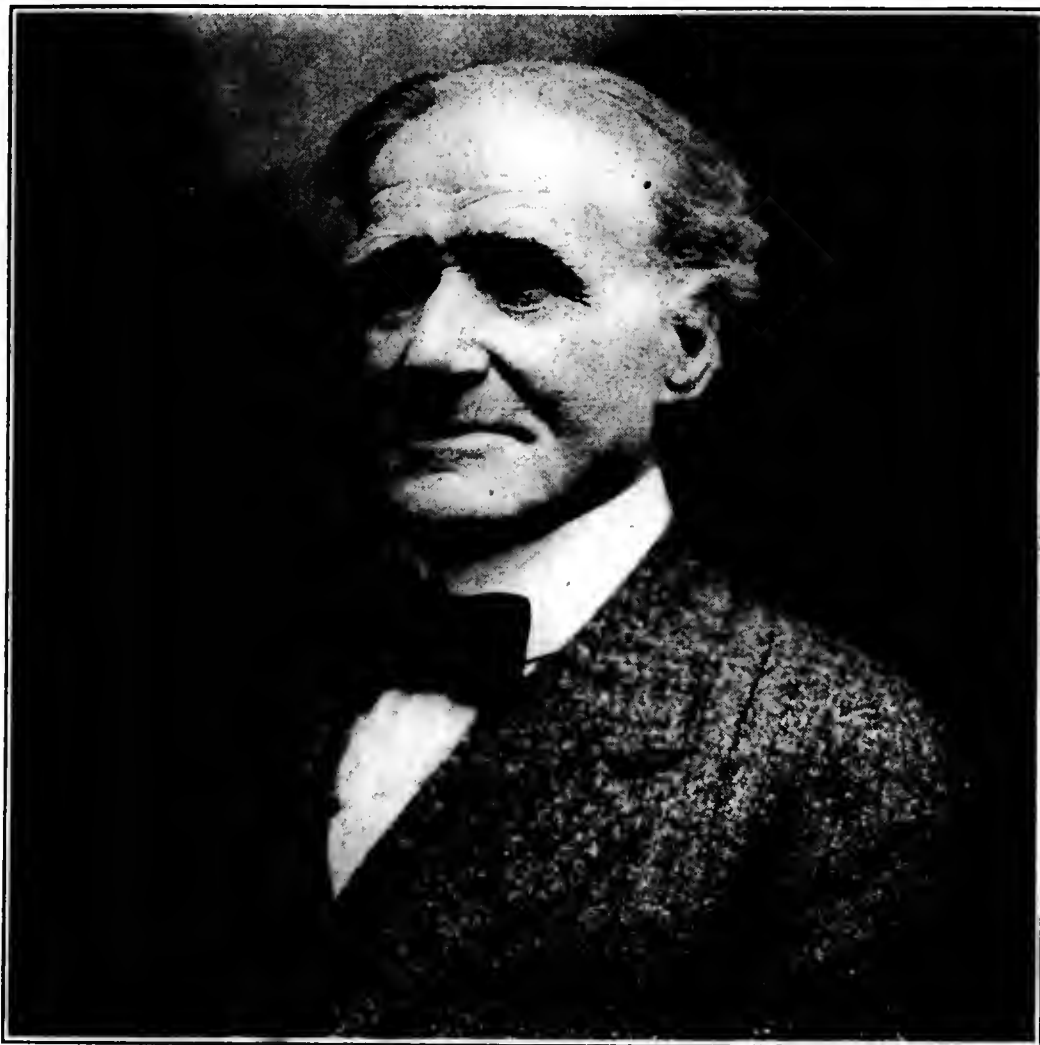

J. J. Le Borious had a large business for Easter and made a good clean-up, both in cut flowers and potted plants. His hydrangeas were a little too late for the Easter trade and will be at their best in about two weeks.

William Japp, of Lester Park, reports business exceptionally good. His chief output was flowering plants.

The Alpha Florist made a good showing of Easter plants, including some fine azaleas of the narcissiflora type.

With the Duluth Floral Co., business was quite good. It had a large selection of flowering plants and cut flowers and reports a large out-of-town business. This firm had an unusual run of funeral work during Easter week, which kept the staff working late hours.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

ADAM GRAHAM.

ADAM GRAHAM deserves being called the "grand old man of the Cleveland trade." He was born in Scotland eighty years ago and came to this country when he was but 10 years of age. At 15 he first engaged in the trade with the late Alexander Craig, the father of Robert Craig, at Philadelphia. It was not long before he showed his proficiency and was sent to Cleveland to lay out the estate of J. H. Wade. He held a position as gardener for Mr. Wade for seventeen years. When he left, it was to go into business for himself. This proved a profitable venture and Mr. Graham became one of Cleveland's leading florists. A number of years ago his son entered into partnership with him and the firm has been known as A. Graham & Son. Mr. Graham has held executive positions in a number of banking and industrial corporations in Cleveland. He has been president of and an active worker in the S. A. F. and has been president of the Cleveland Florists' Club. Of late years he has spent much time traveling with his daughters.

Edward Kreimer was home from school for the week and was a good help at the store.

BEGONIAS DOING BADLY.

I want some information on how to grow begonias. I have some Lorraine, Mrs. M. A. Patten and Chatelaine. They were fine stock when I got them, but they are all standing still and are diseased. What would I better do?

C. T. M.—Pa.

All the begonias named succeed best, especially in the younger stages, in a light compost. One with two-thirds leaf-mold, not too much decayed, and one-third loam, with a good dash of sharp sand, would be ideal. Do not attempt to grow them in pure loam, especially if it is heavy. Lighten your soil and they will do far better. When moving into larger pots, one-fourth well decayed and pulverized cow or horse manure can be added, reducing the leaf-mold. Do not pot too firmly while the plants are small. All varieties need a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night in winter to do well, and also some shade is necessary as the sun gets stronger. C. W.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

A COLD wave, not so disastrous in the north, has ruined much outdoor stock in the south.

ONCE again are come the days when cash counts. The florist who is able to put up the cash is the one who gets the big bargains now.

COMPETITION in service is becoming as keen as competition in prices. It has not the disastrous effects upon profits that result from the latter.

It is easier and cheaper to keep an old customer than to make a new one. Therefore, treat all who do business with you with courtesy and fairness.

THE Classified plant and supply ads in this issue of The Review again constitute a record. No previous edition ever has carried so many or so great a variety.

It will keep the florists hustling to get ready enough stock for Memorial day business. A good demand is certain. An adequate supply is far from certain.

THERE was an unusually good Easter business everywhere; more people than ever before had flowers that day. The reaction of the few days following was nothing more than we must expect just after we have fully stocked all our customers.

ADVERTISING never demonstrated its worth so well as it did this Easter. The results that now elate florists throughout the country were possible only because everybody pushed hard, in the hope of overcoming the apathy that dismays other lines of business. Never before did florists use so much advertising. Never before did they have, conditions considered, a holiday so eminently successful.

THE brightest gleam that has penetrated the editorial sanetum in a long time is this: "We wish to state that we commence April 1 with a complete reorganization of our shipping department on lines frequently laid down in the editorial page of The Review." No department of the greenhouse business needs more attention than this one. The lines of reorganization are simple and have often been mentioned here. May more heed them thus!

A HANDSOME color plate has been issued by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., showing the Patrick O'Mara dahlia.

QUALITY is what we need more than increased quantity. Grow the best stock and you will be the leading florist in your neighborhood.

THE thoroughness with which florists cleaned out all available stock for Easter is a matter of surprise to some in this line of business and a matter of envy to some in other lines.

PRICES have descended so low in the coal market for lack of even a small demand that it is apprehended a few orders will send quotations up. It looks like a good time to fill up available storage space.

FROM the way the Classified Ads are coming to The Review from florists in New York, Pennsylvania and New England it appears the trade in that section must have restored production to pre-war quantity this season.

DURING the war boom any man could make money; the difference was what they did with it. The florists who first paid their debts and saved what was left are on Easy street now, while the improvident are about where they started, except that they have had a fine run for their money.

MAX SCHLING, whom most florists have come to know, complains that he never gets a chance to sit down for a half hour at a time. "Business with us is brisk," he says. "Our advertising is bringing more and more results and, irrespective of conditions during the last few months, we somehow do not feel any decrease in business." The reason business is so good with Mr. Schling is that he doesn't wait for it to come—he meets it at least halfway. It is good with any other florist who does the same.

SUPPOSE.

Suppose every man, woman and child bought a pair of shoes for Easter.

Suppose you were in the shoe business.

How much shoe trade do you suppose you would have the few days after Easter?

WHO HAS BORONIA SEEDS?

Would some one of the numerous readers of The Review tell me where I could get seed of Boronia megastigma? I have looked through several catalogues, but fail to see it advertised in any of them. This is a plant which deserves to be grown more extensively, if only for its lovely perfume.

DANGER IN SLACK DEMAND.

Statements of an alarming nature are beginning to be heard in the soft coal trade resulting from adverse market reports from the coal fields and various industrial centers. Thousands of mines have not had orders for a pound of coal for two months, according to Coal Age, and with a general average of a bare two-days-a-week operation for the country those fortified with some business are making little over three or four days a week.

Production has steadily dropped during fourteen weeks from more than 2,000,000 tons a day to about half this figure because there is no demand for bituminous coal. That the country is drifting into another period of ear shortage and high prices through improvident buying by steam coal users is the fear generally expressed in many quarters. All that is needed, state some authorities, to bring on a repetition of coal trouble is for consumers to hold off thirty to sixty days longer and for business to pick up even moderately.

"It is admittedly difficult to appraise the danger correctly in the situation," says one writer regarding the present market. "The only element in the problem that is definitely known is production. The item of greatest uncertainty is the country's requirement for coal for the next twelve months—that is, to what extent business will pick up. It can safely be said that the consumer with any certainty of coal requirements in the next twelve months who does not make provision through purchase, whether spot or contract, for his coal and who does not at once begin accumulating it in his own storage yard is playing with fire."

FLOWER GROWERS WANT FACTS.

The National Flower Growers' Association is endeavoring to compile data with a view to getting valuable information for dissemination among the flower growers of this country, pertaining to insurance protection and a simplified, uniform bookkeeping system, including ways to figure cost of production, depreciation, etc. Any answers to the following inquiries mailed to the undersigned, at Edwardsville, Ill., will be appreciated by those in charge of this work and will materially assist in getting some definite results:

1. Do you carry insurance and, if so, what kind? Name the companies and rates paid.
2. Explain in brief outline your system of bookkeeping and how you figure cost of production and depreciation.
3. Please give such other information as in your opinion would assist materially in the above work.

J. F. Ammann, Sec'y.

A BUSY SEASON.

That the trade is enjoying another extremely active season is shown by the letters which reach The Review. The activity seems to be general, all over the country, east as well as west, for The Review is steadily advancing as an advertising medium for the florists of the east. Like this:

Two insertions would have been sufficient to have cleaned up our stock, and then some. Talk about results! We didn't get results, we had a landslide of letters, and it sure hurts to return money as well as to disappoint customers.—G. L. Curry & Sons, Valencia, Pa., March 31, 1921.

The ad recently placed with you certainly cleaned up our surplus stock quickly.—Quality Flower Store & Greenhouse, Fort Smith, Ark., April 1, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

Q. F. S., Ark.—Address John G. Esler, secretary of the Florists' Hail Association, Saddle River, N. J.

A. J. S., Cal.—To obtain permit for importing the stock you wish, apply to the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

Israel Quint.

Israel Quint, who had for nearly forty years been actively engaged in the gardening and florists' business at Roxbury, Mass., died early on Easter Sunday in his fifty-eighth year. For many years his double-decked wagon, horse-propelled, loaded with pansies, geraniums, cannas and other bedding as well as decorative house plants, was a feature about the city. In more recent years automobiles displaced the horses. The deceased was highly respected in the trade and always attended to business with exacting care. He leaves a widow, eight sons and three daughters. One son, Harry, is a well known retailer on Boylston street, Boston.

Mr. Quint was a member of the Society of American Florists and the Foresters of America. Funeral services were held from his late residence, 125 Walnut avenue, Roxbury, March 28, and were largely attended. Many in the trade were present and sent floral remembrances.

W. N. C.

Robert MacArthur.

Robert MacArthur, one of the founders and, at one time, president of the New Jersey Horticultural Society, died at his home at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., Saturday, March 26. Mr. MacArthur was for several years in the florists' business at Orange, N. J. A year ago he was affected with a paralytic stroke and he had been gradually failing in health since that time. He was born in Scotland seventy-five years ago, and emigrated from that country to Orange nearly fifty years ago. Twelve years ago he left that town and went to Hoosick Falls, where he assumed charge of a large estate. He leaves one daughter, Miss Annie MacArthur, and three sons, George, William and Ralph.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Since the Easter rush is over, it has been learned from all the florists that the Easter business was the largest they have ever had. Ideal weather conditions prevailed and, no doubt, brought every person out. Every florist cleaned out all salable stock; in fact, the wholesale houses, when they closed their doors Saturday evening, March 26, had little left outside of a few white roses and tulips. Thursday morning before Easter, the wholesalers refused to book any more orders for any item on their price list, with the exception of bulbous stock, and even that stock cleaned up well.

It was one of the holidays when the complaints were scarce. Outside of a few complaints on violets, every florist has reported the stock better than ever before.

Business during last week was exceptionally good. The Monday following Easter was almost a clean-up day. The florists were all ready to replenish their stock early Monday morning.

The rose cut last week was fair. The demand, however, found the cut practically exhausted each evening. Premier, Columbia, Ophelia, Butterfly and White Killarney were the principal varieties in this market.

The supply of carnations improved each day, although the demand continued to clean up the market daily. The quality was exceptionally good and the prices were somewhat lower.

Violets were unusually poor. There were few in this market last week. Tulips are about a thing of the past. Yellow daisies started to arrive in good shape. The quality was exceptionally fine—fine long stems and large flowers.

Orchids were scarce at Easter time and those that were in the market last week were moved daily. Greens of all kinds moved out rapidly. The southern shipments of Asparagus plumosus helped out considerably in supplying the demand.

Business so far this year proves that, with a little publicity, the public will buy flowers. As we all know, the majority of businesses in this community and all over the country have suffered a depression. The majority of business people are complaining, but, in spite of all these conditions, the florists have just had their largest business in their history. A little advertising and fair prices and there is no limit to the florists' business.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is celebrating the forty-seventh anniversary of the entry of Fred Burki, president of the corporation, into the florists' business. The members of the corporation are looking forward to the golden jubilee of the company, which will be three years hence.

William Faulkner, superintendent of the Allegheny cemetery, is confined to his bed with acute neuritis in his ankles and knees. He is unable to get on his feet at all and, it is reported, he will be confined to his bed for some time.

Thursday, March 31, the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. held a visiting day at its greenhouses, at Bakerstown, Pa. A party met at the city store of this establishment at 11:00 a. m. Thursday morning. In spite of the inclement weather, there were 110 in the party. A car was chartered on the Butler Short Line, which conveyed the people to Bakerstown, and they were met with automobiles which took them to the range. Mr. Clarke presented the ladies with candy and chewing gum and the men with cigarettes, cigars and Pittsburgh stogies. An orchestra furnished the crowd with some music while en route to the plant. After an elaborate dinner, Mr. Kocher, superintendent and foreman, led the crowd through the greenhouses. A picture of the crowd was taken in one of the large carnation ranges and also at the tables while eating. Considerable comment was made on the wonderful plantings and the order in which all houses were kept. After viewing all the greenhouses, the visitors returned to the office and were again presented with cigarettes, stogies and candy, after which they were conveyed to the special car on the Butler Short Line, which brought them back to Pittsburgh. It rained practically all day, but the crowd seemed to enjoy this visit even though the weather was inclement. All the florists, representing towns within a radius of 100 miles from Pittsburgh, showed their appreciation of the company's hospitality and expressed the hope that another visiting day would be arranged when the weather would be more agreeable. Many florists drove to the range and were kind enough to assist in conveying the florists from the street car at Bakerstown to the range.

Last week the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. let a contract to the George Schenck Co., Butler, Pa., for $30,000, for the erection of a boiler house at Bakerstown. Three 350-horsepower Wickes boilers have been purchased and will be placed in the building when completed. It has been stated that with this new equipment, the problem of heating the range has been solved. This new arrangement will centralize the power plant.

The Market.

The rose market was fairly brisk last week. A good supply came into the local market and met with a ready sale. Carnations were plentiful and the supply was fairly well utilized. Some especially good ones were available. Along with these, there were some short-stemmed ones. There were a great many jonquils sent into the market. Cut tulips were available, but were not in heavy supply. Calla lilies were fairly numerous, but Easter lilies were scarce.

The Easter market cleaned up the supply of potted plants. A few cinerarias were available. The week, as usual when following Easter, was dull, but there was a pleasant surprise for the florists because there was no great inactivity noticeable.

Various Notes.

Bertermann Bros. Co. was busy last week with several decorations. This firm is cutting some good calla and Harrisii lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Moore, of Rushville, have a new son.

H. C. Heileman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

Roy Davis is now in the office of Bertermann Bros. Co.

The Market.

If the Easter week was one which afforded the trade unexpected cause for satisfaction, the subsequent one was exactly opposite; it was a keen disappointment to growers and wholesalers. Easter business made so fine a record that it gave rise to false hopes. Instead of maintaining the pace, the slump was one of the worst ever experienced just after a holiday. Two causes are assigned: It often has been noted that after a notably big flower day, especially what is called a "plant holiday," business is slack for a few days, as flower buyers all are stocked up at the same time. This condition was unusually general after Easter. It does not make so much difference, coming at a time when crops are going off, but last week the hiatus caught the market with a tremendous supply in nearly all lines, but especially of roses. Many growers who were on crop for St. Valentine's day came within a few days of having another full crop for Easter. Being just a little late, they came in during the time of lightest demand and, instead of Roses rarely have been finer than they were last week, or than they are this week. Weather conditions have been ideal for the production of a big spring crop of splendid quality and better values never were offered. If you ask a grower or wholesaler he will tell you that business has been "punk," or "bum," or "rotten," or that there has been no business, which leads to the question as to what has become of the stock? Of course average prices were extremely low, but some portion of the public must have bought a good many roses in the last ten days, as the retailers carried away huge quantities.

Nearly all other flowers were increasingly abundant last week, but roses so dominated the market that other stock was eclipsed and suffered accordingly. Bulbous flowers perhaps furnish an exception. The early tulips were nearly finished at Easter and the supply of jonquils has fallen away rapidly. Freesia is gone. It has not been a good season for the bulb forcers, in spite of the good Easter, and most growers are glad to see the bulb stock's exit. Of course there will be Darwins for some weeks yet. Next season there is not likely to be so much bulbous stock in this market. Lower prices for the bulbs and a guaranty of blooming quality will be necessary to get the forcers to take hold strongly again.

The spring crop of carnations is on at last; there are plenty, quality is good and prices are low. The supply of sweet peas has not increased so rapidly as has the supply of other flowers; having dropped a crop of buds in the last dark spell, it takes a little time for the peas to get under way again. There is a fair sale for them, in spite of the abundance of flowers, because violets have passed in the warm weather and peas are almost the only flowers available for corsages. Cattleyas are only moderately plentiful at from $1 to $1.50 per flower. There is a good supply of valley and it has been selling well because of the rush of weddings which frequently comes just after Easter.

The trade already is looking forward to and planning for the next big flower day, Mothers' day, May 8. The general idea is that advertising and moderate prices will make it possible to sell everything in sight at that time.

Mr. Hanson's Idea.

It long has been the idea of the managers of the A. L. Randall Co. that it is a weakness in the flower business that so small a variety of merchandise is offered to the public. As it seems a long, slow process to develop floral novelties of real worth, an effort has been made to develop resale merchandise suitable for display in flower stores. Working along this line, Arthur Hanson has fitted up a room on the third floor of the Lemoyne building, calling it the florists' gift shop. A large percentage of the novelties shown are useful in connection with lighting the home, including lamps and shades of many kinds. It is bright and colorful, a room in which every visitor pauses and finds something he would like to possess. It is Mr. Hanson's belief that any florist who can provide a room ten to fifteen feet square for such a gift shop will find it a money-maker for him, just as this one is for the Randall Co.

Various Notes.

Why is George Asmus like the parrot in the story? You remember the parrot said he knew what the matter was with him—he talked too d—n much. Well, that's what Mr. Asmus says is the trouble in his case, too. The speech-making he has done for publicity and the next national flower show brought on an attack of laryngitis, which he neglected in its early stages, resulting in an almost total loss of voice. Mr. Asmus now pays a daily visit to a laryngologist and has hopes of an eventual recovery.

C. S. Claussen returned April 4, after having spent a considerable part of the winter on the Pacific coast.

Funeral work has been on the increase, with some large affairs calling for many flowers. The burial of Mrs. Pullman, whose body was brought home from California, brought out a fine display of floral pieces April 4. Most of this work was of the choicest character,

Supply has increased more rapidly than demand, due to Spring crops coming on right after Easter, and prices have been hammered although there were inevitably some sleeping cars in flowers and other designs of that type.

Frank Schramm, William Spandikow, Fred Stielow and Rudolph Ellsworth spent April 3 at Richmond, Ind., looking over the famous places there.

At Crystal Lake Frank Schramm is installing a coal conveyor capable of unloading a car in less than an hour. The concrete work has been finished and the arrival of the machine itself is awaited. When the installation is complete an invitation will be issued to growers to witness a demonstration. Mr. Schramm, who now has 65,000 feet of glass, believes every range of fair size will find it desirable soon to put in equipment of this character.

W. C. Egan, of Highland Park, well known to the older generation of florists, celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary April 1. Some of the members of the Garden Club gave Mr. and Mrs. Egan a dinner at the Casino Club, among those present being W. N. Rudd, O. C. Simonds and Jens Jensen.

T. E. Waters returned April 2 from a ten days' trip to Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, the time being spent mainly in observing the Easter trade. It was the first time in thirty-three years' connection with the trade that Mr. Waters had not been waiting on customers himself on the eve of Easter.

Edward Meuret and family have returned from their winter's vacation in California. The former Park Ridge grower looks the picture of health and no doubt will be found back in the business again in the course of the next few months.

The engagement is announced of Miss Anna Tonner and Louis Beattie. Miss Tonner is well known as one of the five Tonner sisters, the youngest of a large family of florists. She has been keeping the books for the Tonner firm in the Atlas block. The fortunate young man is a childhood playmate who has established himself in the candy business since he returned from Siberia, where he wore Uncle Sam's uniform. The wedding will take place before the month ends.

The notice of this week's Florists' Club's meeting contained four lengthy communications. Evidently the new broom is sweeping as in the proverb.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has its new big Union refrigerator in operation in the shipping department and Manager Klingsporn believes it will quickly pay for itself through keeping stock in the best possible shape, thereby bringing in more money.

W. H. Carney, Pittsburgh wholesaler, was on the market April 4.

The A. B. C. store looks like a conservatory this week, a shipment of palms having been received from Roy F. Wilcox & Co., Montebello, Cal. The retailers are much interested, as such fine plants have not been seen since the war.

M. H. Levine, the New York ribbon merchant, is here this week.

El Paso, Tex.—The Herald reporter's account of an interesting visit to the greenhouses of H. L. Potter, where F. J. Vinson is in charge, filled a front-page column March 16 and ran over nearly another column on a later page.

The Market.

Business is never brisk after any holiday and the present year has proved no exception to this rule. Belated reports on Easter trade all go to confirm the verdict given a week ago, that it equaled, if it did not surpass, that of any previous year. The weather has been somewhat cooler since Easter, and, with hard frosts on one or two days, this has prevented a greater accumulation of cut flowers. It has not been the best of weeks for business, but no one thought it would be. Therefore, disappointments were few. The higher-priced roses go slowly and the short-stems, especially white, are becoming overabundant. Carnations drag considerably. No fault has been found with the quality as yet.

Violets have passed, but there is a glut of pansies and low prices rule on these. Sweet peas are less plentiful and clean up better than almost any other flowers. Marguerites are coming larger and with better stems. Victoria nareissus is now abundant.

There are plenty of fine snapdragons. The best sell, but many are unsold and go to the rubbish barrel. It seems rather easy to overdo this useful flower. Calendulas are plentiful. Mignonette goes slowly. Bachelor's buttons move fairly well. Few tulips are seen in the market and neither hyacinths nor freesias seem to be wanted.

For valley there is little demand and the cattleyas coming in are more than ample to care for all orders. Some nice Gypsophila elegans is seen and sells well. There are also small lots of lilac. Forsythia sprays are being freely used for the decoration of some of the stores. It is flowering here extremely early this season.

Boston's Big Spring Show.

A large and attractive show is staged at Horticultural hall this week, the spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the annual exhibition of the American Rose Society being combined. The season has been such a forcing one that some exhibits usually seen here of grand quality are missing or scarce. These include cinerarias, schizanthus, cyclamens and bulbous material. On the other hand, roses are numerous and good; so are orchids and azaleas, while acacias are scarce.

The rose garden of Thomas Roland, with its grass and gravel walks, beds of beautifully flowered bush roses and fences covered with climbers, is extremely attractive. Another rose garden, not in competition, from the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co., is also well done. The splendid orchid collections of Albert C. Burrage, Beverly Farms; A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield; Julius Rochrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.; E. B. Dane, of Brookline, and others, contain a wealth of rare and choice material. The rose groups of the W. W. Edgar Co., F. E. Palmer and others are excellent and the collection of Kurume azaleas, artistically arranged, from J. S. Ames, is a feature of the show.

Rhododendrons and azaleas from Walter Hunnewell, the carnation groups of S. J. Goddard, C. S. Strout and others and the extensive display of cut roses England members of the National Association of Gardeners, scheduled for April 8, had to be postponed.

Various Notes.

Commencing April 2, Thomas F. Galvin, Sr., associated himself with his son, T. F. Galvin, Jr., in the retail florists' business at 226 Devonshire street, near the corner of Franklin street. Owing to changed conditions in the florists' business, Mr. Galvin decided that he could serve his many customers to much better advantage from this central location in the heart of the wholesale flower district, which enabled him at all times to obtain the pick of the market, and sell flowers at a distinct reduction in price. Forty years' experience in buying, selecting and arranging flowers for all occasions, added to the popularity of T. F. Galvin, Jr., and the fact that he had already built up a splendid business on Devonshire street, should make this one of the busiest flower marts in Boston and the writer cordially wishes it increased success.

Announcement that Marcellus A. Patten, the noted carnation specialist, of Tewksbury, had sold out all interests there to his son, Harold J. Patten, and had determined to make his home hereafter at Lakeland, Fla., where he has owned a splendid cottage and fruit plantation for some years, interested local growers a great deal. Mr. Patten's elder son, Wilbur A. Patten, also hopes to locate in Florida and may take up propagating or similar work for the United States government. M. A. Patten, the founder of the carnation establishment at Tewksbury, was born in Lowell, December 4, 1849, and after graduating from the high school there started to learn the florists' business with Wieland Bros., Cambridge, later going to W. C. Strong's, in Waban. In 1890 he started in business at Lowell, on West Fourth street, under the title of Patten & Co., remaining there nearly twenty years. He moved to Tewksbury in 1890. Mr. Patten is an active man ishment and are well grown there. Several good novelties originated there and at present the new white, Thomas C. Joy, is doing magnificently there and bids fair to outclass all other whites now on the market.

March proved to be an abnormally warm month and gave us 375 degrees excess temperature over normal. The maximum temperature was 84 degrees, which broke all March records. A cold wave closely followed this and just failed to make a record. Fortunately, vegetation was not quite far enough advanced to suffer serious damage. March went out blustery, while April came in weeping copiously as if to make amends for March's vagaries.

Daylight saving for a 5-month period starts in Massachusetts at the end of April. The measure passed the House and Senate by overwhelming majorities. The shortening from a 7 to a 5-month period was due to a wish to appease a section of the agriculturists who still claim that daylight saving works serious harm to them, but the overwhelming sentiment of the state is for continued daylight saving.

The death of Israel Quint is reported in the obituary column this week.

James Wheeler, of Natick, cut 3,500 Godfrey callas for the Easter trade. He is delighted with his new pink sport of Matchless carnation, which is similar to the one-time popular Winsor in color, and will plant the bulk of his establishment with it the coming season.

Inquiries at the seed stores show that business is brisk, with hands working overtime to keep abreast of orders. Apart from seeds, the demand is heavy for gladioli, dahlias, roses and nursery stock of all kinds.

At the store of the Beacon Florist, Mr. Eisemann says that Easter trade went far ahead of all expectations, plant trade especially being remarkably heavy.

The next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will come on the fourth Tuesday in April, the 26th, instead of April 19, as the latter date is a state holiday.

At the May exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Albert C. Burrage will make a noteworthy display of native orchids, of which he is growing an entire houseful. A display of this character should be not only a decided novelty but a great attraction. W. N. C.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

A change is expected after a holiday—when you have just dined you do not want dinner—yet a change so complete as that which occurred immediately after Easter was unexpected. There was business. Oh, yes, there was business. There were weddings and parties, in and out of town, that required much stock, but it was as nothing compared to the flowers that came into the market. Their number was legion. Fairly good orders made no impression on them. They accumulated and prices fell. They kept on accumulating and prices continued falling. Bargain sales, special sales, the street men, both foreign and domestic, all helped. By Saturday afternoon, April 2, an immense quantity of stock had been sold at some price. The price, on the flowers left over for a couple of days, or on a large quantity of something that was not needed, to a buyer taking the whole lot, was low indeed.

Roses were the principal sufferers, daffodils and carnations to a lesser extent. The crop of roses was surprisingly large, the demand for them rather light. Premier was the worst sufferer. Orchids were the only flowers that were not plentiful. Cattleya Mossiae is the leading, probably the only, variety now offered. Valley is excellent; it proves good stock for the weddings. Sweet peas are less abundant. There are large

ROSES

Roses have never been better, and during this month there will be a big supply of them.

Russell is still the best of all the pink roses. For keeping and shipping qualities, Russell has no equal, and at the present moderate prices, every retail store can afford to buy them.

Columbia, Premier and Shawyer are good pink roses and we have them in quantity.

Hadley is the best in red. Plenty of all sizes from 12-inch stems to 40 inches.

Beauties, mostly specials, 36 inches and over. Until the end of the season you can depend on us for good Beauties.

Place your next rose orders with us. It is to your interest to take advantage of the splendid supply of roses. We offer you the kind of stock that will make money for you.

quantities of fine daffodils and some Darwin tulips. Violets, freesias and Paper White narcissi are about over. Lilies are in the background. There have been some orders for snapdragon. There is a little delphinium. Good judges expect the present conditions to prevail. Then they look for a more evenly balanced supply with better average prices. They base this prediction on the belief that crops will decline and that bulbous flowers will be over.

Anthony Ruzicka's Visit.

Anthony Ruzicka, of Madison, N. J., received a royal welcome on his first visit to Philadelphia, Tuesday, April 5. Eight motors filled with florists accompanied him throughout the day. They mustered thirty-five in all. Calls were made on the Joseph Heacock Co., at Roelofs; Stephen Mortensen, at Southampton; the Florex Gardens, at North Wales; Henry M. Weiss & Sons, at Haboro; Alfred M. Campbell's Ellenwood Greenhouses and the cluster of brilliants at Roslyn and at Wyndmoor.

At the City Club in the evening Mr. Ruzicka read an exceedingly able paper on roses, printed on another page of this issue, which was followed by a discussion of unusual interest. The Florex Gardens exhibited five wonderfully fine vases of roses, Dunlop, Premier, Columbia, Butterfly and Double White Killarney.

American Legion.

There is an incident that occurred in the cut flower market just before Easter that was not reported. It was the favorable reception given to the new rose, American Beauty. The shortage of American Beauty gave Edward Reid the choice of disappointing his customers or sending them something else. He sent American Legion, marking them as such, and charging at the rate asked for medium Beauties. Mr. Reid was gratified at receiving a number of repeat orders specifying that American Legion be sent.

In the Store.

Retailer: The price of sweet peas was too high at Easter.

Grower: How high?

Retailer: $2 to $3.

Grower: Easter only comes once a year.

Retailer: Yes, but we must charge $1.50 for a bunch and that is too much.

Grower: Those ideas don't suit the increase in salaries and coal.

Retailer, graciously: Ah well, the high prices are not entirely your fault; sometimes we buy at a quarter and sell at a dollar.

Lily Hybridizing.

(An informal snapshot by Alfred M. Campbell.)

"When I was down in Washington I went to see the work of Dr. Griffith in hybridizing lilies. I was so much interested in it that I got Joe Ross on the long distance telephone at Stratford. He went with me to see the lilies. They had flowered in fourteen months from the time of sowing the seed. The most that could be said against them was that they were uneven. Now, here you see the results of that visit. We have selected some fifty pots of lilies and are trying to produce seed to raise our own lily bulbs. The process of self-fertilization is interesting and requires care. The seed pod develops at the base of the flower when the flower shrivels. Each pod should contain two to three hundred seeds. You know they say that we may be at war with Japan in two years. Then we may want our own lilies. When I showed them to Mark Mills he said, 'Oh, yes,' it is all right if you want lily bulbs that will cost you $1 each.' Do you think my 10,000 lily bulbs will cost me $10,000? Not much. If I do go into it there will be no such expense."

Possibilities.

Emil H. Geschiek believes that a beneficial effect of the existing restrictions on plant importations will be to throw each grower more on his own resources. Instead of having much of his stock grown for him abroad, he will have to grow it himself. This makes the difficulty of getting a good assortment of plants in bloom in time for Easter much greater than when so much of the stock was imported. The reward for the growers should consequently be greater. Mr. Geschiek believes that the

The Market.

The local trade made great preparations for the Easter trade, and, with but a few exceptions, no one was disappointed. Though nearly all the factories here are on part time, a goodly number of plants and cut flowers were disposed of.

It was a hard matter to hold stock back this year, owing to the warm winter which we had. Especially was this true with Easter lilies. There was a large supply of these on hand the first of the week, but by March 27 they were completely cleaned up.

All other bulbous stock was to be had in large quantities, such as hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, potted plants of bougainvilleas, roses, spiræas, a few azaleas, primroses, ericas, cinerarias, genistas, and a host of others.

In fact, the array of potted plants was varied and made a beautiful display, arranged in fancy baskets and hamper and covered with paper covers. From all reports, the greatest sellers were bulbous stock in pans of various sizes.

The windows of the downtown stores were beautifully decorated, consisting of the various arrangements of potted plants, in fancy containers, and cut flowers of all kinds.

The prices of all lines were somewhat lower than last year. All hands are getting ready for the spring sale of bedding plants, which will start as soon as the weather permits. Last week several frosts were reported, so it will probably be some time before there will be a brisk demand for bedding plants.

Various Notes.

Park Gardens has removed its flower shop from its old stand at 1038 Main street and is now located in the store formerly occupied by the New York Florists, at 1184 Main street. This will allow better facilities for handling the increasing business, as the new store is much larger than the old one. A fine lot of bulbous stock and other potted plants was seen here. Easter trade with them was most satisfactory.

James Horan & Son report Easter trade quite good. Though plants arranged in large baskets went slowly this year, the plants put up in containers to retail for $1 to $5 were good sellers. Fewer plants were grown by this firm this year; therefore, they had no trouble in cleaning up their entire stock.

Julius Reck says he is making preparations for a big sale of bedding plants this year. He is cutting some fine carnations and snapdragons. Easter trade with him was good; the fine stock of plants was completely sold out. He is of the Arcade, and by Saturday night, March 26, was completely sold out.

John Reek & Son had the largest Easter trade in the history of the firm. Owing to lower prices this year, a larger number of plants and other stocks were sold than were sold a year ago. They maintained three temporary stores in connection with their regular store to handle the Easter trade. Now that Easter is over, they are getting ready for the spring sales of bedding plants.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Easter business was as good as, or better than, ever before. The weather was ideal up to about 3 p. m. on Easter Sunday, when a storm came and the weather turned cold and brought a freezing temperature. Flowers and plants were equal to the demand in some stores, but others report that they could have sold many more if they could have been obtained on short notice.

Various Notes.

Theodore Kuebler did a thriving business. He had a large supply of plants and cut flowers.

The Lockyear Floral Co. did a large business and would have sold more if the additional stock could have been obtained. M. H. Lockyear and his wife arrived home from Florida just in time to help with the rushing business.

The store of J. C. Elspermann sold out all the blooming plants on hand, according to the report of Mrs. Elspermann.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The week after Easter found business extremely slow, with stock piling up considerably. By the end of the week the market was quite flooded with all kinds of stock. Bulbous stock, such as daffodils, tulips and narcissi, predominated, while carnations, roses, calendulas, etc., were a close second, with a sprinkling of miniature roses, myosotis and sweet peas.

Most of the retailers reported an exceptionally good Easter business, with a decided lull last week. There was no business, in fact, outside of funeral work and a few weddings.

The weather here has been changeable, mostly quite warm, with an occasional rain and now and then a day of freezing temperature, which probably has killed considerable outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

George Taffel, of Schloss Bros., New York, was a visitor.

W. A. Potter has announced the arrival of a baby boy.

Oscar Leistner was a recent visitor.

The Florists' Club last week held its monthly meeting in conjunction with the committees for the national flower show.

W. A. R.

West Plains, Mo.—The destructive freeze which caused great loss here March 29 killed tomato plants at the Cottage Greenhouse & Ozark Pansy Gardens, run by C. W. Harold & Son, and there will probably be none for sale except to local customers.

A PASSER'S PICK-UPS.

The Heiss Co., Dayton, O., has just added another truck to the delivery equipment. It is a White truck and makes the third one in service.

Easter Monday the new James theater, at Columbus, O., was opened. The opening was the grander because of the great number of flowers sent Mr. James, the owner. These consisted mostly of baskets of large sizes. The lobbies reminded onlookers of a flower show and the artistic arrangements were a credit to the florists of Columbus. A lady was heard to remark, "They surely did 'Say It with Flowers.'"

Springfield, O., also contributed to the display at the James theater. C. P. Brunner had several orders which he transferred to his Columbus correspondent.

Floyd Anderson, Xenia, O., is contemplating adding a new truck to his delivery equipment. This is becoming necessary on account of having three places to look after, the greenhouses at Jamestown and stores at Xenia and Wilmington. Each place is operated independently, the stores buying their plants, cut flowers, etc., from the greenhouses.

"We have the pleasure and privilege of entertaining from one to four florists, particularly rose growers, daily," said Fred H. Lemon, of Richmond, Ind. "With the greenhouses of the E. G. Hill Co., the Joseph H. Hill Co. and Fred H. Lemon & Co., we do have something to show them, too." Visitors always find a welcome at Richmond and no doubt an inspiration as well, after visiting the above-named places.

PLAN A NATION-WIDE SHOW.

California Nurserymen Meet.

A further meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen was called for March 29 by President Roy F. Wilcox and held at the market of the American Florists' Association, on Winston street, Los Angeles. Among those present were W. Rapp, president of the Pasadena Horticultural Association; D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena; W. Armacost, Albert Morris, F. R. Hills, J. D. Meriweather, Ontario; H. W. Kruckeberg, F. H. Howard, O. W. Howard, Roy F. Wilcox, H. N. Gage, C. Gutting, John C. Bodger, H. R. Richards, Albert Goldenson, F. H. Allen, Ernest Branton and Richard Letts. Mr. Letts, who was introduced by Dr. Houghton, is a member of an English seed firm and gave a short but interesting speech on conditions in England. Mr. Wilcox and Mr. Howard, of the executive committee, reported the progress that had been made with regard to the exhibition in the coming fall and announced that the permission of the park board had been obtained to hold the show in Exposition park. But more than this, the aid of the park board and the chamber of commerce had been enlisted and would be a valuable help in making the exhibition a success. The executive committee aims to make this a nation-wide affair and not simply a Los Angeles or a California exhibition. Promises of exhibits from northern firms and from firms as far east as Chicago have already been promised and when the exhibition committee gets through with its work, there will, no doubt, be a great many of every line connected with the florists', seed and nursery trades who will want to exhibit their lines.

The large sunken garden in the park will be used as the exhibition ground and during the remainder of the spring and summer this will be planted to various perennials, shrubs, annuals and other stock, so that it will be at its best in October. Many of the nurserymen who propose to exhibit have promised to leave behind their exhibits, wholly or in part, to be used as the park commissioners think fit for the beautification of the park after the show is over. Dahlia growers will do the same thing, reserving, however, the right to take away their rare seedlings and novelties of which only small stocks are in existence. Funds will be forthcoming to keep a large staff of men at work during the whole season, laying out the lawns and walks and arranging the permanent exhibits. This end of the business will be under the superintendency of O. W. Howard, who is at present working on the plans for it. Efficient committees, all imbued with the necessity of hard work, will have all the various details in hand and there is no doubt that a unique and epoch-marking show will be the result. It is worthy of note, too, that the Pasadena Horticultural Society's show and possibly the Avocado Growers' Association show will be held in conjunction.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

The Market.

Although there have been Easter celebrations during which more stock has been sold than in the one just passed, it is a question if there has been a more generally satisfactory one from a retailer's point of view. A complete clean-up at good prices clearly describes the situation. No doubt, a great many more lilies could have been sold, even at the high prices asked, but other plants were taken in their places. This helped the grower of rambler roses, heathers, cinerarias, hydrangeas and other popular pot plants. It is worthy of remark that a few days before Easter retailers were feeling blue. There was little doing and prospects were not good. But later in the week a marked change was noted, and "she went with a whiz," as one retailer put it. Probably never before was so little stock left after a holiday. Monday, March 28, there was a rush to obtain stock at the market, an unusual condition following a holiday. Valley in pots was a popular subject and sold well at good prices. Cut valley and orchids were equal to the demand, and roses were more plentiful than had been foretold. Daffodils were scarce, as the season for these has been a short one. Greens were plentiful.

Various Notes.

A rush of funeral work, in addition to a good Easter business, kept everyone busy at Wolfskill's & Morris Goldenson's, and Albert Goldenson is well pleased.

roses and other choice pot stock in addition to elegant baskets and lilies. A good clean-up is reported.

At the store of the E. C. Ameling Co. a specialty is being made of the colonial bouquets of strawflowers and statice. These bouquets are showy and attractive. These, of course, ship any distance well and have proved popular. As briefly noted last week, Harold Ameling stole a march on his friends by getting married, and he and his charming bride have come in for many felicitations. A host of friends wish them every happiness. Incidentally a wonderful Easter business is reported.

The California Floral Co. says that its Easter business was excellent, but that many more good pot lilies could have been sold had they been procurable.

J. Roller, proprietor of the Athletic Club Florist, was all smiles after the holiday. "Cleaned out completely," was his remark.

Mr. Wolfskill, of the Orchid Flower Shop, Pasadena, says business was fine. He particularly noted the high-priced orders sent in from the east and middle west. This was in marked contrast to those sent to this city, as several retailers said that the general run of telegraph orders were not for such large amounts as usual.

John Bodger, Sr., of John Bodger & Sons Co., left March 26 to take a trip through Europe.

Wright's Flower Shop made a big clean-up for Easter. All of the many thousands of lilies grown at the greenhouses were sold. Some, of course, were wholesaled through shipping firms in the city, but a large proportion of them went by the retail route at the West Fourth street store.

A splendid Easter trade is reported by the Redondo Floral Co. H. R. R.

range to choose from, especially as to height, as they ran from one to five feet high. Sweet peas were of the highest quality and sold largely for corsages. Daffodils ranked foremost as cut flowers and also sold well as potted plants. The remainder of potted plants were Darwin tulips, genistas, cinerarias, hydrangeas, pelargoniums, rose plants and spiræas.

Various Notes.

The florists' window displays at Easter were certainly a credit to the trade. Good window displays mean good business and, judging by talks with the owners of the stores, everyone was more than pleased with the business done at Easter.

A. A. Kelly, of Kelly's Gardens, and also a state representative, addressed the Florists' Club at its regular meeting, which was held April 5. H. H.

SAN FRANCISCO.The Market.

Stock is now plentiful, with the exception of carnations, sweet peas and orchids. There are plenty of roses, both cut and potted. Violets will have ended their season, locally, about April 10, and few daffodils remain in the market. Ranunculi are just coming in. On the whole, the market, since Easter, has been supplied with quantities of stock in the nature of spring flowers.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association of San Francisco has not wished to make any premature announcements regarding its important plans. However, P. Vincent Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., has consented to make the following statement for The Review: "At a special meeting of the Retail Florists' Association held March 17, every florist present subscribed toward the new wholesale flower market, which will be called the San Francisco Flower Market and will be composed of all the American wholesale growers and all the retail florists. At that meeting, we had $55,000 subscribed. On the following Sunday, March 20, a committee composed of V. Podesta, Victor Ferrari and myself held a meeting at Colma, Cal., for the purpose of getting more growers to subscribe. All who were present subscribed, bringing the total up to $62,000. So far, we have not quite half of the growers and florists enlisted in the movement. At the next meeting we expect to have all the florists and growers present and expect to have the full amount subscribed for the purchase of a 5-story building, to cost $150,000." Although Mr. Matraia did not say so, it is generally understood that the building is already selected and negotiations for its purchase have been in progress for some little time. However, no announcements can be made regarding the building till contracts are signed and other necessary matters attended to.

A large number of residents of San Francisco were reminded of absent friends by the action of the Retail Florists' Association, aided by the Western

HOWARD & SMITH'S NEW GIANT NON-LATERAL BRANCHING ASTERS.

It is needless for us to extol the qualities of this new strain of asters, for they are better than any other strain in America today for florists' use. They combine a flower of mammoth proportions with a long stem practically free of any laterals. These asters are the result of several years' work beginning with the crossing on non-lateral branching types of the Peony-flowered class and those of the Crego type. These asters have come to stay and the strain will prove a money-maker for anyone who grows it. They are something different.

Peony Flowered Peach Blossom (incurved). A superb new color, flowers of enormous size, stems 18 to 24 inches.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

Peony Flowered Light Blue (incurved).
A magnificent shade, flowers $4\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 inches.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

New Giant Peach Blossom (curled).
A magnificent new type with curled and twisted petals after the style of the most ultra-refined Comet type with flowers borne erect on long stems non-lateral in character.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

New Giant Dark Purple (curled).
A fine companion to the foregoing flowers, enormous in size with petals beautifully curled and twisted.
Per trade packet, $2.00.

HOWARD & SMITH'S NEW GIANT PLUMED CELOSIA.
A splendid new class of feathered Cockscombs of the Pyramidals type. The plants attain a height of three feet and over and are surmounted with immense gracefully feathered plumes remarkable for their great size and splendid range of colors. The plants are easily raised from seed and make ideal pot plants for stock work. The colors range from yellow through various shades of rose, carmine, crimson, bronze, etc., and a batch of plants grown from seed will prove remunerative.
Per trade packet, $1.00.

NEW ANEMONE FLOWERED DAHLIAS.

Unquestionably one of the most distinct breaks which has occurred in cultivated plants in modern times. The blossoms are replicas of the Marguerite Mrs. Fred Sander or Pyrethrum roseum in shape. The ray petals are broad and usually of a different color from the center, quilled petals of the flower. A feature of these new dahlias is the fact that they can be reproduced about 80% true to type from seed.

Plants dwarf in habit with the blossoms borne well above the foliage on strong wiry stems. The color variations are marked, ranging from purest white through the various shades of rose, pink, orange, bronze, carmine, purple, yellow, crimson, etc. Spring sown seeds will flower the same summer. For basket work, or any choice cut flower arrangements they are unrivaled and their keeping qualities are remarkable. We predict their universal use as a choice cut flower.

Per trade packet, $2.00.

GYPSOPHILA ELEGANS GRANDIFLORA.

A much improved strain worthy of your attention as a catch crop in the greenhouse with much larger flowers than those of the older types; an H. & S. selection worth a trial.

Per trade packet, $1.00.

DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA.

The strain we offer is the true, skyblue, perpetual flowering type which is rapidly becoming an indispensable subject in all florists' establishments.

Per trade packet, $1.00.

UNITED FLOWER & SUPPLY CO., Inc.

Wholesale Florists, Shippers and Growers

448 Bush Street

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The utmost enthusiasm was aroused among the San Francisco florists by the success of the Easter trade. Some of them declare that it surpassed the Christmas business, and not a few assert that they were sold out before closing time on the Saturday preceding Easter. These include F. C. Jaeger & Son, Joseph's and the MacRorie-McLaren Co.

"The best business we have ever had since the store was started," was the statement regarding Easter made by the United Flower & Supply Co. "We cleaned up everything and, in spite of the large stock on hand, the supply was not equal to the demand."

Domoto Bros. not only disposed of a big stock of Easter lilies, but also sold large quantities of potted azaleas, hydrangeas and rhododendrons. The wholesale demand for these was large. M. Domoto believes that all his varieties of lilies will be in good condition for Memorial day. In addition, he has plenty of roses, Darwin tulips and white and purple lilac coming from the nurseries.

Although it was somewhat late for violets, Enomoto & Co. successfully tried the experiment of shipping 150 dozen violets to Baltimore for the Easter trade. On Easter Sunday Mr. Enomoto's new car, containing his wife and children, was smashed in a collision with the machine of a careless autoist. The chauffeur was hurt, but the other members of the party were uninjured.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. has nice tulips and carnations coming in from the nurseries. The remodeled premises of this firm, on St. Anne street, give ample space for a display of baskets, twine and cord, which are all being offered to the trade.

Largely as a window decoration, George P. Wagner, of Joseph's, designed a cross, six and one-half feet in height, of heather and white lilac springing from a bank of Easter lilies. A tourist, reputed to be one of the richest women in the United States, saw the cross, bought it and had it shipped to the home of a friend.

L. J. Capurro, manager of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is proud of the fact that no milliner's creation in the city surpassed the popularity of the Easter hat designed by the staff in his store. It was a big hat of plain white straw, Mrs. R. E. Darbee's staff worked hard at Easter and were sold out, not once, but three times. The store is showing some fine ranunculus in gorgeous colors.

Albert O. Stein has, as usual, been executing many decorations for society events. A recent dinner for sixty guests in the Colonial ballroom of the St. Francis hotel was carried out in colonial style. The table, 18x40 feet, carried sixteen gilded colonial columns, garlanded and surmounted by spring flowers. In the center of the table, in tessellated style, were black carpets on little platforms. They were two feet square, garlanded, and were the background for little dancing girls, in colors. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Generally speaking, entire satisfaction is expressed among florists over the result of Easter. All those who bought carefully were able to clean up. Taking the trade as a whole, it is safe to estimate that there were as many buyers of flowers this Easter as there have been in previous seasons, and in some cases the piling up of an equal sales total clearly shows that there was an increase in the number of patrons buying flowers. All of the lilies offered early were of fine quality, but in most cases it was noticeable that the plants having two, three or four blooms were the quickest sellers. Still another proof that the buyers were anxious to secure medium-priced items was to be found in the fact that the larger and higher-priced rose plants had to be carried over. There was less of a concentration on Easter lilies this year than in previous years, according to many florists, who said they found the brighter-colored spring offerings in pots moving freely.

There were no new offerings brought in for the Easter week itself, but heavier deliveries of lilacs and rhododendrons were noted. Potted tulips are in lighter demand at this time, since this was the first of the spring offerings to become plentiful, but hyacinths are just as free sellers as ever. There has been a surprisingly good demand for ferns of late, the larger plants catching the buyers' eyes first. Hydrangeas are coming to hand in splendid condition, the greater share of current deliveries being far stronger as to stem than were those grown in former seasons. Primroses and cinerarias are in large enough supply to care for the current demand.

There has been some increase seen in the local cut of orchids, but this still falls short of normal. Lily of the valley is more plentiful, while the cut of bouvardia is less. There is still rather a shortage of gardenias.

Marked improvement is seen in the quality of the local carnations. There has been a still further increase in the cut of local roses.

Various Notes.

J. L. Bourn, of Bourn & Sons, Yakima, was a visitor last week. This firm is shipping a good many carnations and sweet peas into the Seattle market at this time. The latter flowers are of especially fine quality. A good crop of asters for shipment to eastern cities is

Telegraph Delivery Department

The florists whose cards appear on the pages carrying this head, are prepared to fill orders from other florists for local delivery on the usual basis.

The World and We Florists

Only one Christmas Day,
One only day, New Year's Day,
And we have only one day Easter.
F. T. D. Day
We have every day,
But not everybody knows it.
Now get busy.
Make the whole world know it
That we F. T. D.'s are on the job.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

Meeting at New York.

A meeting of the publicity committee of the S. A. F. was held at the society's administration offices, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, Thursday, March 17. There were present: Chairman Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; J. Fred. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; George Asmus, Chicago; Secretary John Young, New York, and Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston.

Mr. Asmus outlined the publicity work of the Allied Florists' Trade Association of Illinois, especially insofar as it related and contributed to the national publicity campaign. Concluding his remarks, he handed to the secretary a check for $1,179.63, being twenty-five per cent of the total amount collected by the association for publicity purposes during the month of December, 1920.

Secretary Young submitted a financial report for the months of January and February, showing receipts from all sources to have been $20,293.91. A supplementary report to March 17 showed additional receipts amounting to $1,844.63. The secretary was instructed to write to all delinquent subscribers, urging that remittances on subscription guarantees be made promptly, so that

A New Year's Thought

Let us learn to feel the joy in things that are simple and universal—in the beauty of the dawn, of sunset and of flowers. Let us cultivate a feeling of tenderness for all living creatures, from the dumb and patient animals to our brother man. Would you learn these deeper values in life? Study the flowers.

For More Local Campaigns.

Mr. Ammann made a report covering his field work in connection with the campaign. He expressed himself as heartily in accord with the plan of organizing allied trade associations in every district, and declared his willingness to devote his entire time to such work for a limited period, but pointed out that it would be impossible for him

The Tart Tale Of The Tisket Tasket Basket

That $5 Hobby Box of Mine, and the $5 Happy Hap Fern proved such comforting little business builders, that I began looking around for another $5 favorite.

One day in comes a darling little girl of seven sunny summers, who was humming the tune of that delightful old children's game, "Tisket a Tasket, a green and yellow basket"—you know the rest, how it ends in a kiss.

There, then, was the very idea. A Tisket Tasket Basket filled with flowers of sunshine and laughter.

And so now we have the $5 trio: My Hobby Box, The Happy Hap Fern, The Tisket Tasket Basket.

Next time you have a $5 F. T. D. customer, wire us to send any of the trio.

raising of a continuous fund for financing the national publicity campaign.

Mr. Asmus outlined a proposed plan to send Mr. Ammann on a trip to the west and northwest, to visit the trade in and around fifteen or more of the larger cities in the interests of the campaign. Mr. Ammann announced his readiness to start on such a trip sometime after May 1. The project received the unanimous approval of those present. Further particulars in regard to this trip will be forthcoming later.

Free Advertising.

Major O'Keefe gave his views in regard to many questions as to practical ways of continuing the campaign, and submitted a large collection of colored pages, showing how generously flowers were being featured in the advertising of many prominent concerns in the country, from which florists certainly received a great deal of benefit without any cost whatever.

Mr. Asmus was authorized to prepare and send out an inexpensive folder as part of an immediate effort to dispose

That all subscribers to the campaign fund might be informed as to the financial status of the campaign, the secretary was instructed to issue a folder showing the amount of money subscribed, the money received, sums not yet collected and the amounts received from allied trade associations and other sources, with a summary of disbursements under general headings. He was also instructed to send to the trade papers a list of subscriptions and cash received from all sources from January 1, 1921, and to send other lists at proper intervals.

Many plans and suggestions were considered looking to an immediate resumption of the national advertising, but action was deferred pending developments. John Young, Sec'y.

NASHVILLE.

The Market.

Easter was an exceptionally warm, sunshiny, beautiful day and was preceded by an equally delightful week. The unusual warmth and the abundance of sunshine had made most of the outdoor spring bulbous flowers a thing of the past. In fact, everything conspired to make the Easter business exceptionally good. Never before in the history of Nashville were there more high-grade lilies. There were many short, stocky plants, each one with five or six good blooms. The growers had timed matters just right in order to have everything at its best. The sunshine had brought on a heavy crop of both roses and carnations. In fact, for once Nashville had more high-class cut flowers than it could use locally on a major holiday.

Business started in early. A week before Easter many plants were already being delivered, and everybody was busy. This large business before Easter, however, did not seem to cut down the rush during the day and evening of March 26.

There was a comparatively small supply of hyacinths, cyclamens and cinerarias. Perhaps the shortage on other pot plants helped in the sale of lilies. At any rate, there was no surplus stock left on hand. Some of the florists sold out entirely, and the others say that they can make good use of the few that were left over.

Out-of-town orders for delivery in New York carefully and promptly filled at reasonable rates

Heavy rains and cold weather following on the heels of Easter made it possible for the growers to get their breath and clean up a bit before the rush in summer bedding plants.

Various Notes.

Plans are being laid by the local iris society in conjunction with the national society to hold an iris show here sometime near the middle of April. The date has not been definitely fixed yet, because of the uncertainty of the season. A dahlia show was held last fall. While these shows are not largely attended by outside people, they arouse a great deal of interest in the city and vicinity, and are decidedly increasing the sale of outdoor stock. No doubt more irises and dahlias are being bought here this year than in any other year in the history of the city. In fact, there are two or three rather large collections of iris here at present.

The trial garden of Siberian iris, in connection with the Nashville Agricultural Normal Institute and under the direction of Professor Floyd Bralliar, is being set this spring. Mr. Bralliar has collected over 100 of the better varieties of bearded iris. He reports some hybrids between the Siberian and the regular, tall, bearded iris that will bloom this spring.

The Market.

The market last week was flooded with all lines of good stock, much of which had been timed for Easter, but had come in a few days too late. This made the supply almost a glut. However, several large funerals in the early part of the week used up a great deal, but, as the supply increased as the week advanced and the demand stood at normal, there was somewhat of a congestion towards the end. Friday afternoon, April 1, every wholesale house was overstocked, the supply was not abating, the stores could not handle all on hand and it had to be moved or thrown out.

LARGEST AMOUNT OF GLASS DEVOTED TO CUT FLOWERS IN THE SOUTH

There was just one thing to do. That was to give the street men a chance at it. This was done, and while the less said about the prices the better, yet in this way much of it was disposed of. It was an off week in the market, but let us hope it will only be temporary. Roses, which were plentiful, were of the finest quality. They were to be had in any quantity, and all of the varieties were represented. Carnations were never of finer quality and were nearing the glut stage. Sweet peas that were at a premium just one week before were to be had in the finest shades and quality in almost any quantity. Lilies, that should have been in for Easter, were going begging. Callas, which seemed to start late this winter, were making up for lost time. Bulbous stock eased up considerably. It seemed that most of this had been held back for Easter and was used up. There was plenty of miscellaneous stock of all sorts. Asparagus was plentiful, but smilax was short.

There was a good supply of hydrangea plants that had missed Easter. There was little demand for them.

But, while there was some congestion, it will not last long. Conditions seemed to indicate that everything will be back to normal in a short time. The whole thing was caused by a temporary abnormal supply.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club is going to play a prominent part in the Flower Mart to be held at the base of Washington's monument by the Women's Civic League this year. Last year the club cooperated with the ladies in this good work. It was then that some of the members realized that it was a good thing and reported so to the club. The object of the market is to educate the public in using more flowers about the home, to sell plants at the lowest possi-

Boone, Miss Grace Vincent, Miss Mildred Burger, Mrs. Robert L. Graham, Jr., Miss Glass, Mrs. C. Harry Wagner and Mrs. John J. Perry. These ladies are all connected with the business. The men's committee is composed of Robert L. Graham, Jr., chairman; H. Clay Primrose, James Glass, Henry J. Betz, George Morrison, William F. Ekas, Joseph S. Merritt, William J. Kennedy, Charles R. Jones, George A. Eberle, C. Harry Wagner, William Keir, Mr. Primrose, Robert W. Johnston, Arthur Richmond, Thomas Stevenson and William F. Keys, Jr. The chairmen of these two committees will get their members together and devise ways and means of how best to manage this project. The primary object from their standpoint will be to get the greatest amount of publicity for the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

The evening of Tuesday, April 12, promises to be the biggest flower evening ever seen in our city. E. Gurney Hill, of Richmond, Ind., will deliver his lecture, "Roses I Have Met at Home and Abroad." It was proposed to hold this lecture on the next club night, which is April 11, but this could not be arranged; so it was changed to April 12.

The roof garden of the Southern hotel is to be the place. This will accommodate an audience of about 1,000. The entertainment committee, with Joseph S. Merritt as chairman, and Robert Halliday, an old friend of Mr. Hill, is working it up, and is sparing no pains to make this the greatest rose night Baltimore has ever witnessed. A display of commercial roses will be an added attraction to Mr. Hill's lecture. Those in charge are sending invitations to all the known rose lovers in the city and tickets will be given to each club member for distribution as he may see fit. There was some question about the Southern roof garden being too large for this lecture, but from present indications it is going to be too small. Mr. Hill is well known in Baltimore and

The Market.

Wholesale market conditions last week greatly favored the retailers, as the daily receipts far exceeded the demand and prices were cut to fit the quantity and quality. The retailers say that business, as is usual just after a big flower day like Easter, was somewhat slow. Even society held off a week and nothing of any importance came from this source. According to the society columns of the daily press, there will soon be considerable doings in the way of weddings, receptions and parties. Therefore business among the retailers should be rushing, especially since spring is in the air again and the cold, disagreeable weather has left us. Among the consignments noticed last week was a great crop of excellent roses, of which only the extra fancy stock held up in price. Among them were Premier, Ophelia, Columbia, Russell, a few American Beauty and a large supply of splendid Killarney and Milady. Carnations were abundant and fell in price considerably during the week, especially in thousand lots. Sweet peas of the long, fancy grades were not numerous, but the majority of the consignments were of the poorer grades. With more clear weather, receipts of these will increase. Easter lilies and callas were in good demand for funeral work and in these the prices remained stationary. Snapdragons arrived freely and brought top prices for select spikes. Marguerites, calendulas, pansies and mignonette, as usual, sold well. Bulbous stock is almost cut out and the buyers are awaiting the outdoor cut. Valley dragged somewhat last week, but the demand should now revive greatly. In greens everything desirable is to be had and the demand generally cleans up the market daily.

an important meeting Thursday afternoon, April 14. J. F. Ammann will deliver a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, on the subject of "Publicity." George H. Pring will also show interesting pictures of the recent New York exhibition. The officers of the club will meet this week and decide upon a meeting place large enough to hold the large attendance expected. The secretary will send out special notices to all members.

George H. Pring, horticulturist at the Missouri Botanical Garden, reports that the cold weather which started Easter Sunday did great damage to vegetation in general. As the mercury registered as low as 19 degrees above zero, he believes that all the early fruit crops, which were in full bloom, were destroyed. Other authorities in the state are of the same opinion.

Joseph Witek will break ground this week for the erection of his new store, adjoining his present location. It is said that the new structure, including the show house, will cost $50,000.

Correspondence received from Sar-coxie, Mo., states that the famous peony fields there will be in full bloom two weeks earlier than usual this year, which means about May 1. As great shipments from there come to this market each year, the early cut may cause a shortage for Decoration day.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral
Co. is marketing a fine lot of caleco-larias from the greenhouses in Kirkwood and these are in great demand among local retailers.

Joseph Frank, who has a floral department in Kresge's 5 and 10-cent store, reports great business at Easter and since then. Mr. Frank aids greatly in relieving the market of surplus stock after the ordinary members of the trade have finished buying.

All the plant stands in the Union Market, which did wonderful business up to March 28, were obliged to close cellent run of business.

"Bill" Smith and Tom Carr, who admire high-class dogs, visited the dog show at the Coliseum last week. Mr.
Smith would have entered his famous dachshund, Longfellow, but found no bench long enough to hold him.

The cold weather in the early part of last week stopped the great rush of business among seedsmen, nurserymen and landscape architects, but at this writing the big rush is on again.

George H. Pring, while attending the international flower show in New York, gave an illustrated lecture at the Brooklyn Botanical Garden. His subject was "The Missouri Botanical Garden."

Dr. Herman Von Schrenk, of the St.
Louis Garden Club, attended the central states forestry conference at the Union League Club, Chicago, as a delegate from Missouri and was appointed a member of the executive committee and chairman of the Missouri delegaing, has been confined to bed by illness since Easter and it is reported that she will not be able to attend to business for at least a month.

Miss Gussie Malloy, for many years in the employ of Grimm & Gorly, has resigned that position and is now employed at Vandervoort's floral department.

The florists on the east side, among them Grimm & Gorly and Miss L. Dousard, say there never was a better Easter business than this year. At Belleville, Gust W. Grossart, W. E. Ogle, A. G. Fehr, Mat Shoenenberger and Henry Emunds all say it was one of the best Easters they know of.

Henry G. Berning reports that while local demand was not so great last week, shipping trade kept up wonderfully well, considering that the week after Easter is always a little slow.

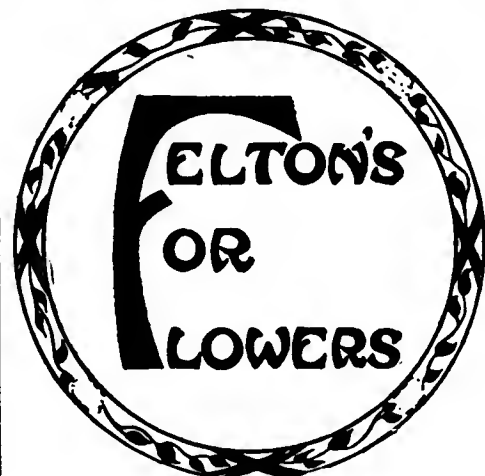

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has put in several busy weeks in the shipping of supplies to western points.

Hembreiker & Cole, of Springfield, Ill., supplied the local trade, through the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., with a fine lot of potted Easter lilies. Nearly 5,000 were disposed of during Easter week.

George Madsen, head of the Alton Floral Co., and Mrs. Joseph Krug, Alton, Ill., had their hands full during the Easter rush, and say it was one of the best in years.

The bowlers started again March 30, but, as is usual after a big flower day like Easter, the boys were tired and poor scores were made. The Roses lost one of the three games to the Sweet

SALT LAKE CITY.

The Market.

Business last week was good, considering that Easter had just passed. Rose prices dropped after Easter and an abundance of shorts in all varieties were offered. Ophelia, Columbia and Dunlop are in big demand and clean up every day. Medium roses are in smaller supply and what are to be had move well. Carnations are in good supply. Laddie cleans up well at all times. The sweet pea supply is beginning to be short, and more could be handled, were they available.

Easter Report.

The prediction before Easter that business would be good was certainly fulfilled. Never in the history of Salt Lake City was so much stock moved during Easter week.

The weather March 24 and 25 was not so good as it might have been, but a warm, sunshiny day March 26 filled every store with eager buyers. Although the supply of Easter lilies was about the same as last year, the demand was so much greater that it was impossible to buy an Easter lily in Salt Lake City on the afternoon of March 26, and most of the stores were cleaned out on this item early March 25. After the lilies were gone hyacinths, tulips, rambles, spiræas and a large variety of other plants cleaned up in rapid-fire order. Cut flowers did not move well until late March 26, but as soon as the pot plant supply began to get low the tide turned to cut flowers, with the consequence that some of the stores sent an S. O. S. to the growers late on the night of March 26, to rush in cut flowers.

The quality of the stock this year was the best seen for a long time. Prices were lower this year, but the volume of business was so much greater that the receipts were just about as good. Let

Various Notes.

Albert Alt, of the Huddart Floral Co., reports Easter business as being more than he expected. He put in a much larger stock than ever before, but was forced to send rush orders to his growers at the last minute. Mr. Alt says he always writes himself a letter after each big flower day and tells himself not to try to do more business than he can handle. But his Easter business shows that these letters do not have much effect on the recipient.

Ernest Lambourne reports a record business. Mr. Lambourne was badly handicapped through the sickness of his right-hand man, Arthur Granshaw, who is laid up with rheumatism. It is hoped that he will soon be around again.

Miss Childs, of the B. C. Morris Floral Co., was exceptionally pleased with Easter results. Miss Childs ordered a much larger stock this year than last, the plant supply gone. One of the company's trucks was kept busy all afternoon hauling plants from the greenhouses. As fast as they could be obtained, they were sold.

The Ideal Floral Co., 38 South Main street, reports that everything salable was sold and more could have been disposed of had it been obtainable.

At the Miller Floral Co. greenhouses, Farmington, the only plants left are a few which did not show color last week. Seven truckloads of plants were sent to the city on the afternoon of March 26. Orders for that much more stock could have been obtained, but the supply soon ran out and everything that looked like a flower was cleaned up.

One of the finest windows ever seen in Salt Lake City was in evidence from March 21 to 26, at the store of the Miller Floral Co. A large Easter egg, a chicken farm, with little chickens in abundance, Easter lilies, spiræas and rambler roses were used. The entrance to an inn, named the "Chick inn," was built in the window. Crowds of interested spectators could be found before the window at any time during the entire week. So big was this gathering that it was a hard matter to get along the street. It was certainly a fine window and much credit is due the artist, G. J. B.

good sale for sweet peas, the demand fell off considerably on roses and carnations.

Many lilies, which just missed Easter, also came to the market during the week, and the supply in general is above the demand now.

The principal demand at Easter was for Easter lilies. While there was a good supply, they all sold. Rambler roses and hydrangeas were not up to the usual standard, and the demand for these plants was not so heavy as for lilies.

Most growers now are busy with their spring bedding stock, and are getting ready for a big season's business. P.

TOLEDO.

The Market.

Now that the Easter rush is over, things are settling down to a pre-Lenten basis. The trade does not expect any great returns at once, except that the Easter rush cleaned up everything in sight for the growers, and the consequent necessary replenishing of stock keeps everyone busy. The city's shortage of wholesale facilities compels most of the retailers to depend on outside sources for such stock as roses, valley, violets and so on. Everything seemed to sell well for Easter and, judging by the appearance of the retail stores, everyone must have done well. This condition is remarkable in view of the fact that half of the people in town are idle, as most of the industries that are operating at all are only working about four days a week.

Various Notes.

Metz & Bateman closed their doors the day before Easter at 5 p. m. No more orders were taken.

Max Spanner enjoyed the best Easter of his career as a florist.

The Central Flower Shop maintains the high standard of the late Mrs. J. B. Freeman, and reports Easter as the best in the history of the store.

The Easter business of Feniger's Flower Shop was the best ever and many were turned away because everything had been sold out. H. E. K.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

JOSEPH ZISKA & SONS, 169-175 North Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

"The biggest Easter we ever had."
"Not half enough stock to go around."
"What wonderful weather!" These and many more expressions were heard from practically every florist in town in regard to their Easter business. Indeed, everyone was busy and it is an acknowledged fact that considerably more stock could have been sold if it had been procurable. Every available flower was picked and sold.

Since the holiday, business has been good. Weddings have been quite numerous and several large parties have called for fairly good decorations. On top of this, there has been much funeral work, which has considerably helped to reduce the large amount of stock on hand. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, and prices are low. The large quantities of stock reaching us just two or three days after the holiday caused prices to go down in order to clear.

Roses are particularly low in price, while the quality is excellent. Carnations are plentiful, but the heavy cuts caused them to slow up a trifle towards the week-end. Daffodils remain in heavy supply, although they cannot last much longer at the rate they have been coming. Sweet peas are plentiful, but the long-stemmed stock is off for a while. Stocks of a good medium grade reaches us and clears well. Calendulas are in good demand and have an even sale. Myosotis and mignonette are of good quality and sell well in basket combinations arranged with yellow daisies. Orchids and gardenias are having a fairly good market of late. Last week violets were exceptionally good and the supply heavy, but the sale on them has been small. Snapdragons are reaching us in several varied shades and have a ready sale. Paper Whites, freesias and poeticus narcissi are slowing up considerably. Valley is plentiful and is being used more readily of late. Lilies and callas are somewhat scarce.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Joachim Schult, Hilton, N. Y., is contemplating the erection of a small greenhouse, which will be built near the roadway and will adjoin the present house. Business is growing well and is necessitating this expansion.

H. E. Rogers, Spencerport and Brockport, N. Y., reports excellent business during the Easter rush. His new store, in Brockport, is proving to be a marked success. Business there was much better than he had anticipated. At the Spencerport range, everything was cleaned up except the bedding stock, which is making good progress.

George T. Boncher, who for several years has decorated the Armory for the Rochester Policemen's ball, has obtained the job again this year. The decorations are to be elaborate.

Dewey Lester, who for several years has been connected with the florists business in Rochester, has been accepted by the government as a postal clerk and has been sent to New York city.

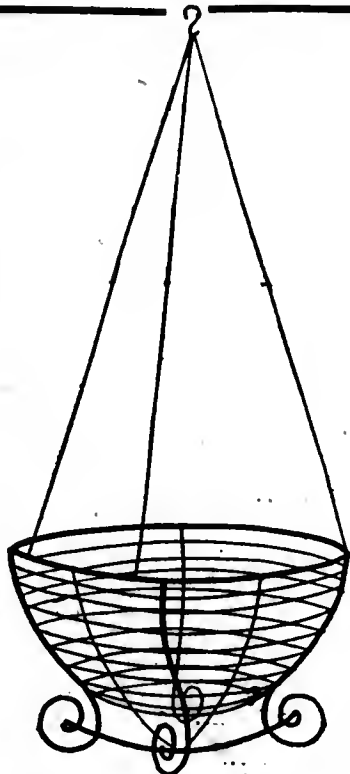

Vick, the Florist, Charlotte, N. Y., reports unusually good business for the Easter trade, saying it was the biggest he ever had. He has been quite active recently, having a good quantity of funeral work each day.

There is a question now on the minds of the growers as to what flowers will be in the market for Memorial day trade. Florists say that never in their history has stock been so closely cleaned up as at this time. Outdoor shrubbery is almost in leaf in some sheltered spots and blossoms are occasionally seen.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

GEORGE J. CANNON, a prominent seed grower of Buckeye, Wash., was last week elected to the office of vice-president of the Washington Farm Bureau Federation.

THE cold spell last week halted the stream of gardeners that had been pouring into Chicago seed stores, but Ralph B. Howe, manager of the W. W. Barnard Co., reports that business is still up to that of previous seasons.

BOOTHS at the "Own Your Own Home" show at the Coliseum, Chicago, last week occupied by Vaughan's Seed Store and J. Oliver Johnson, drew far more attention than those devoted to the exhibition of mechanical household devices and construction materials.

HEADQUARTERS of G. Willett Warren, who is establishing a selling service for seedsmen, are not at St. Louis, but at Lansing, Mich., at 519 Oakland building. He plans to act as a clearing house for dealers in seeds, bulbs, nursery stock and allied lines everywhere.

PENNSYLVANIA SEED BILL.

Having passed the lower house, the Pennsylvania "pure seed bill" is now before the state senate for passage. It has the support of Secretary of Agriculture Fred Rasmussen, by whom it was drafted and who would be the enforcing officer under its provisions. The bill goes into detail in specifying both the species of agricultural seeds and of noxious weeds and the percentages of weed seeds which would be allowed in specified quantities of agricultural seeds offered for sale. Varieties of agricultural seeds mentioned in the act are the Canada and Kentucky blue grass, brome grass, fescues, millets, tall meadow oat grass and orchard grass, redtop, Italian rye grass, kafir corn, perennial rye grass, sorghum, sudan grass, timothy, alfalfa, alsike, clover, crimson, red, sweet and white clover, Canada field peas, cow peas, soy beans, vetches, buckwheat, flax, rape, barley, field corn, grains, forage plants and other grasses, legumes, cereals and vegetables.

Wild onion or garlic, quack grass, dodders, Canada thistle, devil's paint brush, King Devil, perennial sow thistle, horse nettle and bindweed are the specified varieties of noxious weeds.

The bill would make it unlawful to offer for sale any seeds in bulk packages without labels carrying the accepted names of the seed, the percentage of weight of purity and the percentage of weed seeds, and the name and approximate number per ounce of each kind of weed seeds present. It would also require the name and address of the vender of the seed and the country or locality of origin of certain imported seeds, including Turkestan alfalfa, Italian-grown red clover, Italian-grown alfalfa and red clover grown in Chili.

Under the terms of the act, whenever the secretary obtains information that any seeds which are considered unfit for use are being offered for sale, he may apply for an injunction to restrain the sale, may take samples and proceed against violators. THIRTY YEARS IN CALIFORNIA.John Bodger's Rise.

John Bodger, president of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Cal., is celebrating his seventy-fifth birthday year by touring the seed growing centers of Europe.

He will first visit his boyhood home, in Somersetshire, England, where he began his career as a florist, nurseryman and seedsman. For thirty years after his early marriage he catered to a steadily growing trade and a still more rapidly increasing family, until on the advice of a well known London seedsman, who had visited San Francisco in the year 1880, he decided to dispose of his retail business in England and start life over again in California as a grower. The year 1891 found him established with his family in Ventura county, growing flower and vegetable seed on a scant acre of poor ground. For the first ten years the new enterprise had a hard struggle for life. This is not strange, considering the fact that Mr. Bodger and his sons were handicapped by scanty knowledge of California farming conditions, by adverse weather, and, last but not least, by insufficient funds. However, the whole family put in their best efforts, and Mr. Bodger steadfastly fixed his hopes on that success which his sanguine nature believed to be always just around the corner. Today his dreams have been abundantly realized—one might say literally a thousandfold—as the firm of which he is still an active member has expanded from a 1-acre plot to considerably over 1,000 acres of rich soil, employing scientific methods and the most up-to-date machinery.

New Asters and Zinnias.

The firm grows standard varieties of flower and vegetable seeds, but Mr. Bodger's personal favorites among the flowers are asters and zinnias, and for the last ten years, working in conjunction with his sons, he has not only perfected the older varieties of asters and zinnias, but has created many entirely new types. Prominent among the asters is the long-stemmed Beauty type, a valued addition to the florists' collection. Chief among the zinnias is that magnificent "new race," known as dahlia-flowered. Authorities on the subject agree that this new type is as important an advance in the development of the zinnia as was the Spencer selection in the history of the sweet pea. So large are these zinnias, so velvety in texture and so charming in color range that they have risen from their humble place as the plebeian of "grandma's garden" to the proud patrician of exclusive florists' shops. The demand for these flowers is so great that the company is devoting 200 acres this season to asters and zinnias alone.

Sons Carry On Work.

While Mr. Bodger is in Europe, his firm will be carrying on business as usual under the able supervision of his sons, Walter Bodger, vice-president, John C. Bodger, secretary, and Tom M. Bodger, superintendent. The photograph on page 104 was taken just before Mr. Bodger and his wife started for New York, where they will embark for Southampton, sailing April 12.

Present Activities.

Good rains followed by good planting weather have made the prospects for a normal crop of seeds at the Bodger farms good. The company reports an exceptional run on surplus stock of flower seeds, especially asters and zinnias. There has been a marked increase in sales during the last three or four years, says John C. Bodger, since the introduction of the new strains and novelties, and he prophesies that in a few more years the zinnia will be the most popular annual flower grown. He bases this assertion on the many complimentary letters and reports received from Seattle, Montreal, Texas and Florida, which go to show that these flowers will thrive in any climate and under any condition, which cannot be said of the aster and many other flowers which are used largely in florists' work.

The company has just planted out two and one-half acres under lath houses to aspidistras, both variegated and green, and hopes to be able to take care of the trade in that line in from two to three years. It also anticipates a successful growing season for Iris tingitana and hopes to find at digging time that the bulbs produced are of as fine quality as those imported from Europe. The company has planted 50,000 as a try-out.

SOY BEAN GOING NORTH.

The soy bean, an Asiatic importation, popularly associated with the south, is making its way north, and, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture, is being well received.

Most of the varieties first brought to this country were from parts of Asia whose climate corresponded more nearly to the southern states. Within the last seven or eight years the department has obtained about 300 introductions of soy beans from Manchuria, Korea and Japan, some of which grew as far north as the fifty-second parallel. The most promising northern varieties are the Black Eyebrow, the Mandarin and the Manchu, all native to a latitude of about 46 degrees, on account of which they are adapted to our most northern states. A large number of samples of Black Eyebrow soy bean were sent to northern farmers last year, and out of 551 reports returned more than 400 were favorable. Reports promise a great increase in acreage in northern states this year. Seedsmen are laying in supplies of these more northern varieties; but many farmers, if unable to obtain northern seed, will plant old varieties, such as Ito San. From ninety to ninety-five per cent of soy beans are raised for hay, silage and pasture, although they are prolific seed producers.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Hopedale Nurseries, Hopedale, Ill.—A condensed 12-page list, offering general nursery stock in a wide range of sizes, from small seedlings upward. Assortments of hardy perennials, bulbs and roots are included.

Jackson & Perkins Co., New York, N. Y.—"Bulletin No. 6," a wholesale nursery list, "showing varieties, grades and quantities available March 31, 1921." The first page is inscribed with a peculiarly animated-looking "P. D. Q.," which "is the basis," says the company, "on which we execute all orders during the shipping season."

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md.—Monthly wholesale list of dahlias, cannas, hardy chrysanthemums, geraniums, ageratum, ferns, palms and other plants and roots. The company emphasizes the fact that the April list "cancels all previous quotations and is made on a strictly cash basis."

Raynham, Mass.—F. O. Willard has two large houses filled with tomatoes, mostly Comet, on which a heavy crop is being produced. Business has been good this season.

Newtonville, Mass.—The Newton Rose Conservatories had a splendid Easter trade. Roses, hydrangeas, lilies, genistas and bulbous plants were the best sellers among plants, while in cut flowers, roses, sweet peas, carnations and daffodils were specially favored. The wife of R. C. Bridgman, proprietor of this establishment, is home from the hospital and is convalescing nicely from a serious operation.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

EARLY peonies in Tennessee are reported as heavily damaged by the frosts a week ago.

C. H. PERKINS II, of Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., called on the trade at Chicago last week. He made a trip to Minneapolis April 1, returning the following day to Chicago.

THE spring season in southwest Iowa has been exceptionally mild and stock was planted earlier than usual. There have recently been showers through the section, although a general rain is needed.

IN its second year of business the May Seed & Nursery Co., Shenandoah, Ia., reports a satisfactory increase over last year. A 15-acre tract of land has been purchased for experimental and trial ground purposes.

NURSERYMEN regard the cold spell last week as a godsend. "Stock can now be held sufficiently long to clean up, from present indications of the season's demands," said William A. Peterson, of Peterson Nursery, Chicago.

EDGAR STARK, of the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo., has been visiting southern California, putting in part of his time with an old friend, J. D. Meriweather, of the Armstrong Nurseries, Ontario, Cal.

Two bulletins of interest to nurserymen recently published by the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri are No. 176, "Nursery and Orchard Insect Pests," and No. 177, "Dipping and Fumigation of Nursery Stock."

MANY lines of ornamentals were sold out by April 1, report the Mount Arbor Nurseries, Shenandoah, Ia. They have shipped practically the same number of cars as at this time a year ago. A few lines are reported as slow, but, taken as a whole, demand has been good.

THE most striking exhibit at the "Own Your Own Home" show at the Coliseum, Chicago, last week was the planting by Swain Nelson & Sons Co. for small home grounds. Brick walks divided a lawn, made of moss, into plots that were artistically filled with evergreens from the Glenview nurseries of this company. The booth adjoining was constantly besieged by inquiries as to plantings suitable for each one's home. A handsome illustrated folder on landscape gardens was distributed.

THE attention of all nurserymen operating in the state of Washington, or maintaining agents there, is called to a recent law now in effect. Under its provisions, the state department of agriculture shall issue licenses to all "agents, salesmen or collectors" for all nurseries, "either in or out of the state." The agent's or collector's license costs but $1 per year, but the firm represented is required to take out a dealer's license, costing $5. This latter must also have with it a bond for $1,000, to be filed as surety with the state treasurer at Olympia, Wash.

SPRING packing is keeping C. R. Burr & Co., of Manchester, Conn., quite busy. An early spring with unseasonably hot weather is making nurserymen in that section hustle to get stock out.

PRACTICAL REFORESTATION.

Possibilities in the Project.

Reforestation is a subject which looms on the trade horizon like the mirage on the horizon of a desert. Perhaps the simile is incorrect in that the nursery business is not by any means a desert, yet the effect is the same. How puny the total nursery business in the United States seems when compared with the possibilities in reforesting millions of acres of waste or cut-over land! Unfortunately the mirage is only looming on the horizon. The nearer we get to it, the farther away it is.

The immensity of the project may be imagined from the following excerpt taken from an address by M. Mierisch, of Glenview, Ill., before the meeting of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association recently. He said: "With practically two-thirds of the original forests gone, according to the American Forestry Magazine, the United States contains 326,000,000 acres of cut-over or denuded forests, containing no saw timber. A great proportion of this land is not fit for agricultural purposes and the 81,000,000 acres of this completely devastated area of idle land is being increased by from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 acres annually. A reforestation policy is badly needed. We all may live to see the day when there will be laws passed compelling land owners to plant a new tree for every one cut down. A national forest program bill has been introduced in the Senate and in the House.

Nurserymen Logical Producers.

"Now, do you not want to take notice of these things? Do you want to wait until the time has arrived when there will be millions and millions of those forest plants needed? Then the government or the individual states will have to grow all of this stock, because it cannot be obtained from the nurserymen in sufficient quantity or in the desired varieties. True enough, we have one of the best and most up-to-date establishments right here in Illinois, at Dundee, and there are nurseries specializing in forest plants in the east, but whenever this country goes into reforestation there will be a tremendous shortage of stock."

Down to Brass Tacks.

The trouble seems to be where to begin. One of the immediate proposals is that the public roads in each state should be lined with shade trees. This, at least, is something definite and has already been started in some states. But under the present specifications for road building all the earth in the right of way is, in most cases, scraped off and used for the roadbed. On the side of the road, instead of a shoulder of good earth, there is a hollow of disfiguring rock or gravel.

The first move to make is to have legislation passed to change these specifications so that no road shall be built without a shoulder of earth on each side on which to plant trees if occasion should arise, is the suggestion of William A. Peterson, of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, who has been active in the work of the Forest Preserve Commission of Cook county.

Legislative bodies may not see the need for planting trees on roadways, but they can and will see the possibility that trees may need to be planted. If this possibility exists, it follows that specifications for road building should

BEWARE BLISTER RUST.

Prosecutions under Quarantine.

Many illegal shipments of currant and gooseberry bushes and 5-leaved pines have been made in the past four years, a large majority of them by nurserymen, states C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board. An analysis, made by this board of the violations of blister rust quarantines which have been discovered, shows that out of a total of 122, forty-nine nurseries were responsible for 105 of these prohibited shipments.

White pines were discovered, in a few shipments, under the name of Jack pine, or other yellow pines. Violations have occurred from Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana and Alabama. Some of the shipments were made from regions infected with blister rust, and a few came from nurseries known to have diseased stock the previous year.

All such violators of this quarantine will be prosecuted, says Mr. Marlatt. A number of convictions have already been secured. A force of inspectors is in the field, and drastic action will be taken to make the quarantine effective.

The coöperation of all nurserymen is requested by the board in upholding the federal and state blister rust quarantines. Federal Quarantine 26, effective June 1, 1917, prohibits the shipment of 5-leaved pines, currants or gooseberries from points east of and including Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana to points west of these states. This quarantine also prohibits the shipment of 5-leaved pines and black currants from New England and New York to any point outside of these sections, and prohibits, further, the shipment of 5-leaved pines and black currant plants from the New England states into the state of New York. These regulations are made to prevent the introduction of the blister rust into uninfected regions by the transportation of diseased host plants from infected areas and especially to protect the valuable western white pine forests. A single shipment of infected stock may cause great loss.

Traces Disease Ravages.

In order that common carriers and nurserymen may know the federal blister rust quarantine laws, and the regions to which they apply, a poster has been printed by the federal board, giving this information, and is being sent all nurserymen in the east, as well as certain freight and express agents and postmasters. Additional copies may be secured from the federal horticultural board at Washington, D. C. It is realized that carelessness on the part of nursery employees frequently is responsible for illegal shipments. The board would like to have this poster placed in packing sheds as a reminder of shipping restrictions.

Blister rust is widespread throughout New England, New York, western Wisconsin and northeastern Minnesota. All 5-leaved pines, currants and gooseberries shipped into the west prior to enactment of quarantine have been inspected, and no trace of the disease has been found west of the Great Plains. The western white and sugar pine forests comprise 55,000,000,000 feet of timber, and young growth of these species has exceptional value in future forest management. The safety of these forests depends upon keeping out the blister rust.

The Market.

One of the outstanding conclusions to be drawn from the Easter business is that it pays to advertise. Had there been a lingering regret on the part of any contributor to the publicity fund of the Florists' Club, it would have been swept away when the day's sales were checked up. This Easter was easily the best ever known. Those who have been in the business for many years were among those who were most surprised at the results. They did not expect such a clean-up. All the florists agree that advertising was largely responsible for it. Display advertising by the associated florists was run Palm Sunday and four other days of the week before Easter. In addition to this, various florists used display and classified space in the daily newspapers. It is believed that advertising lilies at 50 cents a bloom brought many buyers who would not have come had they not known the price. Advertising must have done the work, for the lily supply was exhausted early Saturday, March 26. The report of one florist is that of all, a clean-up, differing only in details.

There was a shortage of small stock, as $3 to $10 was the popular range, with a heavier sale below $5 than above. High-priced stock and fancy baskets did not take hold. Some of it was sold,

GRAFTED ROSES

Five hundred thousand this year and half of them sold! The old, worn-out section won't do for the days that are to come—days when production will tell the story of profit or loss. Labor is plenty. Dig in and replant. We can still supply the best that can be produced, before-the-war quality; better shipping conditions, better deliveries than we have had in the past few years. Get good soil under and good roofs over our grafted roses and watch things grow!

Let us know the verdict!

the store was out of both plant and cut lilies.

The W. L. Roek Flower Co. cut 32,000 carnations in four days of Easter week and moved them all. The regular price, $2 a dozen, was charged. Long-stemmed roses were the only stock on which prices were advanced above normal for Easter by this firm. Forty per cent of its lilies were not in for Easter. These later plants were in time for weddings which were held March 30 and April 2. In fact, they were held back for these decorations. For the April wedding, 700 lilies were used. Between 600 and 800 lavender tulips were saved for the same occasion.

Miss L. E. Boggess sold between 400 and 500 plants for Easter. Like all the other florists, she could have sold many more lilies.

B. Fred Collins died March 30 after a long illness following the influenza. He is survived by his mother and two sisters, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Ella M. Collins. The latter is bookkeeper for the Alpha Floral Co.

A. Newell found that some customers disliked the advertising of prices. It told too plainly the value of their gifts to friends. In some cases where advance orders had been placed for lilies they were changed at the last to other flowers because the newspapers announced how much lilies would be. Mr. Newell believes it is a mistake to quote any prices in retailers' advertising.

George Papadakos has returned from New York city, whither he was called by the death of his nephew, George Contas. The young man had been in America only three months. He was employed by Panos Bros., New York.

Carl Hagemeyer, Paola, Kan.; A. N. Nielsen, Pana, Ill., and Mr. Farnham, Carrollton, Mo., were among last week's visitors.

Nelson Jarrett has 10,000 2½-inch ferns of different varieties and a number of new and fancy varieties of petunias for boxes. He will make a specialty of petunias this season. About 100 lilies that were an inch or two above ground were killed by the Easter storm. So were some verbenas, lantanas, lilacs and early cherries.

Few commercial places in the United States have as fine a lot of gloxinias as those Samuel Murray is showing. He had 500 bulbs this season. They are coming in earlier and doing better than in any previous year.

AGERATUM, Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ¾ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant. 2-inch, $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100. 3-inch, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

weeks with influenza. At the same time her little son, Vincent, had measles. After Easter Mr. Thomas was under the doctor's care for several days. All are recovering.

E. A. Humfeld's business was double that of Easter in 1920. He wholesaled some lilies and wished that he had them back when he sold out all he had kept for the retail store. Aside from a few hydrangeas and rose plants, all the stock was grown in his greenhouses near Independence.

The Linwood Floral & Nursery Co. cleaned up on everything Saturday evening.

W. J. Barnes received more telegraph orders, both going and coming, than he has on any other holiday. His local business was far ahead of that for Easter a year ago. Two furniture vans supplemented his regular delivery ears. Every fern and palm in his greenhouses was rented for church decorations. Mr. Barnes says he could have sold 250 more lilies if he could have obtained them. Lower prices helped business, he says. The cash sales were double those for any other big holiday.

R. S. Brown & Son had a heavy Easter business and have been busy since. Indications point toward a big spring trade in bedding stock.

While on his way home Saturday night, March 26, M. E. Chandler, of the Chandler Landscape & Nursery Co., was caught in a wind storm which was of cyclonic proportions south of the city. The wind shield of his car became so clouded by rain that he stopped and got out. A car going in the opposite direction struck him. He became entangled in some telephone wires, blown down by the storm, and was dragged for some distance before the driver knew that Mr. Chandler had been hit. He was taken home, where it was found that no bones were broken, but he was severely bruised and lacerated. He expects to be out in a few days.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

CHANGING HEATING SYSTEM.

Would you advise us to plan a change of our heating system from hot water to steam?

For ten years we have used hot water for heating and it has been satisfactory. The range has been gradually added to until the present. The heating equipment is shown in green on the sketch. This consists of a 4½-inch headline flow and return, with nine 2-inch flows going to the far end of the houses, where each drops into three returns, sometimes four, which again flow into 4½-inch main returns and thence back to the boiler.

The old boiler is a 20-horsepower, return tubular boiler, on which the openings have been enlarged, making it into a hot water boiler. This boiler would be worthless for steam, but could be used a few more years for hot water. Last year, in order to get more heating capacity, we bought an additional boiler of seventy-five horsepower, the Atlas steam boiler, on which the state inspector will pass us for eighty pounds. We connected it in the battery with the smaller boiler, so as to have more heating capacity. If we are to continue using it for hot water we must enlarge the openings. We have hesitated about changing it until we could be sure that we ought not to consider a change from hot water to steam.

Both boilers are located together in the cellar, so that the water level would be below the lowest returns in case steam were used. Therefore we suppose the system should work equally well for either hot water or steam. Would we have to remodel all our present heating pipes in case of a change, or would the 2-inch flow pipes with their 3-inch returns under each bench work all right for steam just as they are? They are valved on the 2-inch flow pipes only, with gate valves.

As we understand it, the hot water plant should require less night attention, but the steam would give us better forcing facilities for special crops; steam would require a night man, whereas we now get along fairly well without one; the new radiation required for the new houses will cost us more for hot water than it would for steam, but what we are desirous of knowing definitely is, would there be enough saving now and later to justify a change?

On the drawing the black lines indicate the present building outlines; the green lines indicate the present heating pipes; the red lines indicate the heating pipes that must be installed this summer and the yellow lines show that we are contemplating doubling the whole plant in the far future. The picture sent will show the general arrange-

Do you want true heating values for your money? Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.

The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating.

Do not make a mistake when selecting your new boiler; get a Kroeschell and you will never be disappointed.

KROESCHELL REPLACES TWO CAST IRON BOILERS

Range of H. M. Totman, Randolph, Vt.—the largest cut flower establishment in Vermont. No. 7 Kroeschell heats the entire plant.

The Kroeschell

has the highest standard of heating values. Immense Self-cleaning Heating Surface, Longest Fire Travel, Perfect Combustion, Free Circulation, Thin Waterways, Honest Working Capacities, Unequaled Fuel Economy.

The Kroeschell

has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the Kroeschell with the same piping and with less fuel.

KROESCHELL REPLACES FOUR CAST IRON BOILERS

Range of A. B. Knowlton, No. Grafton, Mass.—devoted to the growing of high-grade carnations. No. 13 Kroeschell heats entire plant.

KROESCHELL BETTER THAN CAST IRON

Your No. 7 Kroeschell Boiler, rated at 15,000 sq. ft. of glass, is carrying my entire range of 17,000 sq. ft. of glass—it might heat more. We maintain a temperature of 50° and have no trouble to keep the proper temperatures in the coldest weather. During the cold snap of 1912 we fired every three hours during the night. I find it a saving in fuel to fire often. I have the Kroeschell Boiler six years and the only expense is one set of grates. No other but a plate boiler for me. (Signed) H. M. TOTMAN. Jan., 1912. Randolph, Vt.

KROESCHELL BETTER THAN CAST IRON

Enclosed find photo showing partial view of my range which you are at liberty to use in connection with any advertisement you see fit. In regard to the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler, we are now using it for the fifth season. The longer we use it the better we like it. It has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving of coal and labor. No matter what the weather is outside we have no trouble whatever in keeping the temperature just where we want it.

(Signed) A. B. KNOWLTON. Jan. 10th, 1912. North Grafton, Mass.

So Easy To Keep Your Boilers From Pitting This Summer

ASK MAC—HE KNOWS.

SEALRITE

The perfect seal for boiler settings. Makes glass air-tight. No air gas or moisture can penetrate SEALRITE. Ask us about it.

COATRITE

Protects ALL equipment from rust and corrosion, acids and alkalis, gas and chemical fumes. Ask for free sample—enough to coat two square yards.

Before you lay up your boilers for the summer, treat them with

SCALINE

By a present small outlay for SCALINE, you insure your boilers against pitting and corrosion during the summer months. Can you afford not to do it?

By treating them with SCALINE now, you make sure of finding your boilers spick and span when you wish to fire up in a hurry in the late summer or early autumn.

SCALINE works its way through the cracks in the scale until it reaches the boiler metal. It spreads out over the boiler surface, forcing all scale away, and forms a thin film that protects the boiler against corrosion and pitting—the enemies that, without SCALINE, would keep busy while the boilers were idle.

In the autumn, wash away the ousted scale with clean feed water, and you are ready for the busy months.

Ask us for Bulletin E 16 on the three Kingsbury products—SEALRITE, COATRITE, SCALINE.

ment of the houses, looking from the south. You will understand that the house at the left had just been built before the late spring snow and has not yet been heated; the same is true of the south end of the house at the right and also of the narrow house not shown in the picture, which we are now erecting farther to the right.

In deciding the best policy for the future we must especially consider the efficiency of future operation, cost of immediate extensions of heating pipes shown by the red lines, and the possible future cost in case we doubled the whole plant. Also the present size of the mains must be considered, the necessary changes in them that are required for either extension, as well as the fact that the little boiler is good for a few years, for hot water heat, but not for steam, whereas the big boiler is good for either, and if the system is changed to steam the big boiler would probably carry the whole plant easily alone.

Our experience with heating systems has been largely limited to this one; observations in various other greenhouses; a study of what William Scott offers on heating in his Florists' Manual, and tables which give proper size of flows for hot water and steam, as well as the amount of radiation per square foot of glass. We have avoided going into further details of the system for the reason that if hot water is continued we will continue along a similar line to what we now have, simply extending it. If steam is decided upon we will take up the study anew, using as much of the present equipment as possible.

M. F. C.—Colo.

We hardly know what to advise in this case. It has been fairly presented. It is unquestionable that piping a greenhouse for steam will cost but little more than one-half as much as when hot water piping is installed, so far as the price of the material is concerned, and for mains in the new houses, but they may be used as return pipes.

Destruction of boiler settings always starts in the joints. Mortar falls out and clinkers find a splendid place to cling. They fuse to the brick ends and when broken off take part of the brick with them. Patchwork repairs are necessary and frequent until finally a new setting is demanded.

It should be stated that the fuel cost with steam heat is likely to be nearly twenty-five per cent more than with hot water, although some of this may be saved by being able, with a night fireman, to use a cheaper grade of coal than with a hot water system, which is left seven or eight hours at night.

The new boiler should be able to heat all of the houses now constructed, but you should tap it, providing either one 6-inch or two 5-inch flow connections, with returns of the same size.

NEWARK, N. J.

Late reports of Easter sales show that Newark florists did a fine business. The volume might have been greater had it not been for the general business depression, yet it was entirely satisfactory. Flowers were a little scarce the week after Easter, but are more plentiful this week. Prices kept up fairly well the week after Easter, but are dropping a little this week.

The seed business is growing daily and those florists who sell seeds, rose bushes for outside planting and other shrubs and plants are now having increasingly large sales.

Philips Bros., Broad street, near Lafayette, report an excellent Easter trade. They also report a number of weddings and considerable funeral work.

The Kost 3 in 1 Soil Pulverizer

KOST SOIL PULVERIZER

Three principles in One— Shredding, Discing and Pulverizing

This machine can be used for all kinds and classes of work. The Growers can not only save money and time, but grow better crops by using our Pulverizers. With this machine, fresh sod direct from the field can be pulverized, making the soil ready for potting, seeding, etc., without piling it up for any length of time. This machine pulverizes and shreds anything and everything. The machine is made extra strong, and is fool proof against stones and other hard substances.

Prices—Pulverizer equipped with Shredding Disc and one set of Hammers—$150.00.

With Shredding Disc and two sets of Hammers, $165.00.

The Market.

Business conditions were exceptionally good from the middle of the week preceding Easter, and the florists were kept busy all the time. There was a scarcity of Easter lilies and also of roses. Easter morning arrived with one of the hardest rains of the year, which curtailed the buying for the day, but as most of the florists had just about cleaned up their stock, it did not affect the results much.

Various Notes.

Clarence Commineavish reports that his Easter business far exceeded that of other years. Mr. Commineavish secured the salesroom of C. A. Bitner, who had to discontinue his business on account of the illness of his wife. This gave him salesrooms on opposite sides of the city, an arrangement that proved a success.

Knecht & Freese report their Easter trade as the best they ever had. Mrs. Frank Knecht and daughter, Martha, have returned from St. Petersburg, Fla., and report having had a most enjoyable winter. Frank Knecht and family spent a couple of days with friends at Richmond, Ind.

E. C. Wenninghoff had a large trade in pot plants as well as cut flowers. Everything was sold out. Cut roses were especially hard to get.

The Doswell Floral Co. seemed to have a specially large trade in corsage bouquets for Easter. Mrs. George Doswell fell a few weeks ago and broke her hip, which has made it necessary for Miss Mary Doswell to be at home. Coming just at Easter time, this accident made the store force a little short.

Mrs. Rhoda Doswell Wichman, of St. Louis, was a recent guest of relatives and friends.

The Flick Floral Co. reports its Easter trade as a record-breaker. The

AJAX BLACK GLAZING CEMENT

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load them—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

NOT AFFECTED BY EXTREME HEAT OR COLD

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

LOW COST

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

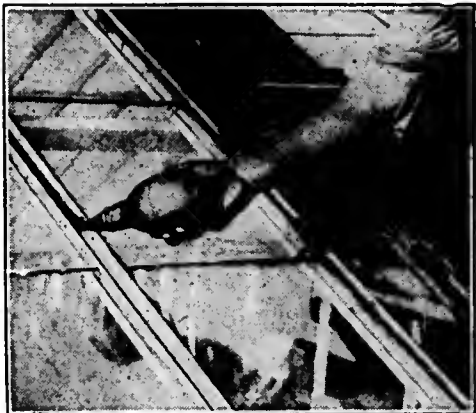

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Black Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and again, and we can prove it.

demand seemed to turn more to plants than to cut flowers.

The Blossom Floral Co. reports Easter business about thirty per cent greater than last year's. This firm experienced a shortage of plants, but had plenty of cut stock.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey had a wonderful crop of carnations for Easter, but still they had to turn down orders in their wholesale department. They report a splendid Easter business.

If one wanted to get into a busy place at Easter, he only had to go to Lanternier's. Everybody was kept on the jump, and the crowd was well taken care of. The firm has an attractive window in yellow, which makes one stop and look. S. N.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Reports from the florists regarding this Easter's business show that generally it was ahead of that of last year. This was made possible by the supply of stock available. The lilies sold early, but there was a good demand for other plants and cut flowers. Toronto florists are well satisfied with the business done.

Since Easter there has been a great deal of stock available. All kinds of flowers can be supplied in quantities. There is a demand for design work and a few reception decorations.

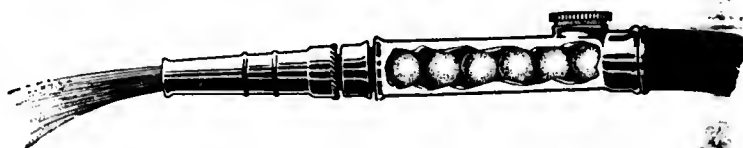

Various Notes.

Several Toronto members of the F. T. D. will be at the Detroit meeting, April 11. An endeavor will be made to have the Toronto convention extended to three days.

G. M. Geraghty is to be congratulated on the Easter advertising. As chairman of the Florists' Club publicity committee he accomplished a great deal. The Easter advertising is being favorably commented upon.

Toronto florists attended the matinee at the Royal Alexandra theater, April 1. All the artists were given baskets of flowers and the chorus girls corsages.

A test case as to whether or not the retail florists shall be listed as manufacturers and be required to pay the two per cent war tax is being tried at Ottawa. In the meantime no license is needed, nor is it necessary to collect the tax. So far the florists have objected to collecting the tax as manufacturers and have decided to do nothing regarding its collection. J. J. H.

CYPRESS FOR STAKES AND CYPRESS FOR LABELS

A tree or plant Label is a small matter, just a thin strip of wood with notches near one end. A whole pocketful may be bought with a penny or two, yet the cost of them counts in the year's expenditures. And there's no need in buying new each year, unless you really prefer to spend your money. Get them of Cypress and they will last. So with stakes—they are made of Cypress and cost little more than those made of woods that begin to rot as soon as they are placed in the soil. Every dollar you save in these small matters stays in the bank to help swell your balance.

JUST ONE TESTIMONIAL

C. E. Robbins, 4 Vanden Bosch Avenue, Auburn, N. Y., writes: "My attention was first drawn to Cypress several years ago by using some of it for dahlia stakes, along with some pine, etc., and after the pine had rotted away the Cypress showed no sign of decay. Since then I have used it for boats and canoes, and it has been very satisfactory." This is a small matter, but it is worth while to listen to the experience of others.

coming on and recent weather conditions have been more than favorable. Two new houses were recently erected.

Rosaia Bros. report a most satisfactory Easter trade, selling all of their lilies and larger quantities of potted spring offerings than has been the case in previous seasons. This firm last week handled a large wedding decoration at the New Washington hotel, using Easter lilies, fruit blossoms and Ophelia roses to produce a seasonable effect. The bride's bouquet used in the Easter wedding display of one of the larger stores was made by Robert Simmons, using cattleyas and lilies of the valley.

W. H. Brown, of Brown's Victoria Nurseries, Victoria, B. C., was a visitor last week. He states his firm shipped large quantities of daffodils during March. General business conditions have ruled good, and satisfactory results are anticipated from the 70,000 feet this firm has under glass at this time.

The Burns Floral Co. has installed a set of attractive new window drapes, using gray stock with green trimmings. So thoroughly did this shop clean up its supply of Easter lilies that on Sunday calls had to be made on other dealers to fill late shipping orders.

Ray. G. Sliker, northwestern representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is calling on the British Columbia trade at present.

Kenney's Home of Flowers is showing some fine home-grown snapdragons and also better deliveries of locally grown Ophelia roses. William Goldsbary spent a part of last week in British Columbia on a business trip, making the journey by automobile.

JOHN J. KELLER

found more people interested in potted plants this year than cut flowers, probably because the former appeal to the sense of economy in the buyer.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop's force was more than trebled for Easter. The largest Easter stock yet handled was easily cared for in the large floor space available, and total sales for the year exceeded those of 1920. A good-sized increase on both incoming and outgoing telegraph orders was one of the satisfying developments.

The Pinchurst Floral Shop reports good results from both the main store and the branch opened for Easter week, with the public most interested in the medium-priced offerings.

C. H. Benson, Kirkland, has been delivering some of the finest carnations seen here this season, outside of Laddie, and is also bringing in sweet peas much better than the average. Finely colored snapdragons are still another of his recent offerings.

McCoy's was most successful in moving hydrangeas at Easter time and is able to report deliveries equal to anything yet shown here. Medium-priced lilies sold freely, most of the customers buying this year by a price limit instead of purchasing according to the number of blooms desired.

Felix Rosaia handled a larger supply of lilies this year than last and reports an entirely satisfactory business.

Novelty baskets combining Easter lilies and other spring flowers proved excellent sellers with the trade of the Hollywood Gardens and some high-priced items were moved as well. Some increase is noted in the cut of roses at the greenhouses and deliveries of outdoor spring offerings are increasing daily.

The Orpheum Floral Co. has been showing some of the best of the late tulips, with good sales results secured from the attractive window displays made of such stock. H. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

The proprietor of Flocker's Flower Shop, opened March 12, is W. W. Flocker, who states that he has had ten years' experience in the business in the east. His store, at 60 East Gay street, contains a good line of ferns, blooming plants and cut flowers.

CALLAHAN CUT-TO-FIT GREENHOUSE (Type B)

This type is exceedingly popular with florists. It is standard in four widths—13 feet 10 inches; 15 feet 6 inches; 17 feet 2 inches, and 20 feet 6 inches.

Note the exceptional strength. The center posts are 1½ inches, spaced 7 feet, with 1-inch Y bracing. Callahan greenhouses are not only low in first cost—they are also low in cost of maintenance and operation.

This is only one of several standard types we can furnish quickly, all cut to fit, so that erection is a very simple matter.

Let us estimate on your requirements. We can save you money.

TOTTI'S 'MUMS.

A familiar slogan for nearly twenty years. The stock we offer you today is absolutely free from the dreaded midge, having been propagated entirely from plants that have been grown outdoors all summer, lifted in the fall and housed solely for propagating purposes. It costs more to raise stock this way, but the results obtained more than justify the cost. The following varieties we can offer for immediate delivery in 2 1/4-in. pots; planted out in a bench now and stopped, they will give you quantities of fine, clean cuttings during the next four months.

Remember we guarantee this stock is ABSOLUTELY CLEAN!

PELARGONIUM EASTER GREETING.

Do you blame us for having a little pride in being the original introducers of this sterling novelty? It has stood the test and increased in popularity.

Our Mothers' day 4-in. to be shipped about April 20, will make you money; better place your order at 20c. The 3-in., if ordered soon and shipped will be fine for that holiday, as they are strong and vigorous; up to May 1 they will be desirable for Memorial day; they are yours at 11c. The 2 1/4-in. will make you money no matter how treated, but there is nothing gained by delay; your after-Easter space can be filled with them very profitably; ready to ship to you now at 8c. The small buyer is on the same basis as the large.

Don't forget we have been, are and will be headquarters for Easter Greeting in all seasonable sizes. When you become acquainted with our standard of quality and packing, then you will know where to send your orders. It costs money to talk in this column, so, in a nut shell, when you think of Easter Greeting, think of S. C. TEMPLIN & SON, GARRETTSVILLE, O.

Youngstown, O.—The retail establishment known as Wilson's Flower Shop has discontinued business here.

Pensacola, Fla.—The Brentwood Dairy Farm has recently added a flower department, under the management of Mrs. Ethel Leaman.

Port Clinton, O.—W. S. Woner is picking this year one of the largest crops of sweet peas that he has ever grown.

Plainfield, N. J.—James McLeod, formerly of South Orange, N. J., is now in charge of the Plainfield branch of W. A. Manda, Inc., South Orange, N. J.

Leominster, Mass.—The Leominster Floral Co. report a splendid Easter trade. Hydrangeas, roses and lilies were the main attractions and sold quickly, while shapely genistas and ferns were in excellent demand. The firm has a big batch of fine hydrangeas coming along for Memorial day and a fine lot of flowers and plants are now filling spaces vacated by Easter trade, to come on for Mothers' day and Memorial day trade. Joseph Fuller is proprietor and W. Hollingsworth the manager here now.

TO CORRECT SOUR LAND.

Could you give advice as to how to prevent ground outdoors from getting sour? This ground is heavy loam and I have to keep the cultivator going in order to keep it from getting a green crust on top. Would you advise a top-dressing of lime and, if so, what kind of lime and how much to an acre and when? Would lime be beneficial in an orchard, lawn and alfalfa field?

N. T.—Wis.

The presence of green slime is a sure sign of acidity in the soil. Lime is the best correcting agency known. Fall is the best time to use it, lightly scratching it in after it is broadcasted. For your case, use it in early spring and harrow it in. Do not use manure at the same time, as the lime releases too much of the nitrogen into the atmosphere. An application of 4,000 pounds of ground lime per acre is recommended, or if you use air-slaked lime one-half of that weight will suffice. A liberal surface dressing of fine gravel, coarse sand or fine coal cinders would improve your land and help to make it more porous. Also, are you sure it does not need draining? Lime is excellent in an orchard. On a lawn it is specially good where moss and such weeds as sorrel are appearing. For alfalfa lime is quite necessary. Use it preferably in fall. Before applying it plow your land. Then let it lie rough over winter. This in itself will help to sweeten it and partly correct acidity.

TREATING RED SPIDER.

I should like some information about using salt water on carnations for red spider. After advertised insecticides failed, I started to use salt water as directed in The Review—one 3-inch pot of salt to one gallon of water. This seemed to do good. I spray them with this mixture once a week. Is that often enough? Also, are the salt crystals left on the leaves injurious to the plants? Should they be washed off?

A. L.—Mo.

Spraying with salt water once a week should keep your plants free from red spider, provided they are clean to start with. If they are badly infested, I should suggest that you spray with salt water once a week and then syringe with clear water and all the force at your command, about midway between the salt sprayings. Keep this up until the plants are clean. The salt crystals will not injure your plants in the least.

SOWING PRIMULAS.

What is considered the best method of sowing seed of Primula malacoides and obconica and when is the best time?

N. R.—Del.

Use well drained pans of light, sandy soil for primulas. Leaf-mold should form the bulk of the compost. Finely screen the upper soil and barely cover the seed with sand, gently pressing it after sowing. Cover the pans with sheets of glass and use paper over this until the seedlings appear. Then remove the glass; water carefully through a fine rose, and never allow the soil to become dry. Sow Primula obconica now if you want the plants for Christmas and later. P. malacoides is a rapid

Does Every Tillage Task Better and Cheaper

At plowing, cultivating, harrowing, mowing, discing—any farming task—Beeman saves its owner money and does the work better than a horse. Its ease of control and regulated speed make it particularly valuable in floral farming. Stays in the field as long as you want it—for eight cents an hour. Easily operated—a woman or boy can run it.

The First Successful Small Tractor

Proved a success by four years' use by owners. Has saved money and improved cultivation for florists, orchardists, nurserymen, gardeners, general farmers and suburban farmers.

FOLEY BETTER BUILT GREENHOUSES

There is some reason why the country's greatest growers choose Foley Houses. There is some reason why Foley Houses are so often sold without any competition. Those reasons are that Foley Houses give greater service—and greater satisfaction for every dollar invested.

Foley Houses are made of the best—most carefully selected materials; the design is correct—and the fitting is accurate; therefore a Foley House is tight to start—stays tight—is easy to heat and outlasts its rivals by many years.

Barbed wire fences may be all right to keep cows and horses in a field; but when a fellow has to climb them with overcoat tails and a camera to catch on, it's quite another matter. However, it was worth it all to get this view of the entire range. The two right-hand houses and lean-to in front, are Hitchings.

— JESSE P. KING, — — FLORIST —

The first time I met Jesse King, was at the Niagara Falls S. A. F. Convention, some 15 years ago.

It was then he told me how he used to have a store at Mount Airy, Maryland, which he was obliged to sell because of poor health.

Just to have something to occupy his time until he was good and husky again, he tried his hand with a little home brew sort of greenhouse.

Well, sir, the mercantile business certainly lost a top-notch when he dropped out; but the florist cult sure did gain by it.

I'd like to tell you all about a most delightful day two of us recently spent with him, but there wouldn't be room enough if I took all of this page, even if there wasn't an inch of room taken up by the photo.

However, you would hardly expect me to end without saying a word or two about our houses.

So here it is.

Jesse King had other houses before he had Hitchings. The fact that Hitchings are the last ones he built, would seem to indicate he likes Hitchings houses best.

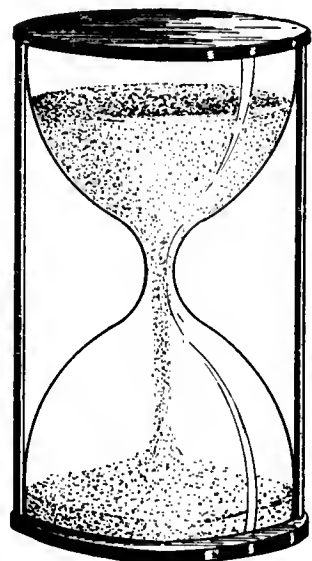

In a couple of weeks will show you a couple more photos, and tell you more about this model Maryland range.

—while you wait

are running

There are only 8760 hours in a year. Of these 2228 have already passed. That leaves but 6532, and you'll spend close to 2266 of these in bed. But what of the remaining 4266?

In them you must build for yourself whatever success you register for the year. And the degree of this success will depend to a great extent on the amount of glass you add to your range, if a grower, or the improvements you make in your store, if a retailer. And that being so, have you taken the first step yet?

If you haven't, write to us for an estimate before another one of these priceless hours slips beyond your reach.

THE problems of a Retail Florist are many and difficult, but when he also gets into the wholesale growing he certainly has a whale of a lot of things to look out for. Now, when it comes to building greenhouses, this same florist really has not the time to look after the building details.

It therefore becomes necessary for him to get hold of a reputable, reliable greenhouse manufacturing and building concern, to whom he can safely leave all the details of the work and know when the building is finished, that he has an honest, modern and economical greenhouse, cleverly designed and substantially constructed.

The logical company to turn to in a case of this kind is "Moninger's," because they have proved their worth by the thousands of greenhouses they have built all over the country.

May we have the pleasure of your inquiry?

Greenhouse Builders

THE WALKER HOUSE AT ST. CATHERINES, CANADA

When we opened our office in Canada a few years ago and organized an independent Canadian company, many a murmur came to us that we were trying to get blood out of a turnip.

Most of the big growers, Mr. Dunlop excepted, said that our houses were altogether too good for the Canadian florist business. It was allright for wealthy private people, but they would bankrupt a grower.

It wasn't long, however, before a lot of the growers began to see that, what a house cost them to buy was one thing. What it continued to cost them to keep it in repair was quite another.

They, one by one, began to appreciate that our construction was particularly adapted for standing their vigorous climate. Being so light, in spite of their great strength, they grew better flowers, which is a mighty important thing with the short days of their long winters.

Finally, The Dale Estate, which is the largest greenhouse plant in Canada, ordered two big houses followed by two more.

This last year we put up a splendid big one for Walker at St. Catharines, where our factory is located.

It is one of our stock commercial houses, 52 feet wide.

Walker says "it's lighter than daylight"; and that he "expects his great-grandchildren to be growing flowers in it." Also, that it has increased his profits in greater proportion than any house he has built.

Which tells you what Walker thinks of his house, better than we could if we talked for an hour.

And now how about you—ready to talk building?

It's more like a big crystal garden than a greenhouse. Why wouldn't that be a good name for your place, Mr. Walker—Crystal Gardens?

When you see a house like this, you can't help saying to yourself—"Here's a man that's in business to stay in business."

BIG CROP OF ROSES

NOW READY

245,000 Rose Plants

in full crop

We are Rose growers especially for the shipping trade. We cut our Roses more in the bud, and grow them cooler, so that they will ship in better condition. All of our Roses are grown in one large range of glass, and are brought in from our greenhouses two and three times per day.

Improved Beauty TISSUE PAPER

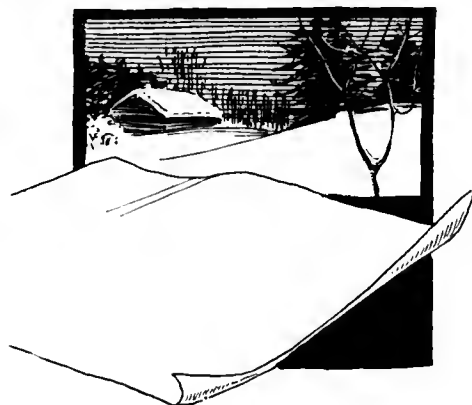

A Superior Wrapping Tissue Developed by A. L. Randall Company

Extra Strong

Improved Beauty Tissue Paper has long been recognized as a superior article. Now, by a most favorable contract, we can offer it to the trade at a price so low it seems a miracle. Along with this record-breaking cut in cost is the very highest quality. Improved Beauty Tissue is extra strong—unusually white—highly glazed—moisture proof and economical to use.

A perfect product at a bargain price.

This is an actual photograph of a bundle of Randall's Improved Beauty Tissue. It contains 4000 sheets of clean, white, strong tissue, put up in ten reams of 400 sheets each. These sheets measure 24x36-inch. Note some wrapping tissue is only 20x30-inch. Thus Improved Beauty contains 43% more paper per sheet than the smaller size.

Clerk B has made a cash sale for $1.00

The indication at the top of an up-to-date National Cash Register gives publicity to every transaction. The merchant, the clerk, and the customer see this record.

This prevents mistakes in price and in making change. It removes temptation.

The record shown in the indication is printed on a strip of paper which is locked up inside the register. This record also is printed on a receipt for the customer.

The amounts indicated and printed are added into totals which show, at a glance, (1) the total business handled by each clerk, and (2) the total of each kind of transaction.

This assures the merchant that every sale is handled accurately. It also assures him of accurate records which give him control of his business.

This is the indication. "Ca" shows it was a cash sale. "B" is the clerk's initial. "1.00" is the price.

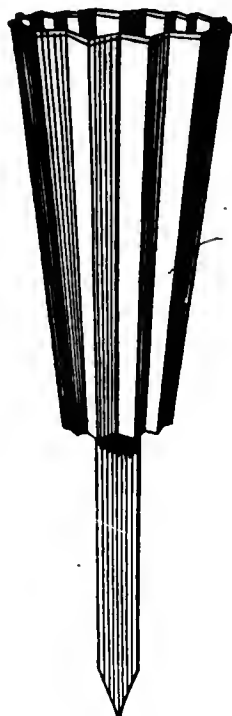

Charge sales are indicated by "Ch," received on account by "Rc," and paid out transactions by "Pd."

The same indication shows on both front and back of the register.

We make cash registers for every line of business. Priced $75 and up.

AMERICAN LEGION ROSE

Record Up to Date: Silver Medal, Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, November, 1920.
First Prize, New Variety, not Disseminated, November, 1920.
Silver Medal, International Rose Show, New York, 1921.

A new color, Cerise, said to be by the retailers of New York, the most brilliant color on exhibition.

Free from Black Spot and Mildew and a Wonderful Producer

What one of our Wholesale Commission Men says about it:

Mr. Edward Towill,
Roslyn, Penna.

Dear Sir:

We were particularly pleased with your new rose the "American Legion," and our only regret was that we did not have more of them. The people that handled them were very much pleased, and I might suggest that it would be a good proposition if you would plant your whole place with that variety for another year.

You will note the price it brought came very close to that of the "American Beauty," and being such a prolific producer, it certainly should be a money-maker.

Yours very truly,

EDWARD REID.

What one of our largest Retailers says of it:

Mr. Edward Towill,
Roslyn, Penna.

Dear Sir:

Just a word to tell you how pleased we are with your new Rose, "American Legion." We have been handling cut flowers of it since last fall when you commenced putting them on the market, and we are very much impressed with the lovely bright color, and more so with its keeping qualities--and what is more to the point, our customers buy it and like it and commend it to us. We thought the flowers on the plant were beautiful when we were at your place just before Christmas, and feel sure you have a coming rose.

Yours very truly,

PENNOCK BROTHERS.

RISING COST OF ROSE GROWING

Have you figures on the production of your greenhouse crops, so that you know what each costs and which are the profitable ones? Much enlightenment may be obtained by a study of such figures and their comparison with those of other growers. Here are one rose grower's costs.

EVERY florist knows that it costs more to grow a rose now than it did three years ago. Yes, whether he be retailer, wholesaler or grower, he knows that. And the public knows it, too. The public has been doing some complaining about it from time to time. Florists, on their part, have been doing some explaining about it from time to time, as well. But not many knew just how to explain it, save in general terms, because they had no specific figures which proved their statements. Not that anyone doubted their statements; that's not the point. But figures speak louder than mere words and convince more people from Missouri than does the most plausible language a florist can wield.

Statistics Convince.

Charged with amassing enormous profits through a near-monopoly of the business, the meat packers have published figures in the newspapers throughout the country to counteract such statements. Favorite among their charts is that of the dollar divided according to the costs of putting the packers' products on to the market. Only a thin little slice—a puny, tiny little slice—is marked "profits." You and I have never had a chance to verify those figures. We have never asked the packers if those computed costs were really correct. But we have seen that subdivided dollar and glanced over the figures so frequently that we are disposed to praise the packers, instead of abusing them, for creating a business so enormous that they can give us our daily meat with so little profit for themselves. Such is the achievement of statistics!

But there is more to a knowledge of production costs than a means of defense from criticism. They enable us to know whither our money goes and whence our profits come. Moreover, they would, if some florists had them, tell why the profits didn't come, for there are still some who are making a

To enable growers everywhere to compare production costs and derive the benefits to be obtained from their study, the Editor of The Review invites florists in every state to send him figures such as those presented here, on other crops as well as roses, giving assurance that all such communications will be treated as strictly confidential.

"living" when they ought, in view of their investment and their efforts, to make considerably more. The story is still current of the Hebraic haberdasher who sold his customer shirts, sox, ties, pajamas, all at "less than they cost me wholesale." When asked, if he sold all his goods for less than they cost him, where he made his profit, he replied, "On the paper and string." Growers without figures on their pro-how to increase the profits by discarding the unprofitable varieties and growing the most paying ones instead. Such figures require more work of the already overworked grower, says he. But some growers could pay a book-keeper to keep such figures with the money he loses by not knowing them!

On this page appears a table showing how the costs increased on certain varieties at the range of a rose grower in the middle west from 1918 to 1921. He has a large range and ships all his flowers to a commission house. He has, no doubt, made changes in the three years. His figures show it. He grows fewer of the old varieties, since he has added Premier and Columbia to his plantings. Too close details of his plantings cannot be given, for the figures here used are given in confidence, and it is not wished to identify the grower without his willingness to be known.

Three Years' Rise.

The table on this page shows that the varieties of roses named, with the exception of the two not grown in 1918, have increased in wholesale cost, on an average, 71.6 per cent. The range is from 65.9 to 83.7 per cent, according to variety. Here are figures that mean something. How were they obtained?

This rose grower keeps a record of his expenses, subdividing them into various groups, so that at the end of the year, or at any time during the year, he is able to know what he is buying in comparison with previous years, in price and in quantity. Such is the record of his outgo.

As his roses are cut for shipment to the wholesale house, count is kept of each variety. At the end of the month or year, he knows how many blooms he has cut. Dividing the total by the number of plants of a variety, he arrives at the yield per plant. Thus he knows whether a variety is a large or small producer, not in a general way, but in actual figures. The price the grower must receive for a certain rose depends to a large extent upon its yield of blooms per plant.

duction costs are no better informed, if they are veracious, as to where they make their profit than was the price-juggling Jew.

The grower cannot say whether he is getting a fair price for his product unless he knows the amount of money he puts into his greenhouses and the amount of money he takes out, and knows it in a detailed way. It is possible that one item shows a good profit while another makes a decided loss. Production cost figures would show figure should be greater, of course, for longer-stemmed flowers and, consequently, less for shorter ones. During the cold months, costs will be relatively greater and prices received should be higher than in the warmer months, when production is heavier.

What Chart Shows.

The chart at the top of this page affords easy comprehension of where the increased cost occurred in this grower's range. Wages, of course, were the biggest item. But, whereas they were a little more than twice the next largest item in 1918, in 1921 they are nearly three times as great. Plants and seeds show an increase of 233 1/2 per cent, the largest in percentage of any on the list. Some items show a decrease—namely, general expenses, fertilizers, boxes and express, and state taxes—doubtless due to measures of economy or to local conditions.

Naturally, these figures can only be employed as approximate estimates, since coal was carried over from one year to the next, various changes were made at the range in the three years and other conditions prevailed of which the bare statistics give no inkling. Moreover, these figures must be revised to suit today. For such estimates must necessarily cover a considerable period of time to afford a fair average. Wages have gone down somewhat. Coal is cheaper, while this grower was using fuel that cost the highest prices when the 1921 calculations were made. Other items, it will be readily noted, have diminished in cost, since the period that afforded the 1921 estimate, although the decrease as yet is not great.

What Are Your Figures?

Each grower can derive certain conclusions regarding his own costs after a study of the figures presented in these accompanying tables. It will afford the trade better opportunity to find a real production basis, if such figures may be had from many growers' establishments, whether they are devoted to roses, carnations, sweet peas, or to several items. The writer hopes that growers, seeing the possible benefit to be derived by this comparative study, will send their production cost figures, in such tables as these, to the Editor of The Review. No names will be divulged unless it is expressly desired, and no statements will be made that will permit identification of one grower by another. You may show your figures in order to compare them with another grower, who shows his in exchange for the same privilege. The comparative figures will give benefit to all. The names of those who furnish them will be known only to the Editor of The Review. He invites you to aid yourself and fellow growers in this way. Send in your production cost figures.

PLANTS AROUND GRAVES.

Can you tell me what plants are suitable for borders around graves?

A. D. F.—Neb.

I presume the inquirer means plants for summer planting and not hardy or perennial plants. There are a number that can be used for this purpose; in fact, nearly all of the so-called dwarf bedding plants are used in one style or another as borders for graves and lots in large cemeteries. They are generally used in combinations. The alternanthera and echeveria are used together, the echeveria generally forming the border for the alternanthera. Madame Salleron geranium is also extensively used, as are ageratum, santolina, sweet alyssum, achyranthes, dusty miller and the dwarf varieties of coleus. M. P.

TREATING LEAF SCALE.

Can you tell me what is the matter with the leaf I am sending you? What is the remedy for the trouble and how long will it take to get the stock in good condition after the trouble disappears?

H. E. H.—N. Y.

The leaf in question was covered with brown scale and, in addition, seemed to be browning around the edges. Spray through a fine misty nozzle with a soap spray, using any of the good standard remedies for scale. Printed directions come on all cans. Remove the worst affected leaves, water carefully and remember that this plant should not be sprayed over any more than is absolutely necessary.

C. W.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Furrow & Co., of Guthrie, have leased one of the most prominent and highest-priced locations in this city for a term of eight years and will open a first-class retail store about May 2. The address is 205 West Main street, and they will have everything in keeping with the location. The display refrigerator is being built for them by H. Erlich & Son, of St. Joseph, Mo. Furrow & Co. also are building here a greenhouse 300 feet long, to serve as the nucleus for a new range. It is the plan to remove a part of the Guthrie range to the new place next summer, leaving the balance of the glass at Guthrie to take care of the nice retail business being done there.

At the end of the year the total operating costs, plus depreciation charges and a fair interest on investment, say six per cent, are divided by the number of square feet of bench space. The result is the cost per square foot to grow the roses named. Some roses are set more closely than others, so that against a certain number of plants of one variety a larger total of square-foot cost may be charged than against the same number of another variety. In the table on this page is shown the cost per square foot of bench space arrived at by this method of calculation. If one wishes to arrive at a more exact method of comparing his greenhouse costs with those of another grower, he may divide by the number of square feet of house space, instead of by the number of square feet of bench space. The latter calculation was not carried out in 1918; so the comparisons here made are on the basis of square feet of bench space.

If the cost per plant has been arrived at, one has only to divide it by the average number of blooms per plant cut during the year, and he has the price per bloom the grower should receive from the wholesaler. This

BIG SHOW AT BOSTON

BOSTON'S SPRING SHOW.

Roses and Orchids Features.

The combined exhibitions of the American Rose Society and Massachusetts Horticultural Society brought out a show which eclipsed even the big one held a year ago, when orchids were the star feature. The halls were all inconveniently crowded with exhibits. The arrangement was most excellent and superior to that seen at any preceding show, while the wide publicity given brought out a record attendance even with an admission fee of $1. More visitors from a distance attended than ever before and this in spite of the fact that the season is an unusually advanced one and trade and private growers are unusually busy.

The three star features of the show were roses, orchids and azaleas. Roses were of grand quality, although the hot weather preceding the exhibition made it impossible for some New York and New Jersey growers to compete. Orchids were numerous and of magnificent quality. The staging of these brought forth much praise. Visitors considered the showing of these decidedly ahead of that seen at the great show in March, 1920. Azaleas were a great feature and it was thought by many that both these and orchids out-classed similar displays made in New York. The advanced season materially reduced the exhibits of acacias, cinerarias, cyclamens, bulbous plants and schizanthus, but hydrangeas, rhododendrons, carnations, sweet peas and ericas were fine.

The Roses.

Public interest in roses was never at a higher pitch in Boston than during last week, and although the American Rose Society has had larger displays, yet, considering the warm season, the lateness of the show date and other factors, the displays of both plants and cut flowers were wonderfully fine.

For fifty Mme. Butterfly, there was a strong entry and the Florex Gardens just won from the William H. Elliott Co.

For fifty Crusader, Thomas Roland was first, with the Montgomery Rose Co. a close second. For fifty Russell, the Montgomery Rose Co. won with perfect flowers.

For fifty Double White Killarney, Cromwell Gardens won, after a close tussle with Florex Gardens.

For fifty Frank W. Dunlop, Florex Gardens were the winners. For fifty Hadley, some grand vases were shown. Thomas Roland won with a glorious vase and the Montgomery Rose Co. was second. For fifty Pilgrim, the Montgomery Rose Co. was first with a beautiful vase.

For fifty Premier, the Florex Gardens were not to be denied; Cromwell Gardens was second. For fifty Ophelia, the Cromwell Gardens were first and the Bedford Floral Co. was second. For fifty any other pink variety, Thomas Roland won with handsome Columbia and the Florex Gardens were second.

Group of Cut Roses.

April 8 came the competition for a group of cut roses to cover 300 square feet, arranged for effect. Thomas Roland won the $500 prize with a grand lot of flowers artistically arranged by B. F. Letson. His varieties included Crusader, Hadley, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Ophelia, Premier, Columbia, Double White Killarney. Cromwell Gardens were second with a grand collection tastefully arranged by Sidney Hoffman. A glorious vase of Premier held the place of honor and Columbia, Double White Killarney and Pilgrim were also good. An absence of scarlet and yellow flowers somewhat handicapped this beautiful group.

John H. Dunlop brought along a wonderful vase of Frank W. Dunlop and received a silver medal for his beautiful new pink seedling. Walter Hunnewell, T. D. Hatfield, superintendent, received a silver medal for a group of the new yellow Rosa Hugonis, finely flowered.

Roland's Rose Garden Wins.

Thomas Roland received the $1,000 prize for the best rose garden and it showed the highest artistic skill. Tausendschoen roses covered the fences, and these and other climbers, including Paul's Scarlet Climber, adorned the temple-like tea house. Beds of hybrid teas in all the best varieties, including Los Angeles, Mme. Edouard Herriot, Mrs. A. Ward, W. J. Ringe, Pharisaer and some twenty-five other varieties, were all planted in beds; all the pots were invisible. Some lovely standards of White Dorothy Perkins and trained specimens of Tausendschoen and other varieties were used to excellent advantage. The verdant grass paths set the flowers off beautifully. This garden was constantly surrounded by an admiring crowd of persons who were busy making notes and copying down the names of varieties shown.

The Breech-Robinson Co. received a gold medal for a garden sunken and nearly oval in shape, mainly planted with polyantha varieties, with grass paths, neat little rest houses, an electric fountain in the center and suitable garden furniture. The garden, designed by Miss Babcock, of the firm's landscape department, was well conceived and received hosts of compliments.

Rose Plants.

For the best display of rose plants, comprising all classes, Thomas Roland won. For the best display arranged for effect, the W. W. Edgar Co. won, with Thomas Roland a close second. Mr. Roland won with his arbor arrangement of climbing roses and the W. W. Edgar Co. had the best arch arrangement. Tausendschoen was mainly used in both exhibits.

For three specimen climbing roses, Thomas Roland was first. W. A. Manda had the best group of dwarf polyantha roses. The cut hybrid perpetual roses in the display from James Marlborough, superintendent to Thomas E. Proctor, were of grand quality, especially Frau Karl Druschki, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford, Mrs. John Laing and Magna Charta.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., sent an excellent vase of American Legion, which received favorable notice.

The Orchids.

The orchid display was even finer than a year ago and included many rare and new varieties. A conservative estimate of the value of plants shown was $100,000 and there were many orchid enthusiasts from a distance. Orchids vied with roses in the popular interest. In the 200-foot group for private growers, A. C. Burrage, Douglas Eccleston, superintendent, won with a grand group. Some of his best subjects were Cattleya labiosa, Cattleya Schroederæ and Cattleya Dusseldorffei Undine; Brassocattleyas Veitchii, Sedenii; var. Rosalind and Empress of Russia; Cattleyas Trianae alba and Skinneri alba; Odontoglossums excelens, Mrs. H. L. Chalifoux and Lambeauiana; Cœlogyne pandurata; numerous varieties of odontiodas and many superb cymbidiums, phalanopsis, oncidiums, renantheras and other species.

For a group covering 100 square feet for private growers, A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., Oliver Lines, gardener, led with a glorious group, practically every plant new or rare. Some of the best were Brassocattleya Queen Alexandra, langleyensis, Madeline, Digbyano-Schroederæ and speciosa grandis; Cattleya Trianae virginale, Cattleya Trianae albo, Cattleya Schroederæ Dainty, Cattleya Schroederæ alba, Cattleya luminosa, Cattleya Mossiæ Reineckiana; Sophrolaeliocattleya Meuse, var. General Neville and some magnificent Odontoglossum crispum, odontiodas and phalanopsis.

For the 50-foot group, Walter Hunnewell, T. D. Hatfield, superintendent, took both first and second. His cymbidiums were superb, some of the spikes carrying as many as thirty flowers each, and he had a noteworthy collection of varieties of Dendrobium nobile, beautifully flowered.

For the 100-foot group, J. T. Butterworth captured first with wonderful cymbidiums, dendrobiums, Lycaste Skinneri, odontoglossums and cattleyas.

For twelve specimen orchids, A. C. Burrage was first, with E. S. Webster, Peter Arnott, gardener, an excellent second. For six plants, A. C. Burrage won and was also first and second for huge single specimens of Cattleya Schroederæ, carrying 150 flowers, and C. Skinneri, with treble that number.

Special Awards.

Among the honorary awards for orchids were the following: Miss Cornelia Warren, Henry Stewart, gardener, had a group of large specimens of Dendrobium nobile, heavily flowered. Silver medals were awarded to the Julius Roehrs Co. for a grand collection of odontiodas; to A. N. Cooley for Sophrolaeliocattleya Meuse, var. General Neville; to Muller Sealey for a display of Cypripedium Pawelsii cut in Belgium five weeks previously; to A. W. Preston, John L. Smith, gardener, for Brassodaeliocattleya Hilda.

First-class certificates of merit went to A. N. Cooley for Brassolaeliocattleya, var. Jean Potine, for Cattleya Mossiæ Reineckiana and Brassocattleya speciosa grandis; to A. C. Burrage for Laeliocattleya California, Laeliocattleya labiosa and Miltonia Hycana Flambeau; to J. T. Butterworth for Cypripedium J. T. Butterworth; to E. S. Webster for Odontoglossum lutescens and to J. B. Duke, Somerville, N. J., Arthur E. Miles, gardener, for Odontioda Joan, var. Mrs. Harding. John splendidly flowered, from John S. Ames, William Swan, superintendent, received a gold medal. They were artistically arranged in a small Japanese garden by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., a wonderful improvement on last year's arrangement of the plants from the Arnold Arboretum and Prof. Sargent.

Charles Sander, superintendent to Prof. C. S. Sargent, had a splendid group of azaleas, all his own seedlings. He received silver medals for the varieties Hilda Hedlund and obtusula alba, similar to the Kurumes in size of flower, habit and floriferousness. A first-class certificate of merit went to Prof. Sargent for Azalea Tebotan. Walter Hunnewell showed a large group of the beautiful, rich yellow azalea, Miss Louisa Hunnewell, again one of the great attractions of the show.

For six specimen azaleas, Miss Cornelia Warren was first and George F. Stewart, superintendent to Arthur Lyman, second. These plants averaged four to five feet across. For a single specimen Mr. Stewart won with a huge, beautifully flowered plant of indica alba, eight feet across and nearly as high. Miss Warren's second prize specimen of the same variety was nearly as large. Finer azaleas were never shown here.

The six specimens of Rhododendron Pink Pearl, from James Marlborough, surpassed anything ever seen here. Azalea Schlippenbuchii, from the same grower, received a silver medal.

Miscellaneous Plants and Flowers.

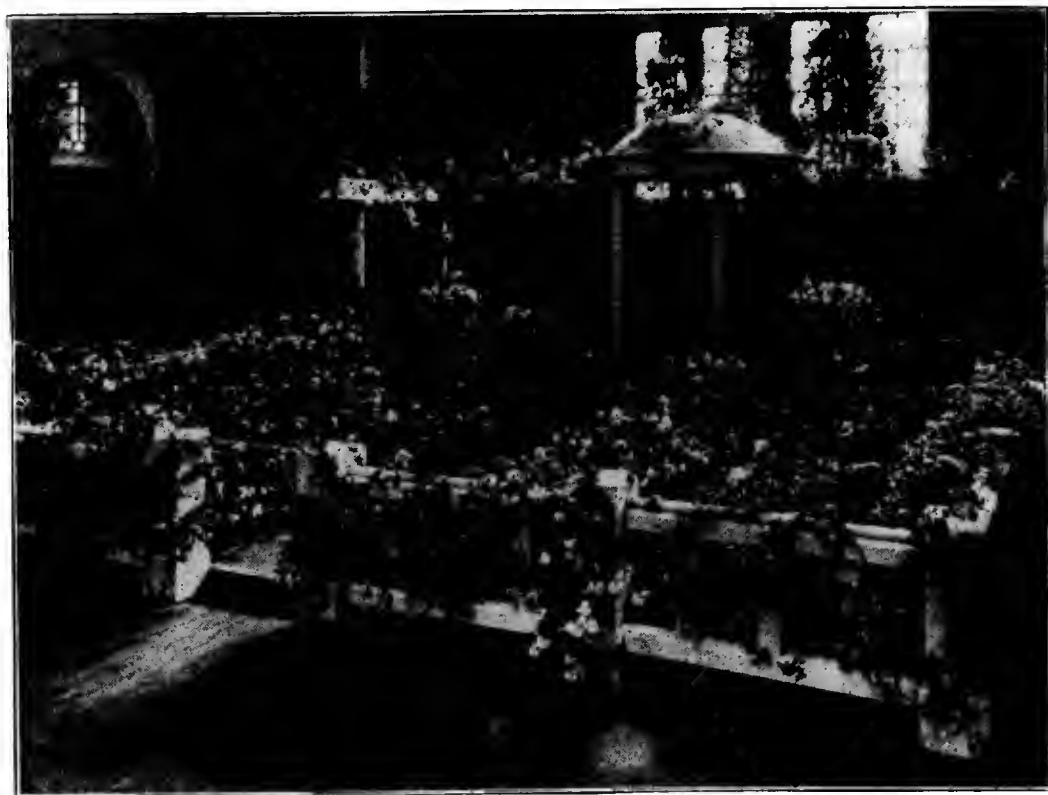

For twelve amaryllis, William T. Walke, of Salem, won first and second with a fine lot of seedlings. For six eyclamens, in spite of the lateness of the season, some grand plants were shown. Peter Arnott won, second going to E. H. Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. Lester Leland. Henry Stewart was first in the classes for four genistas, one genista and six ericas, with fine specimens.

Walter H. Golby, superintendent to E. A. Clark, was first for six hyacinths, one pan of hyacinths, six pans of large trumpet narcissi, six pans short trumpet narcissi and the finest bulb display, covering fifty square feet.

Hydrangeas were exceptionally fine. For six plants, first prize went to E. S. Webster; second to Norbert Bros. For four schizanthus there were several entries. James Marlborough won with perfect specimens four to five feet across; E. S. Webster was second. For six Primula malacoides, Henry Stewart and George F. Stewart won in the order named.

For an artistic group of flowering and foliage plants, Walter H. Golby was first, with an excellent and tastefully arranged group, in which standard geraniums, roses, memesias, Fuchsia corymbiflora, marguerites and hydrangeas were specially good. F. E. Palmer, who was a good second, had a splendid wealth of flowering material rather more formally arranged. The bulbous material, hydrangeas, roses and genistas were particularly good.

For fifteen spikes of antirrhinums, S. J. Goddard was first and Peter Arnott second. For fifty lavender sweet peas, N. F. Comley won with splendid flowers; W. W. Thompson Co. was second. For fifty white sweet peas the W. W. Thompson Co. was first and N. F. Comley was second. For fifty pink tion of varieties of Dendrobium nobile, beautifully flowered.

For the 200-foot group of orchids for commercial growers Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., led with a beautiful group, artistically arranged. Among his plants were numerous Cypripedium Maudiae and odontiodas, Cattleya Trianae alba and Schroederæ alba, brassocattleyas in variety and many fine odontoglossums, cymbidiums, phalanopsis, oncidiums and renantheras. Affmann received a certificate for superior culture of cymbidiums. A. C. Burrage had the best collection of cut orchids.

The Azaleas.

Since Quarantine 37 went into force, azaleas have almost disappeared commercially, but at the Boston shows they continue to be shown in unusual numbers and attract great attention. A group of over 100 Kurume azaleas, sweet peas the W. W. Thompson Co. was first, with Zvolanek's Rose, and W. W. Thompson Co. was second, with Rose Queen.

Specimen Blooming Plants.

For any other variety specimen plant in bloom, Mrs. N. M. Bryant, Waltham, William Reach, gardener, was first with a magnificent herbaceous calceolaria and second went to Henry Stewart, with Chorizema ilicifolium.

Mrs. C. G. Weld had a fine group of specimen cyclamens and large marguerites. N. T. Kidder showed some interesting flowering plants, of which Senecio multibracteata, with lovely pink flowers, was specially good. The W. W. Edgar Co. received a cultural certificate for Lilium candidum. Mrs. W. R. Cross had a collection of sweet peas and Brigid anemones. Mrs. J. M. Sears had camellias, francisceas, greenhouse vincas and petunias.

Wollrath & Sons had a nice group of Saintpaulia ionantha, and Mrs. B. K. Farr one of her new begonias. Walter Hunnewell had fine specimens of Erica melanthera. W. N. Craig showed a collection of narcissi in vases, such as Van Waveren's Giant, King Alfred, Lucifer and others. Walter Hunnewell had a group of the white-flowered Choisya ternata.

Splendid Begonias.

J. A. Peterson & Son, of Westwood, Cincinnati, O., showed excellent plants of their begonias, smothered with bloom. Peerless, Mrs. Peterson, Melior and Cincinnati. Prof. Sargent was awarded a first-class certificate for Taiwania cryptomerioides from the island of Formosa, similar to Araucaria excelsa in habit, but it is more spiny and the branches are more pendulous. It attains a height of 250 feet in its native habitat. Charles Sander was awarded a gold medal for his beautiful group of Azalea Sanderi. William Reach was awarded a cultural certificate for superb herbaceous calceolarias, four feet in diameter.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. contributed a bed of polyanthus with a group of well flowered kalmias in the center and a border of verdant turf.

Among the retailers, Penn the Florist made an attractive showing of baskets, vases, etc., arranged suitably for home decorations, and was awarded a silver medal. A similar award went to Henry R. Comley for a tasteful display, while the Boston Cut Flower Co. received a bronze medal for a handsome basket of roses.

The Carnations.

There was an excellent show of carnations. For a group arranged for effect, covering 100 square feet, William Sim was first, with a splendid lot of flowers artistically set up and including handsome vases or baskets of Laddie, Rosalia, Rosette, Belle Washburn, Pink Delight, White Delight, Gay Gordon, Mrs. Grace Coolidge, Benora, Ruth Baur, Aviator and other good sorts.

For vase of crimson, W. D. Howard won with Bernice. For light pink, Coombs, of Hartford, won with Laddie and second went to William Sim with the same variety. For dark pink, W. D. Howard led with Mrs. Ward and second went to William Sim, with Rosalia. William Sim and W. D. Howard led in the order named for scarlet, both showing Belle Washburn.

Orchid Exhibit Staged by A. C. Burrage at the Boston Show.

For variegated, William Sim won, with W. D. Howard second, both with Benora. For white, William Sim again won, with splendid White Benora, and second went to W. D. Howard, with Matchless. For any other color, R. E. Wadsworth & Co. won with its new variety, Dawn, which showed up well.

Strout's, of Biddeford, Me., had a fine display, not for competition, of White Delight, Donald and other fine varieties. William Sim received a silver medal for Mrs. Grace Coolidge, formerly named Fairy, renamed in honor of the wife of Vice-president Coolidge. This variety attracted more attention than any other sort but Laddie. S. J. Goddard received honorable mention for Happy Day, and H. A. Stevens the same for Princess Patricia.

S. J. Goddard secured the unique award of a gold medal for a magnificent vase of Laddie, the finest flowers ever staged here of even this fine variety. This is the first time, I believe, that this high award has ever been given here for a carnation.

The closing day of the show found roses staged at the opening in vastly better condition than carnations. Many of the latter were asleep, while few roses had even dropped any petals.

Lectures.

The lectures given under the auspices of the American Rose Society attracted large audiences each day to the basement lecture room. April 6, Robert Pyle had an audience of over 200. April 7 J. Horace McFarland had an equally large crowd to enjoy his stereopticon talk on "Rose Gardens in Europe and America." C. H. Totty had a full house April 8, to hear his comments on roses in France, Great Britain and America, printed elsewhere in this issue.

April 9 W. N. Craig spoke to a crowded and attentive audience on "Suggestions on Hardy Rose Culture for New England." He gave a list of reliable hybrid perpetuals, hybrid teas, polyanthas, ramblers and other types and described the soil to plant them in, pruning, winter protection, fighting insects and diseases and other phases of hardy rose culture. Numerous questions were asked by an interested audience.

April 10 B. F. Letson, of Carbone's, gave a fine lecture on "Flower Arrangements," with practical demonstrations which proved most interesting and instructive. Mr. Letson took the place of F. A. Waugh, who had been scheduled to lecture on "Rambler Roses for New England Gardens."

The lectures all proved wonderfully successful and this branch of educational work is to be continued on seasonable flowers at all succeeding exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1921. W. N. C.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS AT BOSTON.

Burrage Entertains.

On the opening day of the exhibition President Albert C. Burrage entertained fifty of the judges, exhibitors and leading visitors at a buffet lunch served in the library of the society, which was much appreciated.

Rose Dinner.

On the evening of the opening day the allied interests of Boston gave a complimentary dinner at the Parker House to seventy-five visiting rosarians and others. A splendid dinner was served, after which Judge C. W. Hoitt, acting as toastmaster, gave the toasts of the American Rose Society and Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The first speaker, Robert Pyle, suitably responded for the American Rose Society and urged stronger support from the commercial rose growers. Albert C. Burrage, who received a warm welcome, responded for the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and made a special plea for the preservation and perpetuation of native orchids and other plants.

W. N. Craig spoke for the professional gardeners and criticized the commercial growers, saying they get far less out of life when they grow a rare and new varieties. A conservative estimate of the value of plants shown was $100,000 and there were many orchid enthusiasts from a distance. Orchids vied with roses in the popular interest. In the 200 foot group for private growers, A. C. Burrage, Douglas Eccleston, superintendent, won with a grand group. Some of his best subjects were Cattleya labiosa, Cattleya Schroederæ and Cattleya Dusseldorffii Lindley; Brassocattleyas Veitchii, Sedenii, var. Rosalind and Empress of Russia; Cattleyas Trianae alba and Skinneri alba; Odontoglossums excelens, Mrs. H. L. Chalifoux and Lambianiana; Cyclopogon pandurata; numerous varieties of odontiodas and many superb cymbidiums, phalaenopsis, oncidiums, renantheras and other species.

For a group covering 100 square feet for private growers, A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., Oliver Lines, gardener, led with a glorious group, practically every plant new or rare. Some of the best were Brassocattleya Queen Alexandra, langleyensis, Madeline, Digbyana-Schroederæ and speciosa grandis; Cattleya Trianae virginale, Cattleya Trianae alba, Cattleya Schroederæ Dainty, Cattleya Schroederæ alba, Cattleya luminosa, Cattleya Mossiae Reinckiana; Sophrolaeliocattleya Mense, var. General Neville and some magnificent Odontoglossum crispum, odontiodas and phalaenopsis.

For the 50 foot group, Walter Hummewell, T. D. Hatfield, superintendent, took both first and second. His cymbidiums were superb, some of the spikes carrying as many as thirty flowers each, and he had a noteworthy collection of varieties of Dendrobium nobile, beautifully flowered.

For the 100-foot group, J. T. Butterworth captured first with wonderful cymbidiums, dendrobiums, Lycaste Skinneri, odontoglossums and cattleyas.

For twelve specimen orchids, A. C. Burrage was first, with E. S. Webster, Peter Arnott, gardener, an excellent second. For six plants, A. C. Burrage won and was also first and second for huge single specimens of Cattleya Schroederæ, carrying 150 flowers, and C. Skinneri, with treble that number.

Special Awards.

Among the honorary awards for orchids were the following: Miss Cornelia Warren, Henry Stewart, gardener, had a group of large specimens of Dendrobium nobile, heavily flowered. Silver medals were awarded to the Julius Roehrs Co. for a grand collection of odontiodas; to A. N. Cooley for Sophrolaeliocattleya Mense, var. General Neville; to Muller Sealey for a display of Cypripedium Pawelsii cut in Belgium five weeks previously; to A. W. Preston, John L. Smith, gardener, for Brassodolaeliocattleya Hilda.

First-class certificates of merit went to A. N. Cooley for Brassodolaeliocattleya, var. Jean Potine, for Cattleya Mossiae Reinckiana and Brassocattleya speciosa grandis; to A. C. Burrage for Laeliocattleya California, Laeliocattleya labiosa and Miltonia Hycana Flambeau; to J. T. Butterworth for Cypripedium J. T. Butterworth; to E. S. Webster for Odontoglossum lutescens and to J. B. Duke, Somerville, N. J., Arthur E. Miles, gardener, for Odontioda Joan, var. Mrs. Harding. John splendidly flowered, from John S. Ames, William Swan, superintendent, received a gold medal. They were artistically arranged in a small Japanese garden by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., a wonderful improvement on last year's arrangement of the plants from the Arnold Arboretum and Prof. Sargent.

Charles Sander, superintendent to Prof. C. S. Sargent, had a splendid group of azaleas, all his own seedlings. He received silver medals for the varieties Hilda Hedlund and obtusa alba, similar to the Kurumes in size of flower, habit and floriferousness. A first-class certificate of merit went to Prof. Sargent for Azalea Tebotan. Walter Hummewell showed a large group of the beautiful, rich yellow azalea, Miss Louisa Hummewell, again one of the great attractions of the show.

For six specimen azaleas, Miss Cornelia Warren was first and George F. Stewart, superintendent to Arthur Lyman, second. These plants averaged four to five feet across. For a single specimen Mr. Stewart won with a huge, beautifully flowered plant of indica alba, eight feet across and nearly as high. Miss Warren's second prize specimen of the same variety was nearly as large. Finer azaleas were never shown here.

The six specimens of Rhododendron Pink Pearl, from James Marlborough, surpassed anything ever seen here. Azalea Schlippenbuechii, from the same grower, received a silver medal.

Miscellaneous Plants and Flowers.

For twelve amaryllis, William T. Walke, of Salem, won first and second with a fine lot of seedlings. For six cyclamens, in spite of the lateness of the season, some grand plants were shown. Peter Arnott won, second going to E. H. Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. Lester Leland. Henry Stewart was first in the classes for four genistas, one genista and six ericas, with fine specimens.

Walter H. Golby, superintendent to E. A. Clark, was first for six hyacinths, one pan of hyacinths, six pans of large trumpet narcissi, six pans short trumpet narcissi and the finest bulb display, covering fifty square feet.

Hydrangeas were exceptionally fine. For six plants, first prize went to E. S. Webster; second to Norbert Bros. For four schizanthus there were several entries. James Marlborough won with perfect specimens four to five feet across; E. S. Webster was second. For six Primula malacoides, Henry Stewart and George F. Stewart won in the order named.

For an artistic group of flowering and foliage plants, Walter H. Golby was first, with an excellent and tastefully arranged group, in which standard geraniums, roses, menesias, Fuchsia corymbiflora, marguerites and hydrangeas were specially good. F. E. Palmer, who was a good second, had a splendid wealth of flowering material rather more formally arranged. The bulbous material, hydrangeas, roses and genistas were particularly good.

For fifteen spikes of antirrhinums, S. J. Goddard was first and Peter Arnott second. For fifty lavender sweet peas, N. F. Comley won with splendid flowers; W. W. Thompson Co. was second. For fifty white sweet peas the W. W. Thompson Co. was first and N. F. Comley was second. For fifty pink tion of varieties of Dendrobium nobile, beautifully flowered.

For the 200-foot group of orchids for commercial growers Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., led with a beautiful group, artistically arranged. Among his plants were numerous Cypripedium Mandiae and odontiodas, Cattleya Trianae alba and Schroederæ alba, brassocattleyas in variety and many fine odontoglossums, cymbidiums, pha- lalanopsis, oncidiums and renantheras. Affmann received a certificate for superior culture of cymbidiums. A. C. Burrage had the best collection of cut orchids.

The Azaleas.

Since Quarantine 37 went into force, azaleas have almost disappeared commercially, but at the Boston shows they continue to be shown in unusual numbers and attract great attention. A group of over 100 Kurume azaleas, sweet peas the W. W. Thompson Co. was first, with Zvolanek's Rose, and W. W. Thompson Co. was second, with Rose Queen.

Specimen Blooming Plants.

For any other variety specimen plant in bloom, Mrs. N. M. Bryant, Waltham, William Reach, gardener, was first with a magnificent herbaceous calceolaria and second went to Henry Stewart, with Chorizema ilicifolium.

Mrs. C. G. Weld had a fine group of specimen cyclamens and large marguerites. N. T. Kidder showed some interesting flowering plants, of which Senecio multibracteata, with lovely pink flowers, was specially good. The W. W. Edgar Co. received a cultural certificate for Lilium candidum. Mrs. W. R. Cross had a collection of sweet peas and Brigid anemones. Mrs. J. M. Sears had camellias, fransisceas, greenhouse vineas and petunias.

Wollrath & Sons had a nice group of Saintpaulia ionantha, and Mrs. B. K. Farr one of her new begonias. Walter Hunnewell had fine specimens of Erica melanthera. W. N. Craig showed a collection of narcissi in vases, such as Van Waveren's Giant, King Alfred, Lucifer and others. Walter Hunnewell had a group of the white-flowered Choisya ternata.

Splendid Begonias.

J. A. Peterson & Son, of Westwood, Cincinnati, O., showed excellent plants of their begonias, smothered with bloom, Peerless, Mrs. Peterson, Melior and Cincinnati. Prof. Sargent was awarded a first-class certificate for Taiwania cryptomerioides from the island of Formosa, similar to Arancaria excelsa in habit, but it is more spiny and the branches are more pendulous. It attains a height of 250 feet in its native habitat. Charles Sander was awarded a gold medal for his beautiful group of Azalea Sanderi. William Reach was awarded a cultural certificate for superb herbaceous calceolarias, four feet in diameter.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. contributed a bed of polyanthus with a group of well flowered kalmias in the center and a border of verdant turf.

Among the retailers, Penn the Florist made an attractive showing of baskets, vases, etc., arranged suitably for home decorations, and was awarded a silver medal. A similar award went to Henry R. Comley for a tasteful display, while the Boston Cut Flower Co. received a bronze medal for a handsome basket of roses.

The Carnations.

There was an excellent show of carnations. For a group arranged for effect, covering 100 square feet, William Sim was first, with a splendid lot of flowers artistically set up and including handsome vases or baskets of Laddie, Rosalia, Rosette, Belle Washburn, Pink Delight, White Delight, Gay Gordon, Mrs. Grace Coolidge, Benora, Ruth Baur, Aviator and other good sorts.

For vase of crimson, W. D. Howard won with Bernice. For light pink, Coombs, of Hartford, won with Laddie and second went to William Sim with the same variety. For dark pink, W. D. Howard led with Mrs. Ward and second went to William Sim, with Rosalia. William Sim and W. D. Howard led in the order named for scarlet, both showing Belle Washburn.

Orchid Exhibit Staged by A. C. Burrage at the Boston Show.

For variegated, William Sim won, with W. D. Howard second, both with Benora. For white, William Sim again won, with splendid White Benora, and second went to W. D. Howard, with Matchless. For any other color, R. E. Wadsworth & Co. won with its new variety, Dawn, which showed up well.

Strout's, of Biddeford, Me., had a fine display, not for competition, of White Delight, Donald and other fine varieties. William Sim received a silver medal for Mrs. Grace Coolidge, formerly named Fairy, renamed in honor of the wife of Vice-president Coolidge. This variety attracted more attention than any other sort but Laddie. S. J. Goddard received honorable mention for Happy Day, and H. A. Stevens the same for Princess Patricia.

S. J. Goddard secured the unique award of a gold medal for a magnificent vase of Laddie, the finest flowers ever staged here of even this fine variety. This is the first time, I believe, that this high award has ever been given here for a carnation.

The closing day of the show found roses staged at the opening in vastly better condition than carnations. Many of the latter were asleep, while few roses had even dropped any petals.

Lectures.

The lectures given under the auspices of the American Rose Society attracted large audiences each day to the basement lecture room. April 6, Robert Pyle had an audience of over 200. April 7 J. April 10 B. F. Letson, of Carbone's, gave a fine lecture on "Flower Arrangements," with practical demonstrations which proved most interesting and instructive. Mr. Letson took the place of F. A. Waugh, who had been scheduled to lecture on "Rambler Roses for New England Gardens."

The lectures all proved wonderfully successful and this branch of educational work is to be continued on seasonal flowers at all succeeding exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1921. W. N. C.

On the opening day of the exhibition President Albert C. Burrage entertained fifty of the judges, exhibitors and leading visitors at a buffet lunch served in the library of the society, which was much appreciated.

On the evening of the opening day the allied interests of Boston gave a complimentary dinner at the Parker House to seventy-five visiting rosarians and others. W. N. Craig spoke for the professional gardeners and criticized the commercial growers, saying they get far less out of life when they grow a few varieties in large houses with dollars as the only object in view, than the small growers and amateurs who have a greater variety.

C. H. Totty spoke for New York and mentioned the success achieved by the recent show at the Grand Central Palace, with an attendance of about 100,000.

Thomas Roland spoke for the S. A. F. and referred to the great preparations being made for the Cleveland show and urged everyone to support it most heartily.

John H. Dunlop spoke for Canada and referred to his earlier visits to the Hub, also to what he was continuing to do in the way of seedling raising.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar advocated increased attention to the many beautiful and useful species of roses and referred to hunts he had made in Scotland, Russia and Japan for certain interesting and unusual varieties.

William H. Elliott commended Boston's system of grading roses and referred to California and its wonderful flora, especially in the higher altitudes.

W. A. Manda spoke on hybridizing and the big field open to rosarians now. There were few of the newer roses better than the old Gloire de Dijon, when vigor, fragrance, stem, hardiness and floriferousness were considered.

Henry Penn spoke on the benefits of publicity as applied to flower shows.

Eugene Dailledouze referred to how he loved to linger in and around the Hub at spring show periods and A. J. Loveless, the last speaker, commented on the many fine features of the Boston show.

The event was a pleasant one and much enjoyed by all who attended.

Orchid Dinner.

On the evening of April 7, following the successful launching of the American Orchid Society, Albert C. Burrage, president-elect of the new society and also president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, gave a dinner at the Algonquin Club, Commonwealth avenue, to thirty-five leading orchid specialists. The decorations of cattleyas, oncidiums and other orchids were sumptuous and the dinner one long to be remembered, served in the best style of this famous aristocratic club.

Short addresses were made by Mr. Burrage and Thomas Roland, after which, on invitation of the host of the evening, all accepted an invitation to visit Mr. Burrage's Commonwealth avenue residence, a couple of blocks distant, and inspect his collection of minerals.

Those who imagined that such a collection was comparatively small and not specially interesting were dumfounded at the wonderful array of minerals of every kind, from diamonds in the raw state to diamonds which filled case after case in a large room. All cases were splendidly lighted and the glorious range of colors and infinite variety of the minerals excited everyone to exclamations of wonder, and out of the thousands of specimens shown Mr. Burrage could tell the full history of each one, just as he can of his new pets, hybrid orchids.

The members left the mineral collection reluctantly, especially as the liquid refreshments and choice cigars appealed to the sentiments of not a few. Later the great orchid library was examined in part, this concluding a most delightful evening. W. N. C.

ROLAND WINS ON ROSES.

The silver cup offered for the finest vase of roses in the show was awarded April 9 to Thomas Roland for his first prize vase of Hadley. The flowers were all in perfect condition when judged, after being on exhibition four days. Mr. Roland also won the silver cup offered by the North Shore Garden Club for the exhibit of the best new hardy garden rose, with his exhibit of Los Angeles. As he won the prize for the big group of cut roses, as well as the blue ribbon premium of $1,000 for the best rose garden, not to mention other premiums, the redoubtable Nahant and Revere grower made an enviable record. A Word to Lovers of Flowers

Horticultural Hall, Massachusetts and Huntington avenues, is the scene of a Flower Show which every admirer of beautiful flowers should see between now and Sunday evening, when this exhibit is over.

The display of roses, orchids and spring flowers of the choicest varieties is undoubtedly one of the most creditable ever made in this hall famous for charming exhibitions.

Every showing is worthy of mention and we say don't miss this Flower Show and in passing note our display of flowers particularly arranged for home decoration.

Farquhar, president of the New England Nurserymen's Association, and S. J. Goddard, president of the New England Flower Growers' Association. Truly a noteworthy group of notables.

WATCH YOUR CHANCE.

Do you take advantage of the opportunities in your own town or city to make yourself and your business known to the community, to the people whom you wish to make your customers? A local flower show offers an opportunity, though few florists make use of it to the extent that they might. For example, see what Penn the Florist does in Boston when a big show is in progress, such as the combined exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the American Rose Society, at Horticultural hall, Boston, last week.

Read the advertisement from the Boston Post reproduced on this page.

Says Mr. Penn of the advertisement: "It is an indirect advertisement which creates good-will with the people as well as with the management of the show, which is evidenced by the wording."

GROWING E. A. SEIDEWITZ.

In growing E. A. Seidewitz chrysanthemums we have found the points go blind from damping and other growers in this district have found the same condition true. Would heavy feeding cause this condition to arise or would stopping at any particular time benefit the plants? We have successfully grown all other popular varieties this year with the same treatment this particular variety has received.

S. A. N.—Can.

The variety of chrysanthemum E. A. Seidewitz is a strong, heavy grower and quite susceptible to burning from heavy feeding. It should be grown as naturally as possible, always bearing in mind that it is a late variety and, when well grown, is at its best for Thanksgiving. Late buds should be taken, because the earliest buds, while they make large blooms, are never entirely satisfactory.

CHICAGO'S PAGEANT

MAYOR ADDRESSES FLORISTS.

Pageant of Progress the Theme.

To urge participation by the florists of Chicago in the big Pageant of Progress, to be held July 31 to August 14 at the Municipal pier, Mayor William Hale Thompson appeared in person Thursday evening, April 7, to address the Chicago Florists' Club at its regular meeting at the Hotel Randolph.

The mayor outlined the ambitious plans laid by himself and his associates, the object of which is to set the wheels of idle factories in the Chicago district again in motion and to fill the shops of the city with buyers from out of town. To accomplish this, a combination of the great exhibitions such as held at the Coliseum is to be staged on the Municipal pier, which is said to contain ten times as much exhibition space as the Coliseum. The pier will be divided into sixteen sections, and the leading industries of the city have been invited to underwrite a section. The florists have been offered the sec-

Pageant of Progress. He stated that there are many things florists could show in connection with this exhibition; for instance, the old method of delivering flowers compared with telegraph service at the present time, a view of old greenhouses compared with the present houses eighty feet wide, the progress of heating from the days of the old flue system to the present water tube steam boilers. It was pointed out that the flower shows formerly held at the Coliseum simply attracted people who were interested in flowers; at the versity of Illinois, who read a paper on "What We Are Learning About Plants," which appears on another page of this issue.

In response to a request from J. F. Ammann, chairman of the membership committee of the S. A. F., President Kohout appointed Paul Weiss chairman of a local committee to secure members in the national organization, with power to appoint the rest of his committee.

New Members.

The following candidates for membership were presented:

Gustaf Bloom, grower, 11936 Eggleston avenue, Chicago.

Anthony Batek, grower, Shermerville, Ill.

The following nominees were elected to membership, one ballot being cast by the secretary upon the motion of T. E. Waters, duly seconded and carried:

Frank M. Suttle, advertising, 225 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.

Edward L. Martin, salesman, 174 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

John H. Paddon, grower, Lincoln park, 318 Center street, Chicago.

W. J. Sharpe, seedsman, 901 North La Salle street, Chicago.

Alec F. Gardiner, retail florist, 11361 Michigan avenue, Chicago.

Oscar Anderson, grower, Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Assn., Morgan Park, Chicago.

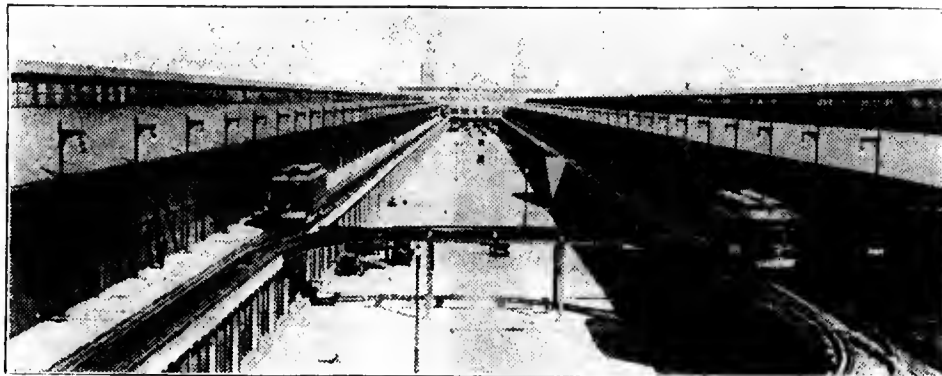

Reinberg Memorial Resolution.

While the members stood, the resolution in memory of Peter Reinberg was read, as follows:

Whereas, in view of the loss to the Chicago Florists' Club sustained by the decease of our friend, member and associate, Honorable Peter Reinberg,

In view of his high standing in the councils of public service, his monument and heritage to the people in the work and the perpetuation of the forest preserve, his many acts of kindness and assistance given to the poor, to the needy and to the distressed, which have endeared his memory to all,

We are also deeply appreciative of his services rendered to floriculture and to this club. When he first began to lay the foundation in the west of a great and prosperous industry in the building of the world's largest greenhouses, we had with us a man of vision who foresaw the opportunities and the growth in floriculture. So by tion at the entrance to the pageant, and the mayor detailed to the 150 florists at the meeting the benefits to be derived from their occupying this space.

The mayor's address was heartily cheered by everyone present. On motion of D. F. Simonds, duly seconded by William J. Keimel, it was resolved that the committee of the Chicago Florists' Club and the Allied Florists' Association be empowered to engage space immediately for all branches of the florists' industry.

Upon his departure the mayor was presented with a large basket of roses by the presiding officer. The splendid basket of the new white carnation, Thomas C. Joy, exhibited by the American Bulb Co., previously much admired by the florists present, was presented to the mayor by Fred Lautenschlager.

Opportunities Suggested.

J. E. Pollworth, of the Pageant of Progress committee, stated that the committee would welcome suggestions and ideas in reference to the exhibition.

President Kohout presented H. B. Dorner, head of the division of floriculture at the University of Illinois, Urbana. Professor Dorner has been appointed a member of the committee on education in connection with the Pageant of Progress many attractions will draw the public.

William J. Keimel stated that he expected to have Premier roses on exhibition during the Pageant as good as any shown at the New York flower show or any other time.

Herman Schau, William Hennig and D. F. Simonds each volunteered to make a cash donation to support this movement. This matter was referred to the committee.

his success and by his confidence in undertaking floriculture on such a large scale, he materially enhanced our individual ambitions.

The Chicago Florists' Club mourns the loss of one who was so ever ready to do his share for the welfare and the prosperity of those similarly engaged and we sincerely condole with the family in the great loss.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Chicago Florists' Club and a copy thereof be embossed and sent to the family of our deceased member and notice of such resolution be published by each of the trade journals.

The committee which drew up this resolution was instructed by President Kohout to act similarly in regard to the late W. W. Barnard. The members are T. E. Waters, J. E. Pollworth and James Morton.

The committee to consider the reor-

Your committee has carefully considered President Kohout's reorganization plan and believes that with some modifications it might be approved by all the local trade organizations.

Now that the restraining effects of the war are passing away, there is opening to the Chicago Florists' Club a broad field for educational work and regulation to prevent waste in effort and expense.

The flower shows of former years need revival, the Pageant of Progress demands united effort on the part of the trade, and there are many questions of production and distribution which must be thoroughly discussed. If the trade of this territory is to be kept abreast of the times under the rapidly changing conditions now confronting us.

This work requires the earnest cooperation of all trade interests, and your committee is of the opinion that united action would produce highly beneficial results. It is, therefore, recommended that the proposed plan of reorganization be submitted to all other local trade bodies interested in the advancement of floriculture, requesting:

1. Consideration of the plan.
2. Modifications or amendments.
3. Committee from each organization to discuss the situation.

On receipt of the views of other interested organizations, the Chicago Florists' Club would be in position to take such further action as may be necessary.

It seems to your committee that the various trade organizations could advantageously unite for the common good on matters of general interest, leaving each individual organization free to transact its special business in its own way.

The report was signed by M. C. Wright, chairman; Philip J. Foley, Jr., and Michael Barker. It was recommended that the members be given additional time to think this matter over and it will come up for discussion at a future meeting.

Secretary Lautenschlager called attention to the questionnaire sent out with the April notices, and for the benefit of those who have not yet sent in answers, the secretary read off a number of the questionnaires which have come in. From all indications, the questionnaire will be of great value to the members of the Florists' Club, as it is an opportunity for each member to express his individual desires, and many valuable suggestions were forthcoming. Those who have not as yet sent in their questionnaires are requested to do so immediately.

Policies for the Florists' Trade." Mr. Fernald proved to be an able speaker, and his address showed that he had thoroughly studied his subject. He distributed copies of a useful little book by Truman A. De Weese, which he said might be considered as a base for his talk, and he referred to important chapters in the volume. Coming down to the florists' advertising, he said that it should not be forgotten that the florists were obliged, first, to consider what he would term "habits and customers." People did not think enough about flowers, and the purpose of advertising should be to remind them of the beauty of flowers and that they were essential in the home for many reasons. It was not necessary to deal with descriptions of flowers, for every one knew and loved them. The florists were fortunate, he said, in having a commodity which interested everybody, and, unlike dealers in pianos, phonographs and many other articles of merchandise, which usually met with but one sale to one party, the florists would make repeated sales to individual customers, as many as two and three a week, even one each day. Forgetfulness, he said, was a cause of a condition of poor business, and this certainly could be removed through judicious advertising. A good thought expressed in a good advertisement would more than likely create a desire, and this desire would result in business. The oftener the advertisement, the better for the flower business.

Allied Florists' Association.

A. M. Henshaw, president of the Allied Florists' Association, at the close of Mr. Fernald's talk addressed the meeting and detailed what his organization had done in the way of publicity for flowers. He deplored the lack of support, even interest, on the part of the retail trade, but expressed the opinion that the retailers did not understand the situation or were not satisfied with the plan on which they were expected to cooperate. At a meeting of wholesalers held April 8 it was decided that the only way to get equitable support from the retailers was to offer them a plan embodying an assessment of one-half of one per cent on their purchases, a small assessment, it was true, but in the aggregate amounting to a considerable sum. About $6,000 had so far been collected, but $50,000 ought to be available, and it would not be too much. The advertising so far done, which at best was only of a preliminary sort, had proved its worth, and immediate and satisfactory results had been noted.

Aubrey Nash, secretary of the association, gave some figures which were quite interesting. On the guarantees turned in there had been collections as follows: Growers, $3,000; wholesalers, $1,600; seed and bulb houses, $800; greenhouse interests, $300; supply dealers, $700; retailers, $25. These figures were approximate, as his actual figures were not at hand. About $6,000 was the amount in all, of which about $2,000 had been paid out for three advertisement issues.

Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., was also a speaker and expressed his surprise that a greater interest was not taken in the movement.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered

NEW YORK CLUB MEETS.

Returns on Flower Show.

The New York Florists' Club met Monday evening, April 11, in the club's quarters, in the Engineering Societies' building. President I. S. Hendrickson occupied the chair, and there were about 100 members present.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, Secretary Young, for the flower show committee, read a preliminary report covering the finances of the show held last month in the Grand Central Palace. Receipts from all sources were given as $71,411.26. Of this amount, over $41,000 was taken in at the box office, and the trade space returns were about $16,000. The returns for trade tickets could only be estimated at present, on account of adjustments in progress for unused tickets. The expenses attaching to the exhibition were higher than usual, for many reasons, one of which was the premium list, a large number of the classes being wholly filled. The premiums actually awarded amounted to something like $16,000, outside of the cost of all the gold, silver and bronze medals. The committee was unable to determine the amount which would be available as a surplus, but it was expected to be between $6,500 and $7,000.

John H. Pepper presented a resolution of sympathy on the death of Charles Millang, a member, which was adopted, and a copy of it was ordered sent to the deceased's family.

New Members.

The following were elected to membership in the club: Nicholas Grakas, 4215 Third avenue, and James F. Baird, 35 West Eighth street, New York; Wm. A. Frankerbach, Southampton, L. I., and Carl Oscar Carlson, Fairfield, Conn. (life). Nominations for election at the next meeting were: Paul E. Atkinson, 7 West Forty-fifth street, New York; James Hagerup and Frank S. Bosslvage, 15 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn; Anthony Denis, 314 Lenox avenue, New York, and Henry J. Apple, Whitestone, N. Y.

The secretary read his financial report for the year ended December 31, 1920, reading of which was held over from the March meeting on account of the flower show. The report showed the finances of the club to be in good shape, with a balance in the treasury of nearly $20,000. The report was, on motion, accepted.

Vice-president Irwin, as chairman of the board of trustees, presented the budget committee's report, which recommended a liberal appropriation for expenses during the current year. On motion, the report was accepted and the recommendations therein were adopted.

Mr. Irwin, as chairman of the dinner committee, reported that the dinner held at the Hotel Baltimore March 16 was a great success and practically financed itself, only a negligible deficiency resulting. The report was accepted, with a vote of thanks to the committee.

Address on Advertising.

The speaker of the evening was L. D. Fernald, advertising manager of the New York Evening Post, whose subject was "Newspaper Advertising, with Especial Reference to Advertising

WHY SOILS ARE SICK

SOIL AND PLANT LIFE.

What We Are Learning About Plants.

In my paper read at the recent meeting of the Illinois State Florists, published in The Review March 10, I pointed out the more important principles underlying the use of fertilizers. Commercial fertilizers, when applied to soils, often show a direct effect on the growth of plants and it is unquestionably true that there is a direct relation between plant growth and soil fertility as measured by plant food materials. However, plant growth and, hence, production, are not dependent entirely upon the chemical composition of soils. Other factors are involved and these often come noticeably into play.

In my recent paper I emphasized the fact that it is not only necessary to have present, in the soil, certain chemical substances in minimum quantities, but that these substances must be in available form. I pointed out also the importance of natural manures. By natural manures I mean not only the usual stable manures, but include in that term all forms of plant material such as cover crops plowed under and also all residues of dead vegetation.

Manures furnish not only an ideal physical substratum for plant growth, but they contain also food materials, especially nitrogen, in quantity. This nitrogen, however, is largely in an unavailable form; that is, in a form that cannot be used directly by plants. The nitrogen in manures must be changed from its organic, unavailable form into an available form.

Bacteria Busy Workers.

This change is brought about by means of small living organisms known as bacteria. These forms live in the soil. There are frequently from 30,000,000 to 100,000,000 of them in one gram of soil. This little army of workers is constantly at work transforming the organic materials into other forms and, curiously enough, there is involved a high degree of specialization of labor. One group of organisms carries out the first step in the process, a second group another step, and still a third carries the process to completion. With the work of this little army of bacteria the growing plant is intimately bound up. In fact, the whole existence of the plant is dependent upon it, for it is this little army of workers which transforms manures into nitrates, which are essential for the growth of the plant. There is a distinct relationship, then, between bacterial activity and the productivity of soil.

Let me impress upon you that the soil bacteria are living forms. As living forms they demand, as do our green plants, certain favorable conditions for growth and for their activities. These little organisms will not thrive in a wet soil. Neither will they thrive in a soil which is acid in reaction, and they, too, have their preferences for a certain degree of warmth. Under unfavorable conditions not only will they not thrive, but, curiously enough, their activities are displaced by the work of bacteria which are a detriment. These detrimental forms do not form nitrates; instead, they actually destroy the nitrates which were manufactured by the useful forms.

It is quite evident, then, that in growing plants we must keep soil conditions favorable for the nitrogen bacteria. Whatever affects injuriously the nitrogen bacteria affects, in a similar way, the growth of the plant. The two are intimately related in their activities. When conditions are such that the nitrate bacteria thrive and multiply, we have reasonable assurance that the organic materials in the soil are being transformed and that the plant receives an adequate supply of nitrogen.

So-Called Sick Soil.

Let me call to your attention still another factor operating in soils. I mentioned the group of organisms, the several forms of which are useful in that they decompose the organic nitrogenous manures in the soil and form available nitrogen compounds, which the plant requires. I have stated also that there is a second group which, when conditions are unfavorable for the activities of the useful forms, thrive and become harmful because they undo the work of the useful forms. There is still a third group which appears to be of great importance. Frequently we meet with a situation in which apparently the soil contains abundant food materials and these food materials are in available form, and, furthermore, other conditions, such as temperature and moisture, are undoubtedly favorable to growth. But, after a period of time, our plants fail to respond under these favorable conditions and productiveness decreases. Such a phenomenon, commonly known as soil sickness, is probably of most frequent occurrence in greenhouses. How can we explain this anomalous situation? It is believed, and we have much evidence for our belief, that the soil harbors a third group of organisms, which, although they do not affect directly plant growth, are harmful indirectly in that they apparently destroy the useful forms, while they themselves multiply rapidly. In other words, so-called sick soils are sick, not because there is a lack of plant food materials, or because there is acidity or possibly even because the temperature or moisture conditions are unfavorable, but because there is an unbalanced condition in the bacterial life of the soil. The useful workers, those which produce available food, are in minority, while the nonproducers, the parasites in the soil world, are in majority.

This is not fiction. Although many of the details still need solution, the essential facts are based upon scientific experiment. To give you all the evidence is not possible, for it is a long story; permit me to say only that if such sick soils are partially sterilized with heat, or if treated with disinfectants, as carbon bisulphide or toluene, the productive properties of the soil reappear. Apparently, this is because the harmful forms are more susceptible to these treatments than are the useful forms and, consequently, on the application of disinfectants, the parasitic forms are destroyed while the useful workers again multiply and carry on their productive work.

"Water Cure" for Plants.

Under natural conditions, that is, under conditions outdoors, so-called soil sickness is less conspicuous and probably of less frequent occurrence. This is probably due to the fact that outdoors the soil is subjected to more variable conditions, such as changes of temperature and changes of moisture content. Outdoor soils are subjected to heavy freezing during the winter months, also to heavy, drenching rains periodically throughout most of the year, which is not the case in the greenhouse. Because of the latter fact, the so-called "water cure" for sick soils has recently been advocated, based on the assumption that soil sickness is brought about by the accumulation of salts near the soil surface. The latter assumption is not justifiable in all cases, however, for soil sickness seems to occur in greenhouses during the winter months, when soil evaporation is not great and certainly but little concentration of the salts near the surface occurs. However, whatever the underlying causes may be, the water cure may be effective in some cases.

Soil sickness, although more conspicuous and also apparently of more frequent occurrence in greenhouses, is found also outdoors. Cases of soil sickness of field soils have been reported and some have been carefully investigated. These experiments have shown two important facts; first, that there is in sick soils a reduction in number of the useful bacteria, and, secondly, that the presence of large amounts of organic materials in soil favors soil sickness.

The paper read by Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, of the division of floriculture, University of Illinois, at the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club April 7, on "What We Are Learning About Plants."

The theory often has been advanced that soil sickness is due to the accumulation of toxic or poisonous substances in the soil. Some investigations seem to have shown that the decomposition of the organic material in soils results in products which exert harmful effects upon succeeding generations of the same, or of different, plants. Others have given some evidence that the plant itself excretes into soil substances which are injurious to succeeding crops. Whether these views are correct is not known. At present the experimental data and the resulting conclusions concerning soil toxins are not yet accepted without question by all investigators and students of the problems of soil productivity. There is much evidence which apparently shows that soil toxins are not involved, but, as pointed out above, that the detrimental factor is a biological one; that is, a living organism. We find justification for this view in the fact that, when partial sterilization by means of heat is resorted to, or when certain disinfectants are applied, the detrimental factor disappears and the productive powers of the soil reappear. In a short time after this treatment, the useful bacteria increase rapidly in number. If a small amount of untreated soil is added to the treated soil, in a few weeks there is again a reduction in number of these bacteria. In other words, this evidence seems to show that whatever the harmful factor may be, it is, presumably, living or biological in character.

Hope for a Remedy.

The treatment of soils by means of disinfectants must now be extensively investigated in our greenhouses. It is not unlikely that in course of time, as our studies continue, we shall be able to find a definite treatment for the so-called sick soils. And it is not unlikely that in the application of the above principles we shall find a solution of the problem of the ill effects resulting from the continued use of soils in our benches.

At the present time the outstanding fact of these discoveries is that the soil medium, in which our greenhouse plants grow, is not a simple dead material, but a living world in itself, inhabited by different groups of organisms, some essential, others destructive. This implies that, in the treatment of soils, the problem is not only one of the application of proper fertilizers, but one much greater and more difficult. It is the establishment of the proper balance in the populations of the various forms of soil inhabitants and, at the same time, the maintenance of proper soil conditions for the activities of the useful groups. In other words, the soil is a complex of many factors, some useful, some indifferent, others harmful. Some of these are by nature living organisms and, therefore, a mere quantitative chemical analysis of soils is not a true index of the productive power of the soil.

There is still another line of thought

I wish to present. I have pointed out the intimate relation that exists between plant growth and nutrients in the soil on the one hand and the important relations between these nutrients and the soil bacteria on the other. The plant also is intimately bound up with the various factors which make up its aerial environment; that is, with the various conditions above soils. The plant is a living organism. As such, it is responsive to the various factors of the environment to a marked degree. I need only recall such examples as the mimosa, commonly called the sensitive plant. This plant is truly sensitive, responding to the slightest touch by closing its leaflets. The common dandelion opens its flowers only in the light; the crocus, on the other hand, disregards light and refuses to open its flowers unless there is a certain degree of warmth. The opening and closing of the crocus flower is a direct response to temperature. We all agree that the human eye is exceedingly sensitive to light; yet some seedling plants will respond to a flicker of light which the human eye cannot detect.

The Plants' "Smoke Nuisance."

The plant is equally sensitive to poisons. Let me illustrate this by means of the sweet pea seedling. If we expose such a seedling to an atmosphere which contains cigar smoke there will be a definite reaction. In an atmosphere which contains 1,000 parts of cigar smoke to 1,000,000 parts of air the seedling will respond in three ways; the tip of the stem will grow at right angles, just below the tip the stem is much enlarged and the stem as a whole is shorter than one growing in pure air. If we have an atmosphere which contains 5,000 parts of smoke to 1,000,000 parts of atmosphere, elongation of the stem stops completely.

I am not advocating that plant growers should not smoke when working with plants, neither am I in sympathy with any anti-smoking league. I am citing these facts merely as examples of the sensitiveness of plants.

Let me illustrate again by means of illuminating gas. Flowers and buds of carnations are extremely sensitive to this gas in the air. One part of illuminating gas in 40,000 parts of air will kill young buds in three days and the same amount will prevent the opening of those which show color of the petals. Carnation flowers close after an exposure of twelve hours to one part of illuminating gas in 80,000 parts of air. And yet, some of our customers wonder why the flowers which they purchased only yesterday from the florist did not keep better!

One part of illuminating gas in 1,000 parts of air will cause the leaves of salvia, tomato, hibiscus and other plants to fall. In order to detect illuminating gas by the sense of smell, at least one part to 400 parts of air must be present.

One of the constituents of illuminating gas is ethylene. One part of ethylene in 1,000,000 parts of air prevents opening of carnation buds after three days, and one part in 2,000,000 causes mature flowers to close in twelve hours. The sweet pea seedling will stop growing entirely when the air contains one part of ethylene in 10,000,000 parts of atmosphere. In fact, a sweet pea seedling grown in the dark will detect traces of ethylene that we cannot detect by the most delicate chemical tests.

Slightly Unfavorable Conditions.

What do these facts and illustrations indicate? They indicate that the plant, because of its extreme sensitiveness, is frequently subjected to conditions of the air which do not permit maximum growth. It need not be a poisonous substance; it may be an unfavorable condition of light, of temperature or of humidity. In other words, the soil may contain abundant plant food materials and these in available form; the soil may also contain the proper organisms in adequate numbers and yet the plant fail to respond as it should. It fails to respond possibly because of some unfavorable factor, such as temperature, or moisture in the air, or light, or a peculiar combination of these which prevents the best growth.

HIS HONOR THE MAYOR.

Of Fond du Lac, Wis.

Richard D. Haentze was elected mayor of Fond du Lac, Wis., April 5 by a majority of 246, polling 2,890 votes to his opponent's 2,544 and carrying nine of the sixteen wards by a comfortable majority.

Mr. Haentze is widely known in the florists' trade and was elected president of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association last September.

The Fond du Lac Reporter characterizes the mayoralty campaign as one of the cleanest campaigns in the city's history. In an editorial the day following the election it said: "Mr. Haentze has been engaged in the florists' business for many years. He is possessed of real executive ability and business experience. He has served the city in public office before with credit to himself and the municipality and thus equipped he will enter upon the duties of mayor. It is interesting to note that the city's new mayor-elect is a brother of the late Robert Haentze, Fond du Lac's first commission mayor, who was held in the highest esteem and affection by everyone."

Mayor-elect Haentze will assume office as mayor of Fond du Lac Tuesday, April 19. On that same date John F. Hohensee, mayor since the death of Robert Haentze, will return to civil life.

Of Fremont, Neb.

Twenty-five years to a day after coming to Fremont, Neb., to take charge of a greenhouse he had purchased, Charles H. Green was elected mayor, receiving twice as many votes as the other two candidates put together. Though he made the race as a Republican, the Democratic paper of the city was stronger for him, if possible, than the Republican. This speaks well for the record he has made, as a business man, as a citizen and also as chairman of the board of public works, which office he has held in an able manner for over a year. He is president and majority stockholder of Green's Greenhouses, Inc., a firm composed only of those working in the greenhouses. The place has grown in twenty-five years from a tumble-down place of 3,000 feet to a modern, well equipped one of 40,000 feet. Before the premium list at the state fair was reduced, he used to win many of the first prizes for original designs, palms and cut flowers.

AT BAKERSTOWN.

In the visiting party that inspected the greenhouses of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown, Pa., as described in the Pittsburgh news-letter in last week's issue of The Review, were 110 florists or florists' folks. You can see them in the illustration on this page, a view in the carnation range. Despite the fact that it rained all day, this large party responded to the company's invitation to view the Bakerstown establishment. Wonder what would happen on a clear day!

THE AMERICAN ORCHID SOCIETY.

New Organization Launched.

There was an excellent attendance of about forty specialists at the official launching of the American Orchid Society, at Horticultural hall, Boston, April 7. Thomas Roland, president pro tem., then read the constitution and by-laws of the meeting. W. N. Craig, secretary pro tem., then read the constitution and by-laws as drafted by the local committee. These were unanimously approved. The dues were set at $100 for a life membership and $5 for regular or annual memberships. At the meeting six life memberships and thirty annual memberships were secured, and a total of 100 was guaranteed for the present year, with a large addition a year later.

Officers Elected.

The nominating committee brought in the following list of officers to serve for the present year and the list was unanimously accepted, the secretary being requested to cast one ballot for the same:

President—Albert C. Burrage, Boston.
Vice-presidents—Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J.; Ernest B. Dane, Chestnut Hill, Mass.; T. H. Wyckwire, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y.

Secretary—Alfred J. Loveless, Lenox, Mass.

Treasurer—Louis Burke, Philadelphia.
Trustees—Joseph Manda, East Orange, N. J.; George E. Baldwin, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Oliver Lines, Pittsfield, Mass.; Loren D. Towle, Newton, Mass.; John E.

Lager, Summit, N. J.; Edward Rochrs, Rutherford, N. J.; Edwin S. Webster, Chestnut Hill, Mass.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Oakes Ames, Cambridge, Mass.

Addresses.

Short addresses were made by Miss Eileen W. Low, of Enfield, England; J. T. Butterworth, George E. Baldwin, II, Walter Child, John E. Lager, W. A. Manda, Edward Rochrs, George A. Butterworth and A. J. Loveless. They all expressed pleasure at the formation of such a society, one which would appeal not only to all growers of greenhouse orchids, but also to growers of our beautiful, but fast disappearing, native varieties. It was noted that a number joining the society were interested in the hardy species only, and many members are expected of this sort.

The annual meetings of the society will be held in March or April each year, and the society plans later to offer medals and certificates, issue bulletins of useful knowledge, etc. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and the society starts off as the first national orchid society in the world and has every prospect of a successful career. W. N. C.

Auburn, Ind.—Ten Eyck & Son, of Auburn, have purchased the three greenhouses at Garrett, Ind., formerly operated by Arthur Sumners. The company will continue to run its greenhouses at Auburn and its store at Garrett.

Anoka, Minn.—Weeber & Race, of Minneapolis, are building three greenhouses, each 22x82, and one house 10x192 for Joe Baeh, proprietor of the Anoka Greenhouses. When completed he will have a good, up-to-date range of houses.

ROSES HERE AND IN EUROPE.

How They Look to an American.

Travelers returning from Europe almost always bring back glowing stories of the wonderful roses they grow over there and, unless they are expert horticulturists or have been caught before, they are more than likely to have a collection of roses stored away in their baggage. That is to say, they did have them stored away in their baggage before the days when the federal horticultural board issued its quarantine relative to the importing of roses and other plants.

Roses do, as a matter of fact, look better in northern Europe than they do with us here, but the real reason lies not in the improved varieties or better method of culture, but in the climatic conditions in those countries. The sun is not so scorching and the lovely, white, fleecy clouds temper its heat. The dry, hot winds that sweep over our western plains have no counterpart in Great Britain or northern France, where the summer winds are moisture-laden and the excessively high temperature is neutralized by the action of the ocean breezes. For instance, the roses from Dickson in Ireland, when brought over to England, almost invariably come out first in competition. The climate in northern Ireland is so cool that the buds are weeks instead of hours in developing and, consequently, make much larger, better finished and heavier flowers.

Favorable Conditions Abroad.

At the time of my visit last August, the weather was such that an overcoat was acceptable and an umbrella was a positive necessity. With rain every day, one would have thought that the plants would have been destroyed with mildew, yet there they were positively luxuriating under such conditions. Certain varieties, that I am well acquainted with, were twice as large in bud and flower as I had ever seen them. In Ireland I was surprised to find American Pillar in full bloom the middle of August and Mr. Dickson informed me the plants had been that way for three months, while individual flowers in the trusses would easily last from four to six weeks longer. Ye gods! What effects this would produce in America, if our hardy climbers would only last that long! While on the subject of climbers,

The address of Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., on "Roses in Europe and America," presented at the Boston rose exhibition, April 8.

I might say the Europeans have a great advantage over us. All climbing teas, for instance, are perfectly hardy with them and are all available for outside use. Climbing Lady Ashtown and Climbing Testout were wonderful subjects in the town of Angiers in France, while Gloire de Dijon was a wonderful memory in many a French village we passed through in our travels. A Marechal Niel, years and years old, almost covered a chateau in the vicinity of Bordeaux, where we spent a wonderful week. Our northern tier of states cannot dream of attempting to grow these varieties outdoors, but must fain be satisfied with Dorothy Perkins, Silver Moon, Dr. Van Fleet and others for a week or two in June.

I may add that the English variety, Paul's Scarlet Climber, seems destined to more than make itself popular with us.

Bagatelle Blooms.

We did not get to France before July 1, and the first flush of the international rose competition at Bagatelle had passed, although I saw enough to afford me several interesting and delightful afternoons. Souvenir de Claudius Pernet deserved its award. It is a deep chrome yellow and showed little of the tendency, at least in France, to have the white edge which is the bane of all yellow roses when grown outdoors. This white edge, of course, is due to the action of the sun in bleaching the color. Certainly, Pernet is a much better color than Constance, which has been quoted extensively as the best yellow to be grown outdoors. Constance is rather a poor growing rose with us, although I could almost have worshiped it when I saw it growing in Belfast, in a most luxuriant manner. Souvenir de Claudius Pernet, like Constance and many of the gold medal prize-winners of past years in the Bagatelle award, was one of the seedlings of the famous grower, Mr. Pernet. His fine garden roses are legion: Willowmere, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Juliet and the ever-popular Daily Mail rose, Mme. Edouard Herriot.

Irish and English growers were also well represented at Bagatelle. Both firms of Dickson and also three firms from Holland had fine exhibits there.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Hello, Brooklyn!" It was John Saunders, Ogdensburg, N. Y., speaking. He promised personal attention to the funeral order being placed over the long distance phone. Some one blundered when giving the address, so the order was ultimately found twelve miles from a railroad station, in the foothills of the Adirondacks, and at a time when the roads were in the worst possible condition. "When we made our report, we were informed of the disappointment, for the designs were delivered only just in time. Can you beat it?" Yet, withal, it is service that counts and that has enabled them to purchase the store in which they have done business for twenty years. It will be remodeled up to date, including a single deep window. Additional land has been secured to meet the increasing demand. The son, Fred, following a thorough course at Cornell, has taken charge of the growing end. Fine stocks of lilies and Darwin tulips, Princess Elizabeth, were the crowning features of what is accepted as the best Easter on record.

Mr. Lawrence, of Lawrence's Greenhouses, Ogdensburg, N. Y., is much pleased with the work of the Mechanicsville fuel burner for coal dust. This has proved to give as much heat from a ton of dust at $3 as from coal that cost $9 per ton. And there is no smoke.

"Even a tack is no good unless a little driving power is applied to it," observed A. J. Binley, Glens Falls, N. Y., adding that, as he had done considerable hammering before Easter, the returns surpassed the most sanguine expectations. The new store, leased at a rental thought impossible a short time ago, is proving a capital business puller.

"Had all we could take care of," observed Henry Crandall, of Crandall's Flower Shop, Glens Falls, N. Y. "Now with Mothers' day looming up and Memorial day soon following, it will keep all hands hustling." The new office in this store is worthy of note; every improvement has added to the value and, to quote Mr. Crandall, "shows new life in old established plants such as ours."

Henry Schrade, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., returned with Mrs. Schrade from Florida in time to assist during the Easter rush and, curious to relate, felt no difference in the temperature. His three sons had put in a fine stock, that sold at sight. "Best business ever," is the report, "and prospects highly encouraging."

Henry Bensel, Ballston Spa, N. Y., was a gratified individual after recovering from the Easter rush. Such unexpected business he had that he cleaned up everything salable. A nice stock is in sight for Memorial day. Mothers' day is usually not a big success, though special effort is being put forth to make it such.

"A steady increase all along the line," reports W. E. Peters, Burlington, Vt. "Easter business was remarkably good and the lily took the lead with a record of 700 plants. Any other kind of blooming plants sold well. Mothers' day is on the horizon and we look for good sales."

Mrs. C. C. Gove, proprietor of the store of Gove the Florist, Burlington, Vt., also speaks enthusiastically of business in general. Telegraph orders through the pink section of The Review added to the grand total at Easter.

The greenhouses of George E. Hunt, Rutland, Vt., had the appearance of a cyclonic visit following the Easter season. There was nothing left for Mothers' day, which promises to be as good.

A Courcelle & Son, Rutland, Vt., invested in a new auto delivery truck and gave it a severe test. "Don't see how we could have gotten through Easter without it," observed the senior Courcelle, "and, believe me, we are going to see just as good a general spring trade, for which we are preparing."

Kennedy & Ledoux, St. Albans, Vt., while preparing for a good spring business, following a phenomenal Easter, are among the cautious, who are reefing the sails to allow the ship to ride out the storm, should it arise.

"Best ever," replied Harry E. Cook, Plattsburg, N. Y., to the now somewhat stereotyped, though satisfactory inquiry touching Easter business, "for 'tis granted by almost every trade other than ours that conditions could be far better than they are and we must congratulate ourselves that the public taste is educated to the high degree it has reached. 'Tis up to us to keep up the good work by example, even if we do not feel able to contribute to the general fund as liberally as one would wish."

NEW YORK CLUB MEETING.

New Jersey Night.

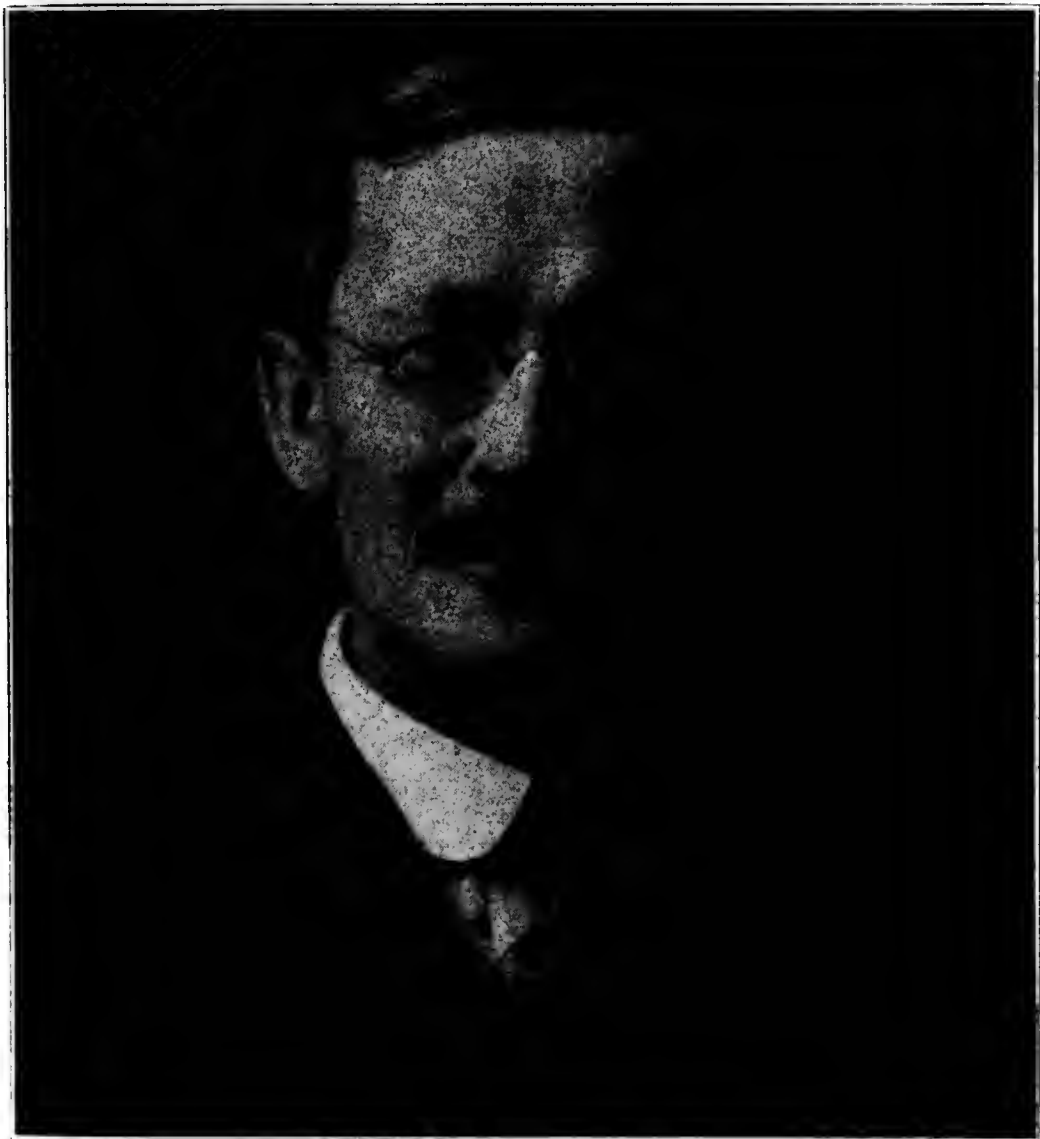

President Hendrickson announced that the next meeting would be New Jersey night and would be in the hands of a committee of New Jersey members, comprising Joseph A. Manda, A. M. Henshaw, Arthur Herrington, W. H. Duckham, Julius Roehrs, Fred L. Atkins, J. H. Fieser, Philip Cox and Edward Seery. The committee was expected to make an effort to bring florists who are not members to the meeting, and make a membership drive in the territory mentioned. He also announced that he would award prizes of peony plantings to the members bringing in the largest numbers of new members from New Jersey on this night, and similar prizes to the two members bringing in the largest and next largest number of members during the year.

The secretary reported a communication from J. F. Ammann, chairman of the S. A. F. membership drive committee, requesting the club to appoint a committee to aid in the drive locally. The request was complied with.

Exhibits.

The exhibits included vases of Carnations Laddie and Belle Washburn,

Herman Junge.

THIRTY-ONE years ago this spring, there landed in New York a young man who became, not many years later, the pioneer wholesale florist in the state of Indiana. He was Herman Junge, now the Young half of the Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis. He was born in Weimar, Germany, October 14, 1865, and emigrated to this country in 1890. He worked a short time in the packing room of Peter Henderson & Co., New York. Then he went to Colorado and lost most of his savings in an attempt to grow garden truck. He started in business in Indianapolis in 1894, with Carl Sonnenschmidt as his partner. They operated under the name of Smith & Young. In 1912, the partners launched the first wholesale cut flower and florists' supply house in Indiana, incorporating as the Smith & Young Co. in 1920. Mr. Junge is one of the hard workers among the Indiana trade, active in organization affairs as well as in his own business.

shown by the Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., awarded cultural certificate; vase of Antirrhinum Golden Pink Queen, by G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, N. H., awarded a certificate of merit; vase of a new rose, dark pink sport of Columbia, by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., highly commended.

FIGHTING FERN SCALE.

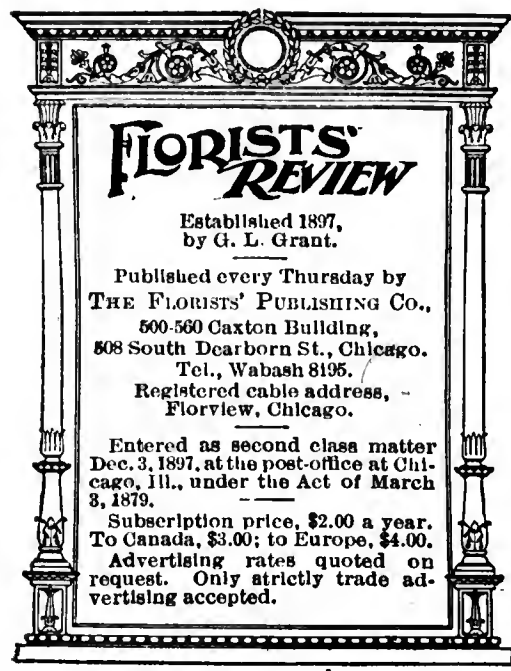

Can you tell us what is infecting a fern which belongs to one of our patrons? We have mailed you some fronds. What should we do for it?

H. F. C.—Okla.

The fern in question is badly infested with fern scale, an insect that spreads rapidly and does much injury to plants of this character. The best treatment for such a plant is to burn it, but if this is not advisable, cut off the worst fronds and destroy them. Dip the plant in a solution of soap and nicotine, either Ivory soap or whale oil soap, one-half an ounce of soap and one teaspoonful of nicotine to a gallon of water. Dissolve the soap in hot water and add the nicotine after the solution is cold. Keep the plant out of the sunshine when wet with this solution. Repeat this dose every week for a time. W. H. T.

Washburn, Wis.—J. P. Quagg, formerly of the Willis Bros. Co., Minneapolis, Minn., is erecting a greenhouse. He will move in as soon as it is finished. This is the first greenhouse at Washburn. Heretofore the closest were located at Ashland and Superior.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

MOTHERS' day will be what the trade makes it.

NEWSPAPER advertising brings people to your store. An attractive window display brings them in.

RESPECT the "little fellow." Remember all the big business men in this country started in a small way.

CHRYSANTHEMUM plants are selling unusually well this year, as it seems the mortality among the cuttings has been higher than it ordinarily is.

CONDITIONS do not yet point to a period of oversupply in this trade. Rather the reverse. We have learned so well how to stimulate demand that now we are in need of a greater supply.

THE circulation of The Review again has passed its previous high-water mark, the former record having been made, naturally, before the war, while the subscription price still was only $1 per year. The weekly edition now is 12,600 copies.

RICHMOND, IND., is attaining floricultural celebrity for something besides roses since the news reports contained the information that William B. Leeds, the late "tin-plate king," whose widow married the brother of King Constantine of Greece and whose son is engaged to the niece of that monarch, started life as a florist in that city.

THE army of bulb salesmen, sometimes referred to as the D. E. F., is retiring in somewhat bad order after the 1921 invasion. Many are working a last skirmish for orders, preparatory to starting for home, but a number sailed April 9, with the thinnest order books in years. It looks as though the American jobbers should have a good season, as many buyers who always have imported direct have placed no orders thus far.

THERE was a time when the Postoffice Department took pride in the accurate and prompt delivery of mail, no matter how incompletely or inaccurately addressed, but now the policy seems to be to return everything not fully addressed, with the i's dotted and the t's crossed. It is essential that street and number be given in addressing mail to any but the smallest towns. Otherwise the letter comes back stamped "Insufficient address," as many florists have found to their great vexation.

FROM all appearances, California will supply the palms we got from Belgium and the irises we got from France, Holland and the Channel islands.

GREENHOUSE labor is loath to resume the manual tasks. The next development in the trade therefore is likely to be the introduction of special machinery for heavy work like unloading coal and carrying soil.

PUTTING yourself in the other fellow's place, imaginatively, will solve a good many business tangles that cause great annoyance. A look at the other side of the case gives you the proper perspective on your side.

IF you haven't the stock for all your orders, send back the unfilled ones with an explanation. Don't bank the check and wait for another batch to grow. Your customer sent the money because he wanted the stock now.

CONDITIONS are now favoring the return of Belgian glass into the United States markets. What is thought to be the largest single shipment of ordinary glass since the armistice, left Antwerp last month for Seattle, Wash. Many of the shipping agencies have commitment for a great amount of glass, one stating that it had 60,000 tons to ship.

Now is being demonstrated the truth in the saying of J. J. Hill, the great railroad builder: "If you want to know whether you are destined to be a success or not, you can easily find out. The test is simple and infallible. Are you able to save money? If not, you will lose. You may think not, but you will lose as sure as fate, for the seed of success is not in you."

WHAT THE BOSS WANTS.

Hints to Florists' Employees.

It is not how hard you work, but what you accomplish that interests the boss.

Hard work in itself will not make you valuable to your firm.

Your work must be reliable.

Speed may do more damage than good. No business man wants thoughtless bungling, even if speedy.

A slow, dependable, well balanced man is worth more than the fast worker who constantly makes costly mistakes.

Think faster than you work, so that you can plan ahead and make your moves in logical, systematic order.

If another man must be paid to supervise your work, he, and not you, is the valuable man.

Do your work so that you can be the higher-priced man.

WHERE ARE YOU AT?

"More growers would know where they are at if they had to face a situation such as I have had to meet," remarked a member of the trade the other day. "Taking charge of the greenhouses that form part of a large estate, the executors of which are bankers and totally unacquainted with the florists' business, I have had to present a financial statement from time to time. These executors aren't interested in the kind of roses I grow so much as in the return those roses will make on the investment represented in the greenhouses of the estate.

"When I tell them I shall need so many thousand dollars for operating expenses during the year, they want to know how many thousand dollars I can be certain the roses will bring in return for the expenditure of that money.

"So I have calculated that I must get so much for each rose I cut. If the plants in my greenhouses average a certain number of roses per plant and I obtain that price, on the average, on all the roses I cut, I shall realize at least the money I have paid out. If every rose that I send to the wholesale market brings me 8 cents, I shall break even. If I can average 9 cents a rose the year around, I shall make some money for the estate. So it's necessary to do some thinking as to just how I can grow roses that will bring me 9 cents apiece, on an average throughout the year. If every florist had to consider the same problem in as mathematical a way, he would learn a good deal about his business."

If you doubt it, take out your pencil and do a little figuring on your own roses.

CASH OR CREDIT.

(With apologies to Uncle Walt.)

There was a florist in our town, a man of strict, conservative ways; his patrons had to pay cash down, or meet their bills in thirty days. He kept no dead-beats on his books; to folks who didn't come across, with courteous tones but resolute looks, he showed he'd have a heavy loss if he should sell to all who came, at the same price, in the same way, as that by which he'd made his name, and wait a year or two for pay. He had built up a thriving trade, his bank account was on the climb, despite the enemies he made because he wouldn't give them time.

Another florist came to town; he thought he'd cut in on the biz, declaring, "I won't ask cash down, but give folks all the time there is." He thought he could give cheaper stock and pocket all the rest; he would just put that in his sock, and call it interest on all the cash that customers had out on their accounts, which grew, as he made no demurs, in little time to large amounts.

It wasn't long before he found he had no cash to draw upon, and then collectors came around, and soon he found his credit gone. Reverses followed swift and strong. The sheriff came and closed him up; in court he sang the bankrupt's song about his sad and bitter cup. The stock and fixtures brought some cash; accounts weren't worth collectors' fees. "Another case of judgment rash," remarked the court at his release.

His pocket and his sock were bare; his scheme of interest was a dream. He only proved that well known air, "Things are not always what they seem." The other florist, all this while, went on in his conservative ways, demanding cash with the old smile, or all bills met in thirty days.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Business is good with plantmen who know how to get it—and the way to get business in this trade is no secret. Like this:

We have been getting good results on our classified plant ads in The Review and are about sold up on iris now.—Orinoco Nurseries, Columbus, Ind., April 8, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Walter W. Harnden.

Walter W. Harnden, 62 years old, head of the Harnden Seed Co., former judge of the county court, city alderman and active worker in Republican circles, died at St. Joseph's hospital, Kansas City, Mo., April 5.

Mr. Harnden, who was president of the Harnden Seed Co., 505 Walnut street, was actively engaged in his business until a week before his death. He underwent an operation March 31. The operation was made necessary by an attack of pneumonia.

He was born in Flat Rock, Mich., in 1859. He was associated with D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, until 1886 when he went to Kansas City and organized the Harnden Seed Co. He was an upper house alderman for four years and served as judge of the county court for two years. During Mayor Edwards' administration, Mr. Harnden was president of the fire and water board, and served as chairman of the Republican city committee during Mayor Brown's administration.

Mr. Harnden also was president of the Triangle Club and was responsible for the club's adopting or caring for a number of orphans. Besides his widow, Mrs. Ruth Harnden, he leaves a daughter, Miss Ruth C. Harnden; two sons, Glenn C. Harnden and William W. Harnden, and a sister, Mrs. George Weeks, Ann Arbor, Mich. Funeral services were held April 7, at the home, 3005 McGee street, Kansas City.

Willis E. Hamilton.

Willis E. Hamilton, pioneer florist of Waldo county, Me., died at his home in Belfast, Me., March 9. Never in robust health, his last sickness began with a severe cold last October. He was born in Swansville, Me., March 22, 1857, and had lived in Belfast forty years, conducting the only florists' business in that city for thirty-eight years, ably assisted by his wife.

Mr. Hamilton was the originator of the Belfast chrysanthemum, probably the latest-flowering variety extant. Loved by all, Willis E. Hamilton was a kindly, courteous, Christian gentleman, whose honorable business methods and sterling integrity will long be remembered by all who knew him.

January 30, 1882, he married Mary Ella Hoag, of Belfast, who survives him, as do a daughter, Mrs. Clara Seckins, and a son, Everett L. Hamilton, who will carry on the business under the old firm name.

Charles Nedved.

Charles Nedved, who had operated a greenhouse at St. Paul, Minn., for fourteen years, ever since he emigrated to this country from Bohemia, was instantly killed April 4, as the result of a shot from his own gun. He had previously shot his wife. He was 55 years of age. Three children survive, Mary, Emil and John.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The second week after Easter was not a great improvement over the first.

Although the week's business dragged slightly, it was a little better than its forerunner. A heavy supply of flowers of nearly all varieties, especially bulbous stock, with only a small demand, tended to make business dull. This condition of the market forced prices steadily downward. Bulbous stock, which arrived in large quantities, was poor in quality, due, probably, to the exceedingly warm weather conditions. Daffodils and narcissi were played out, but tulips were still strong. Roses and carnations were plentiful and some found their way to the rubbish box.

Easter lilies came in plentifully and in good quality; so did callas. Sweet peas came in more plentifully, but the price dropped considerably. Violets showed the effects of the warm weather and were hardly salable. Snapdragons made their appearance, but moved slowly, as did mignonette, miniature roses, myosotis and calendulas.

Various Notes.

Frank E. Bauers, of Brooklyn, O., has bought a 71-acre farm at the corner of Detroit road and Stony Ridge. He is going to plant it in fruit and beautify the grounds with some fancy landscape work.

The firm, Felton's for Flowers, has purchased the store formerly run by Carl Bauer, on Superior avenue. Mr. Bauer is going into the landscape business.

Steven Berthold, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., has purchased a new Ford touring car. W. A. R.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Last week's market was even worse than the one before, judged by any ordinary trade standards. The only redeeming feature of it was that the more severe a glut is, the quicker it is over, usually. The weather for several days was like summer and it rushed the rose crop after a fashion seldom seen at this time of year. Of course the production of all other flowers also was accelerated and the market was crowded with stock it was impossible to move by the ordinary means. Retail flower selling is not conducted on lines which make it possible suddenly to quadruple the volume of transactions. There were low-priced flowers for anyone who would take a quantity, but few regular flower stores cared to increase greatly the bulk of their daily purchases. The result was extremely low average prices for the growers, but nevertheless most of them received checks carrying rather good figures, because of the large quantity of stock shipped in.

It is worth noting that the quality of the stock which has reached the market during the two weeks of oversupply has been exceptionally fine. Buyers seldom have obtained as good flowers and good stock has been so plentiful that the grower who shipped poor stock simply has been out of luck. It often has been noted that when flowers are poor, market conditions make prices high. Recently we have seen the corollary, quality being high and prices low.

It was the general report that the rose crop was "shot" April 9 and that night winter started a short return engagement. The result was a sharp reduction in supplies at the opening of the present week and the return of the market to more stable and normal conditions. There seems no probability of shortage or high prices, except, perhaps, for the approaching special flower days, during the remainder of the season. Retailers may prosecute the selling with the assurance that they will be able to procure in the Chicago market all the seasonable flowers they will need, no matter what volume of business results from their efforts.

Do It Early.

O. W. Frese says that every morning the telegraph company sends around a bunch of orders that should have been shipped the night before. Mr. Frese comments that in the whole course of last summer some florists never found out that Chicago time was an hour later than in communities that were not saving daylight, while this year a whole lot of buyers seem not yet to have noted the change in time made here.

"Tell the folks it is 5 o'clock and closing time in Chicago while it is only 4 o'clock most other places. Tell them to order early and avoid disappointment," says Mr. Frese.

The Recent Rose Crop.

One of the wholesalers was writing to an out-of-town customer last week, urging him to order more roses. "We have a tremendous crop," he dictated.

"But 'tremendous,'" interjected the meticulous stenog., "means fitted to excite trembling, fear or terror; its synonyms are terrible, dreadful, frightful, terrific, horrible, awful."

"Oh, well!" said the wholesaler, who hasn't yet taken up the new fad of reading the die., "I used it in the sense of uncommonly large, but you can let it ride—the crop is most of those other things too."

The Saturday Rose Sale.

At least once a year the watchful folk who run department stores find the flower market in the right condition to serve their purpose—a Saturday sale at ridiculous prices. These stores take delight in such a stunt pulled off with merchandise not regularly carried by them; they like to take the other fellow's line, advertise it at prices as near nothing as they can get and use the sale as a means of drawing the bargain-hunters in. The saving grace is that the woman who goes into a cheap-class department store in quest of a dozen roses for 11 cents is not likely ever to have been a patron of the regular flower store.

It has been nearly a year since there have been any department store flower sales, but their chance came again last week. The rose crop was so large there was no possibility of moving it through the regular channels. So the department store buyers came into the market. They took all the roses offered at prices between $10 and $15 per thousand. It is estimated that two department stores and a drug concern turned into the market between $3,000 and $4,000 for the roses they sold April 9. Most of them were retailed at 15 cents per dozen, though many cost them more than that. The flowers were of all lengths and ages, up to 10 days old. There are, of course, various opinions as to the expedience and effect of such sales, but it is certain most of the stock used would otherwise have been a complete loss. Also, cleaning out the ac-

The Peony Season.

The peony season is near at hand. It is thought that the first flowers will come to market next week. Although some of the fields were checked by the cold wave late in March, no serious damage is reported from the cold snap April 9 to 11 and average crops are expected. The Tennessee growers will be the first to ship. The Gould farm at Halls will have a full crop this year.

Mrs. J. B. Cartwright, of Collierville, Tenn., who has ten acres in peonies, reported last week that she expected to begin cutting about April 20. The plantations in Tennessee have increased rapidly of late years and there are several large shippers in that state

Various Notes.

The average date of the last killing frost at Chicago is April 18, but in 1884 there was a killing frost May 29, so don't be in a hurry to start the bedding out.

W. J. Smyth was at Detroit this week to attend a meeting of the directors of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. He was accompanied by Hilmer V. Swenson, who for several months has been the association's sales manager.

President A. F. Poehlmann called a special meeting of the Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association at luncheon at Hotel Randolph April 14, a meeting with the directors of the Allied Florists' Association to be held an hour later.

The Devon Trust & Savings Bank, of which N. J. Wiator is a vice-president, although organized as recently as January 15, had built up deposits of $256,786.07 at the time it answered its first call for a statement, March 31.

Arthur Andrew Weatherwax is having a busy week, riding the Masonic goat in Van Rensselaer Lodge. During four consecutive evenings he is taking all the degrees from fourth to thirty-second.

The quarterly meeting of the directors of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association will be held at the association's offices April 19.

J. G. Schumann, of Elmhurst, has removed to Knightstown, Ind.

Walter J. Pasvogel, of Norwood Park, has sold his place to Eno Gums and Charles Engelbrecht, of River View, Ill., who will take possession July 1. They will work the entire place in carnations. Mr. Pasvogel has no plans for the future except that he will take his first vacation in fifteen years. He began growing in 1906, with his father, William Pasvogel, and started in business for himself eight years ago.

C. L. Washburn says the muslin placed over the broken places in the Bassett & Washburn greenhouses after the recent hail storm, when nearly 50,000 lights were knocked out, was a lifesaver. It saved a crop of roses and enabled them to reglaze without undue haste.

John Furrow and Mrs. Furrow are in town this week. Their errand is to buy stock for the new store Furrow & Co. will open in Oklahoma City in about two weeks.

Adolph Nielsen, of Pana, Ill., was here last week, combining business and pleasure. He has done so well he is increasing his glass again this year.

Paul R. Klingsporn had as his guests April 11 two well known store men en route to positions on the Pacific coast. Raymond Kester, formerly with the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, was on his way to Seattle to take charge of the store of Hollywood Gardens. William Gibson, who once was with Hollywood Gardens but recently has been with Mrs. E. A. Williams, Pittsburgh, was on his way to Berkeley, Cal. The two met here by accident and continued their journey in company as far as Denver.

A. Dietsch Co. has the contract for the millwork on twelve new greenhouses to be built at once by Vischer Bros, lettuce and cucumber growers, at Toledo.

The daily newspapers take pleasure in exploiting the family affairs of Albert Fuchs and never fail to refer to him as "the millionaire florist," although he has not been a florist for at least a dozen years and gave no sign of having the million at any time he was in the trade. Last week the story concerned the damage suit brought by his daughter-in-law, alleging the estrangement of her husband, who had previously changed his name from Fuchs to Fox.

A "friendly" suit has been started against the owners of the Drake hotel to test their legal right to conduct other business than that of hotel-keeping on their property, on which there is a deed of restriction to certain purposes. John Mangel, who has one of the several classy shops in the building, is named among the defendants, but has no real interest in the suit.

Mrs. C. Hutmacher, formerly of Quincy, is now the proprietor of the Washington Park Flower Shop, at 558 East Sixty-third street.

Premier stands so high in the estimation of Joseph Kohout that at Libertyville he is replanting all but about 1,000 each of Double White Killarney and Ophelia with that rose.

Albert F. Amling is in California. He expects to return to Maywood about the end of this month.

A. L. Randall started April 10 on a tour of inspection of the southern peony farms.

I. Rosnosky came off the road for the week-end. He says every city he visited last week had plenty of flowers, spring crops being general, which he thinks accounts for the condition of the Chicago market. Mr. Rosnosky says he found florists everywhere doing a good business in spite of considerable unemployment in all their communities. "Watch Fort Wayne," he says, "for it's going to be one of the best flower towns in America."

C. J. Michelsen says he believes the flower market turned a corner last week and that business will be good from this time forward. He looks for a large Mothers' day, a big Memorial day and a busy June, but he advises retailers not to depend so much on it that they neglect their advertising. Advertising Mr. Michelsen considers to have become an essential detail of the florists' business and to merit expert assistance if the florist does not know how to handle it himself.

P. L. McKee, president of Agmco,

Help Yourself to the Market.

The thing every customer wants to know is the price; price-giving with your cut flowers that makes for quick sales, increased sales, simplified selling and saves a lot of unnecessary talk and unnecessary questions. As long as the retail dealer fails to display prices a question of doubt is raised in every transaction.

Our wholesale market letters supply price information to the retail florist that means exactly what they say.

"From this date forward we can all do better business than a year ago," says Eric Johnson, but he adds, "if we go after it." Mr. Johnson expects the cut flower sales of the A. L. Randall Co. to exceed last year's excellent record for May, June and the summer. Mothers' day he thinks will set a new high record for this market.

Chicago friends last week received cards announcing the marriage of Harold Raymond Amling and Vesta Norbye Burwell. The wedding took place at Los Angeles March 18 and the couple are at home at 2495 Highland avenue, Altadena, a suburb of the city in which Mr. Amling has become a successful wholesale florist.

A. Miller, of the A. B. C., has returned from a tour of the Pacific coast which has occupied seven weeks. Undertaken primarily for business purposes, Mr. Miller made it a trip of much pleasure by taking his family along. He returns full of enthusiasm for California horticulture and will extend his company's operations along the lines of growing there varieties of stock denied importation by the quarantine.

Frank Schramm has completed replanting and is all set for 1921-22. He

The Tonner firm, in the Atlas block, has put in something new in the way of accounting systems for wholesale florists. It is the National Cash Register bookkeeping machine in connection with a specially built cash register which took three months in the making. The system is planned to reduce clerical work to a minimum.

This is an extremely busy season for Ziska & Sons. They have put in the largest stock of florists' supplies in the history of the firm and, in addition to distributing these, the two brothers, John and Joe, are developing the Juvenile Furniture Co. Making the neatest line of children's furniture on the market, this business has grown so fast they have difficulty meeting the demands made on them. A big bunch of orders has been booked for autumn delivery. M. A. Leganger is their local salesman.

One of the largest outlets for stock on a glutted market is the string of flower stands on the stair landings of the Union loop. These stands operate whenever the weather permits and handle great quantities of stock whenever flowers are low in price.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Prices have declined nearly all along the line this week, with an increasing arrival of flowers of nearly all kinds. The weather continues extremely variable—one day suggestive of the tropics, the next reminiscent of the polar regions—but flowers are opening much more rapidly and, unless late frost damages outdoor crops, there will within a few days be supplies of such flowers as narcissi and tulips from this source.

Roses are at last somewhat in over-supply and are more difficult to move. Prices have declined considerably, the scarlets and deeper pinks bringing the highest prices. Some fine Hadleys are seen. These, both for color and keeping qualities, are still without a rival. Good shipments of Kaiserin Augusta Victoria add to the supplies of white roses. The latter are not moving well,

750,000 Buds for Memorial Day

With a mild winter and early spring my buds are coming early. I will have ample time to cover the entire United States and Southern Canada for Memorial Day. Look for my advertisement to appear in the Review later. Many thanks to the many florists who favored me with their orders last season, and I solicit a trial order from others. I assure you of fine stock and good service. Address, but this is no new condition at this time.

Carnations remain fine in quality and are lower in price. It needs fancy flowers now to bring $5 per hundred; the majority average $3 or a little over. Good sweet peas are in active demand, but $2 will buy the best. Bulbous flowers are still plentiful, but will soon be over under glass, owing to the warm season. Daffodils are offered at all the way from $2 to $6 per hundred. There still are a few scattering freesias and a few ranunculi, irises and anemones, but these are few in number compared with pre-quarantine days.

Lilies and callas are much lower in price. Calendulas, bachelor's buttons, marguerites, pansies and antirrhinums are all in oversupply. There is a large surplus of the last-named flowers. Gardenias bring $3 per dozen and cattleyas double this price. Most of the cattleyas are now Schroederæ. Valley is somewhat druggy and the demand for asparagus is not particularly brisk.

Various Notes.

The great show at Horticultural hall eclipsed all other happenings in point of interest last week. The number of visitors was large, and many of these dropped in at the markets and visited local growers, including the establishments of Messrs. Sim, Roland, Edgar, Goddard, Nicholson, Butterworth, etc.

orchids and their parentage from A to Z. She is now on her way to California to visit orchid specialists there.

A good idea of the value of certain carnations could be gathered from their condition on the fifth day of the big flower show, where they had been unchanged. Such varieties as Morning Glow, Pink Delight, White Delight and Matchless showed their good keeping qualities, while others equally well known were sound asleep.

Norris F. Comley is sending in an extra fine lot of sweet peas from his greenhouses in Burlington.

The North Shore Horticultural Society held its annual banquet at Horticultural hall, Manchester, April 6. About 175 ladies and gentlemen were present and all enjoyed the excellent dinner served and the social time and dancing which followed.

A visitor keenly interested in the flower show last week was Mrs. Harriet Wallace Ashly, of Des Moines, Ia., sister of the new secretary of agriculture. She had not previously heard of how hard Quarantine 37 bore on American horticulture and she heartily espouses the side of those seeking some revision of the Cromwellian clauses. At all the rose lectures the action of the F. H. B. came in for condemnation.

There was a reunion of Kewites in connection with the spring flower show, April 8. A dinner was enjoyed at the Cafe Minerva, on Huntington avenue, and a pleasant social evening, with a minimum of business, was spent.

Harold J. Patten, who has purchased the Tewksbury range of 50,000 feet of glass, is married and has one child. He joined the Massachusetts National Guard in 1906 and eventually was raised to the rank of captain. In 1917 and 1918 he was the chief of ordnance at the state house. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States army June 19, 1918, and a first lieutenant in August, 1918. He was discharged from the army in 1919, when he was serving in Texas, on the Mexican border.

The residence of W. H. Judd, propagator at the Arnold Arboretum and president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, was burglarized in the afternoon of April 6, while Mr. Judd was judging at the flower show. Liberty bonds amounting to $400, besides some money, were stolen. The bonds belonged to a friend visiting Mr. Judd and have not been recovered.

Wilbur A. Patten, son of Marcellus A. Patten, of Tewksbury, has passed the civil service examination for a plant propagator for the government and has just been appointed superintendent of the Brooksville, Fla., experiment station of foreign seed and plant introductions. He will commence his duties in May. His wife and two daughters will go there a little later. W. A. Patten will go to Miami, Fla., to see Mr. Fairchild at the experiment station there and then go on to Washington before he begins at Brooksville. W. N. C.

The Market.

The flowers that are sold at fair prices encourage the growers to keep on trying. Were they sold at quantity rates there would soon be no flowers to sell. The growers would quit, so low are the prices.

The market is in even worse shape than it was a week ago. The supply of flowers is larger and business is lighter. One wholesaler said that he had received 65,000 more carnations last week than for the corresponding week one year ago. The figures showing the receipts of sweet peas are staggering. Roses have fallen off a little, not much. Valley is the only flower that remains firm in price through constant trading.

When the market is in such bad shape the weak spots cause much comment. In carnations it is Alice, and the delicate pink varieties bleached by the sun. In sweet peas it is the waning crop with reduced flowers and shortened stems. In roses it is Killarney and sometimes Hoosier Beauty and even the mighty Premier that suffer most.

Cattleyas are not plentiful enough to count for much. Easter lilies are in moderate supply. Callas and snapdragons are selling in numbers from fair to poor. There are a few delphiniums and a few gladioli. All that can be said is—an extremely bad week.

A Japanese Dinner.

Something over a year ago there were a number of tourists in a certain city in the far-away island of Japan who were invited to a real Japanese dinner served in true Japanese style. There were seven guests, English, Scotch, American. Each was seated on the floor, his legs much in the way. Each guest had be-and you can depend on us for an ample supply at very moderate prices.

RUSSELL leads them all for quality. It is the best for shipping, and will reach you in good shape under any condition. They are exceptionally good flowers, mostly of the medium grades.

Other good Roses that we handle are PREMIER, COLUMBIA and plenty of good HADLEY.

In BEAUTIES you know we have been Headquarters for years, and can fill almost any sized order.

In addition to Roses we recommend to you:

Gardenias, good flowers as low as $15.00 per 100. The best grade, $5.00 per doz.

Orchids and Valley are two items we always aim to have on hand.

Snapdragon, some of our Snapdragon is much above the average in quality.

Yellow Daisies are plentiful and are at their best as far as quality is concerned.

If you depend on us for your cut flowers during the next two months you will not be disappointed.

side him a tiny table with diminutive legs, on which his share of the repast was placed.

There were many courses. One of them required that the food be cooked in a brazier placed on the table beside the guest. This took time; so the host proposed that each guest tell a story. He commenced the tale-telling himself. When it came to the turn of an American, he told the story of Queen Victoria's Christmas roses from America and the pleasure that they gave and how graciously the queen acknowledged it. You don't know the story? Well, here it is:

In December, 1900, David Fuerstenberg and Henry C. Geiger conceived the ambitious plan of presenting Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, with a bunch of Queen of Edgely roses as a Christmas present. Just think of it—American roses to go to England! They consulted Wilfrid Powell, British consul in Philadelphia, about the plan. Mr. Powell cabled to the queen's chamberlain, Lord Lansdowne, who encouraged the plan. Then the enterprising Americans selected and carefully packed two dozen of the finest blooms of the new rose, Queen of Edgely. Each stem was encased in one of Robert Kift's famous water-filled tubes. Just the right amount of ice was used, and December 14 the precious box of roses was entrusted to the salesman of a great English orchid house who was sailing for home. Lord Lansdowne had a messenger at the pier December 24 to meet the roses on their arrival in England. The roses reached the queen on Christmas eve in such good condition that six of them lasted over New Year's. Queen Victoria wrote a beautiful letter of appreciation for the handsome roses that she had enjoyed so much. The letter she directed Lord Lansdowne to send to the British ambassador with instructions that he forward it to the British consul in Philadelphia with instructions that he send for Messrs. Fuerstenberg and Geiger, read to them Her Majesty's letter and then present it to them in token of her esteem, all of which was duly performed as here stated.

That is the story. When it was finished a strange thing happened. One of the guests at that dinner in far-away Japan leaped to his feet (he was probably dreadfully cramped), crying, "I know that all that Mr. Geiger has said is true, for my father was equerry to Queen Victoria then. He carried those American roses to Her Majesty that Christmas eve."

Wasn't it funny that Henry C. Geiger should have told that story while traveling in the far east and that probably the only man who could have verified it should have done so?

The Campbell Cup.

President Alfred M. Campbell has appointed a committee on sports to arrange for a series of baseball games this summer. The committee consists of George Aeugle, Walter Davis, Harry C. Eisele and Frank B. Michell. The idea is to invite entries from cut flower, plant, seed and supply firms, and to arrange a schedule of games with rules to govern them.

To encourage this plan, President Campbell has generously offered a cup as a trophy to be presented to the victorious nine.

Various Notes.

T. P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., was here April 10.

George Redles spoke before the Germantown Horticultural Society in the library of Vernon park, April 11.

Myers & Samtman exhibited their beautiful new sport of Premier at the Florists' Club meeting at the City Club April 5. The rose is described as a double Ophelia.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer went over to New York to see his F. and M. off for Europe. They sailed April 9.

J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., delivered an illustrated lecture on "Rose Gardens" before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in the New Century Club April 12.

Joseph Cousins and Mrs. Cousins welcomed a visitor April 9. He weighs nine pounds.

Two notable Allentown florists, John F. Horn and E. N. Kroninger, should have been included in the list of those who went in the great motor party April 5.

Eugene Bernheimer announces that the Florex Gardens won five prizes, three firsts and two seconds, on five entries in cut rose classes in Boston last week.

The Joseph G. Neidinger Co. has an effective new carnation spray that was originated for Mothers' day.

Casper and George L. Pennock will replace some Russell, planted eight years ago, with Butterfly and Pilgrim.

The seed stores have been doing a rushing business for over a month.

The Market.

For several days last week, the market was considerably out of balance. The supply of cut flowers was exceedingly generous and the demand fell away to such an extent that pre-war prices on several commodities resulted from the effort to make clearances. Of course, gluts have often been in evidence at this season of the year, but not in recent years. If others than the customary shippers to this market have contributed to the supply, it is not known, so the heavy bulk of arrivals could hardly have been any more than normal. Still, business has been far out of gear. No one seems to be able to account for the small demand. With the bugbear of high prices out of the way, there seems to be no possible reason to advance for the situation. The jokers claim that it is due to prohibition. Funeral work of late has been light, but a great deal of wedding work has offset this deficiency.

During the week, carnations dropped to a low price, in fact, to the lowest figure that has been reached since before the war, and that was for fresh stock. Roses went down to $2 per hundred for No. 2 grade, with inferiors and open stock selling at $1. Tulips held up well, although some fair stock changed hands at 25 cents per bunch. Narcissus poeticus was cleared at as low as four bunches for $1, while White Lady narcissus hardly found buyers at all. Sweet peas suffered severely and the prices of everything were peeled down in order to effect clearances.

The arrivals on Monday, April 11, were light, but there was little or no improvement in the demand. A sharp frost the night of Sunday, April 10, did further damage to outdoor bloom and finished a great deal of fruit that had weathered the other and more serious frosts. Monday, April 11, roses were in large supply and their movement was sluggish. American Beauty was not in such great quantity nor were the hybrid teas, so they cleared well in consequence, although hybrid teas were meeting a light demand and clean-ups were only possible through price concessions on quantity lots.

but met with a light demand and it was hard to effect clearances even at a low price. Laddie brought a fair price, but the supply was meager. Cattleyas were not so plentiful as they had been for some time and the prices advanced. Gardenias continued to arrive in quan-

Lilies were plentiful and met only a moderate demand. Valley continued in good supply and moved fairly well. Sweet peas were overplentiful and stock below the first grade was hard to clear even with price concessions. The supply of miscellaneous flowers was more than bountiful and much good stock went to waste. Tulips were less plentiful and the stock generally showed deterioration. Paper Whites were about through. Callas were in heavy supply. Other flowers available were pansies, calendulas, stocks, irises, mignonettes, snapdragons, daisies, myosotis, lupines, lilaes, wallflowers, delphiniums and violets.

Various Notes.

The Allied Florists' Trade Association used the newspapers, Friday, April 8, for another advertisement, which featured particularly roses and sweet peas. As yet, the association has failed to receive the support of the retail florists, but this does not prevent the carrying out of its advertising plans. More than one retailer gives as a reason for this non-support, an opinion that, were the advertising successful in increasing the demand for flowers, the wholesalers would take advantage of the fact to boost the prices. Such argument is like that of the farmer who would not plant his corn, fearing the crows would dig up and consume his seed, and as an alternative, he starved to death.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., lectured at Horticultural hall, Boston, under the auspices of the American Rose Society, April 8, during the society's annual exhibition, held jointly with the spring exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. His subject was, "Roses in Europe and America."

There is considerable activity noticeable in the various seed stores, owing

for All Floral Shipments

Safeguard the freshness of your floral shipments by the use of Hinde & Dauch Corrugated Fibre Board Containers. It is the good condition of a shipment "when delivered" that stamps your place as a first-class house and brings you repeat orders.

H & D Corrugated Fibre Floral Boxes are specially constructed to meet the rigid requirements of floral shipments. There is no gaping of lid or box under the weight of other merchandise in transit, and cut flowers and plants are invariably in better delivery condition when packed in these specially designed containers. Light weight, accurately cut and economical, they offer a most satisfactory packing method.

JOSEPH ZISKA & SONS, 169-175 North Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

West Eighteenth street, in which matters relating to the recent flower show were settled and a preliminary financial report was discussed. J. H. P.

Among the most prominent members attending the first annual dinner of the Sixth Avenue Merchants' Association was Peter Gerlaid, who has operated a store on that street for over thirty years. As he said in his after-dinner speech, he "sold flowers when Fourteenth street was what Forty-second street is today. Those were the old days of the horse cars and the horse-drawn landau."

Leenders, for instance, who gave us Jonkheer J. L. Moek, was represented by Mme. Meyrov. Another variety from this same grower and one that impressed me somewhat, was Burgomaster Sandbert Van Poesson, which I mentally classified as an improved Lady Alice Stanley.

In all of my travels through Europe I was more interested in the Bagatelle gardens than in anything else I saw. I think this is on account of the international associations connected with it. The original collection in this garden was given by Jules Gravereaux and some of his magnificent standards which are there at the present time are from 20 to 25 years old and six to ten feet in height and covered with sheets of bloom. These form a sight not soon forgotten. Arches and columns of ramblers and other hardy climbing roses were also numerous in the garden. Altogether it was a beautiful setting for the "queen of flowers."

All Set for 1921.

Some of the varieties for the competition for 1921 were already growing in the garden and in bloom at the time of my visit. Most conspicuous during the time of my visit was a variety of Pernet's called Capt. Georges Desirier, which undoubtedly we shall hear from in a year or two. Naturally, the cultivation of roses and other forms of plants and vegetables suffered greatly throughout France on account of the war, although the gardens of the Luxembourg, in Paris, contained some excellent samples of rose culture.

Mr. Ninon, our representative in Paris, had about as representative a display of roses as I saw while in France. He has several wonderful seedling polyantha roses, which we are hop-

Cut Flowers in Europe.

A study of the cut flower conditions with regard to roses in the European capitals was interesting. Two roses that were in the markets almost exclusively while I was in Paris were Juliet and Her Majesty. Many of you will recall Juliet. It is a bronze gold in color and does not at first sight appear to be a favorable subject or graceful enough for cut flower work, yet the French people were using it with wonderful effect in conjunction with colored foliage of variegated alder, purple beech and other odd-colored leaves.

In London the chief roses in the stores were Ophelia, Hillingdon, Sunburst and Duchess of Wellington in yellow, Chatenay in pink and Richmond in scarlet. Richmond, with us, has rather passed out of the cut flower industry, but if we could grow it half as well as it was being shown at Covent Garden, undoubtedly there would still be a wonderful demand for it. Our purely American varieties, Columbia, Premier, Russell and Ophelia, were not in evidence. This, of course, is the result of the war, which prohibited the importation of any plants from America for five years.

Mrs. Russell does not appear to do well in the climatic conditions of Great Britain, or, at least, so I was assured by several rose men, although Columbia this coming winter will make its appearance in the market as the leading cut flower rose.

America Ahead.

From what I saw, I consider American commercial growers miles ahead of their European compeers so far as forcing roses is concerned. In this respect we have a little climatic condition that helps us, since, although the weather is much cooler than it is in Europe, our hours of sunlight in the months of December and January are much in excess of anything in northern Europe and, with our improved heating methods, in conjunction with our marvelous winter sunlight, we can produce flowers for the Christmas or Easter market that would make either London or Paris gasp.

It was told me as a fact by one of the noted English forcing rose growers that he used to make shipments biweekly to St. Petersburg, even during the first two years of the war. It is needless to say that under the present bolshevik regime, roses are not being shipped to Russia. No bouquets, verbally or otherwise, are being wasted on Messrs. Lenin and Trotsky!

It is interesting to the American grower to find out that the question of stem, which is considered one of the most important things in this country, does not enter so much into consideration in Europe. Most of the flowers exhibited are staged on boards, the individual bloom in many cases supported by wires so that the grower is entirely unable to gauge much about the stem or growth. An excellent idea, though, is the fact that it is necessary to have a plant exhibited, as well as a cut bloom, to give you an idea of the vigor of the plant and habit of growth. I think this idea could be insisted on at our exhibitions with benefit, when we are judging novelties for a certificate.

STEM-ROT ON TOMATO.

Under separate cover I am sending you a tomato plant. Will one of your experts kindly inform me what the trouble is? Are they planted too deeply or is bacteria the cause?

W. J. M.—Can.

The tomato plant received was affected by stem-rot. This was most probably due to too deep planting. Sometimes plants become drawn up and spindling, and the temptation to plant deeper and thus keep them erect overcomes a good many growers of both flowers and vegetables. The trouble not infrequently starts in the seed flats. When seedlings come up thickly and become drawn before they are pricked out, burying the stem is necessary to keep them standing up straight. If the soil is not rich and water is carefully given, roots may come out of the buried portion and help to sustain the plant, but an excess of moisture and a rich soil are sure to start stem-rot. This may not show while the seedlings are small, but an abrasion of the skin usually results, which causes the stem-rot to develop, not only in the case of tomatoes, but also asters and other flowering plants. Other vegetables, notably members of the brassica family, are often similarly spoiled.

Thinner sowing, earlier transplanting, using light but not too rich soil and care in avoiding too deep planting in the beds will prevent stem-rot. If the trouble becomes serious, I should also advise sterilization of the soil before planting another crop. Some of our best tomato and lettuce specialists under glass say they could not continue to do business without recourse to sterilization. C. W.

AMERICAN IRIS SOCIETY.

Directors' Meeting.

A meeting of the board of directors of the American Iris Society was held at New York city March 17, 1921. Those present included President Wister, Treasurer Presby and Messrs. Farr, Gleason, Hendrickson and Norton. Robert Sturtevant, secretary, was prevented from attending on account of illness. In his absence, Dr. H. A. Gleason acted as secretary pro tem.

The report read by the president for the secretary covered in detail the general activities of the society through 1920 and its plans for the future. The report showed a present membership of 462, including thirty-four life members, and stated that two bulletins had been issued by the society and that two other bulletins had been sent to its members through the courtesy of the American Peony Society and the New York Botanical Society.

It was announced that the annual meeting would be held in connection with the iris exhibition at Columbus, O., about May 27, and that small exhibitions would be held at Richmond, Va.; Takoma Park, D. C.; Boston, Mass.; Belvidere, Ill.; Des Moines, Ia., and probably at Minneapolis, Louisville and Nashville.

A New Year's Thought

Let us learn to feel the joy in things that are simple and universal—in the beauty of the dawn, of sunset and of flowers. Let us cultivate a feeling of tenderness for all living creatures, from the dumb and patient animals to our brother man. Would you learn these deeper values in life? Study the flowers.

The treasurer reported $900 worth of Liberty bonds in the treasury and a cash balance of nearly $800. On motion it was decided that after December 31, 1921, the bulletins of previous years should not be given free to new members, but should be sold to members at 50 cents each.

Collection of Slides.

It was decided to establish a collection of lantern slides, an appropriation of not less than $50 or more than $100

WHERE DOES CREAM RISE BEST?

Whatever burg a man lives in, he's apt to think it's "the only little old burg" there is.

Well sir, Bok, the Dutchman whom we talked of in The Review of February 3, never believed that.

He said that cream will rise on top of a bottle of milk, just as well in Philadelphia as in New York, in spite of all his friends telling him that New York was the only place to make money.

"The place to make money, is the place where you can make money."

But that isn't all, we must make something besides money. Bok's old Dutch Grandmother, when she bid him good-bye, said: "Edward, whatever you do, do all you can to make the world a bit more beautiful and better, because you have lived in it."

Pretty good motto for "us florists," don't you think?

And remember, cream rises anywhere.

of the Iris Society. The directors expressed the wish that the annual meeting in 1922 might be held at Bronx park at the time the test garden is in bloom.

It was decided to continue the policy of offering stock prizes at iris exhibitions and it was the consensus that it might be more desirable to offer such prizes in a monetary value, to be selected by the donor or winner rather than any stated varieties, as was done last year.

H. A. Gleason, Acting Sec'y.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

The local wholesale cut flower market of last week was in such a condition that prices can hardly be quoted correctly. The receipts were heavy and the prices, consequently, were low, as the demand could not clear one-half of the stock that came in daily.

Carnations were the weakest spot in the market and roses were not far behind. There was a large surplus of all sorts and especially Killarney and Columbia. Premier was of excellent quality and there were plenty for all demands. The same can be said of Russell and Milady.

Carnations piled up at all of the markets. They were of excellent quality, and the retailers made their own prices in buying in large lots.

Sweet peas are coming into their own and all the growers consigning to this market are on crop. The daily receipts last week were many thousands. These had to be disposed of in order to make room for the next day's consignments. Violets are about over for the season. Bulbous stock is on the decline as far as indoor stock is concerned. Snapdragons are of high quality. There is not an oversupply and the demand about clears them daily.

Easter lilies and callas are in heavy supply and low in price. An excellent supply of calendulas, mignonette, daisies, tulips and pansies was also noted.

The market also had a large supply of all kinds of greens, and some excellent smilax, asparagus and adiantum were noted.

The retailers had a splendid week of business, as there were plenty of social events and a number of large funerals. The extraordinarily large receipts of all seasonable flowers looked as though the business was dull, but it was not.

Various Notes.

The florists' publicity committee held a well attended meeting April 6, at publicity headquarters. There was a great deal of important business to transact. One thing was the appointment of a committee to take charge of the "Say It with Flowers" week, which will be held at the Missouri theater beginning April 23. Chairman Jules Bourdet appointed Frank X. Gorly, Joseph Witck, W. J. Pileher and W. A. Freere. The last named is the advertising manager for the committee. This committee reported at a special meeting held April 13, to perfect all plans for this big week. Bills amounting to $1,500 for March advertising were ordered paid. Advertising for Mothers' day was next taken up for discussion, and the advertising committee was requested to prepare and submit copy at the next regular meeting, to be held April 20. A full attendance at this meeting is requested by Chairman Bourdet.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners was held at the municipal greenhouses in Forest park, April 6, at 8 p. m. There was a large attendance when the president, George H. Pring, called the meeting to order. The feature of the evening was an illustrated lecture on the international flower show held at New York. This lecture was given by President Pring and was most interesting to all present. Several excellent discussions followed.

From all accounts, the St. Louis and St. Louis county party will be large when it comes time to attend the big Springfield, Ill., meeting of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, April 19. Secretary Beneke will be in Springfield one day ahead of the meeting to confer with the entertainment committee, composed of Messrs. Hembreiker, Brown and Cole. The meeting will be held at the St. Nicholas hotel at 2 p. m. The Illinois attendance also promises to be large.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has a large force of men building a new BANQUET AT BUFFALO.

There will be a banquet Friday evening, April 22, 7 p. m., at the Iroquois hotel, Buffalo, under the auspices of the Western New York Florists' Publicity Committee. J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., and Herman P. Knoble, of Cleveland, will be the speakers of the evening. Their topics will embrace the growing and marketing of flowers as well as the relation of advertising thereto.

Retailers and growers are cordially invited to attend this banquet and are assured of a hearty welcome. In addition to the speakers, there will be a social program and the committee is sparing no efforts in order to make it an educational as well as social evening.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Last week conditions practically reversed. The beautiful, warm days increased the supply of all cut flowers. There were plenty of all kinds of flowers in this market. Carnations were plentiful and the demand was limited. Roses, especially Ophelia and Double White Killarney, far exceeded the demand. Daffodils also were plentiful. Sweet pea shipments were heavy and the demand was light. Yellow daisies were also on hand. Easter and calla lilies came in good quality.

Florists reported that business fell off considerably. Some florists reported some large weddings, but, outside of this, the demand for cut flowers was low. This was the first time this year that the demand for cut flowers has not exceeded the supply, and nearly all of the wholesale houses were seen with considerable stock of flowers on hand at the close of each day's business. Prices dropped considerably.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was held Thursday evening, April 7, at the Seventh Avenue hotel. The president, Mr. Harper, and vice-president, Mr. Sheaf, being absent, the treasurer, G. P. Weaklen, called the meeting to order. The secretary, E. C. Ludwig, then read a letter addressed to the Florists' Club of Pittsburgh from the State College, requesting an opportunity of addressing ness and that surely some of this increase should be attributed to the advertising done by the association in the local papers. W. A. Clarke, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., was asked to comment on this subject. In doing so, he showed the florists that the advertising that they were doing today was small compared with that done in the time of P. A. Elliott, many years ago. He also stated that some of the benefits of the advertising done by Mr. Elliott in his lifetime are being reaped now. After considerable discussion among the florists, a motion was made to remember Mr. Elliott for starting the foundation of florists' advertising, by placing a wreath on his grave at least once every year. Edward McGrath, of McGrath & Langhans, agreed to be the first florists to have the privilege of remembering Mr. Elliott on Memorial day.

G. Wessenauer, of Sewickley, then spoke on some definite program that should be arranged for these meetings. He stated that it would hardly pay for the out-of-town retailers to come to these meetings unless some benefit were going to be derived from them. He related that at the last meeting there was considerable discussion about the wholesalers and he felt that at this meeting something should be said about the retailers. In connection with this, Mr. Clarke brought it to the attention of the retailers that they really were not so active in their business as they should be. As there now is a considerable quantity of all kinds of cut flowers on the market, he suggested that they put out specials and endeavor to move this stock. This would prove beneficial to both the growers and themselves. He called attention to the fact that the retailers should not expect the same amount of profit as recently, as he showed that the grower was losing money when he sold roses as cheap as 4 cents each. The retailers agreed that they were not as active as they should be, and it was suggested that this plan be adopted.

The meeting was well attended and there were present a few members of the association who had never been there previously: Miss Jane McDowell, of Steubenville, O.; Miss Emma B. Maxwell, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., and Mrs. E. H. Carey, of New Brighton, Pa.

H. J. H.

COLUMBUS, O.

A wonderful Easter business here was followed by another boom week and last week everyone was kept busy in the Columbus flower shops. James McKellar and Thomas J. Ludwig reported the largest business in years and Mr. Gibson, a retired florist, who made the rounds of local stores several times during the rush, tells the writer that James McKellar, Mrs. M. A. Wilson and the Linden Floral Co. were the busiest stores on the Friday and Saturday before Easter, but all the stores seemed to have their share of work.

Stock has been excellent, with few complaints forthcoming. At the store of Mrs. M. A. Wilson the force worked all night the Saturday before Easter, but the other florists arranged in such a way that this was not necessary.

The opening of the James theater was a grand occasion and it seemed that every florist here was represented in the beautiful display of flowers which covered the mezzanine floor and filled the entrance. The structure was erected at a cost, it is said, of $1,125,000 and the flowers on the opening night cost in the neighborhood of $1,700. The display consisted of baskets of gorgeous blooms and unusual designs ranging from immense vases of roses and lilies to fancy hampers of roses, snapdragons and bright-colored ostrich plumes. The opening night was the Monday after Easter and was a grand climax for Easter week.

Mr. Flocker, of Flocker's Flower Shop, had just put in several thousand dollars' worth of supplies, he told the writer, but he closed his store and sold everything at auction Monday, April 11.

W. B. Huddleson, of the Ove Gnat Co., of Laporte, Ind., had a nice display of baskets and supplies when he was at the Neil House recently. He says that this has been his banner year.

H. C. Heileman, of M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was here recently, making his second trip soon after his first of a few weeks ago.

A euphorbia tree, a native of Central America, is in the conservatory at Franklin park. This tree is supported by iron cables, or it would fall from its own weight. The height and weight of this arboreal freak are caused by its content of milky sap in enormous quantity. Pricked with a penknife, the bole of the tree spouts the fluid in a veritable stream. This fluid is said to be useful in the manufacture of certain cough remedies. A large lemon tree of the ponderosa variety has for several years been bearing fruit actually as large as the average grapefruit. It is much more bitter than the lemon of ordinary commerce. It is not so useful for domestic purposes, but its juice is acceptable when used sparingly. This tree produces ripe lemons, blossoms and green fruit of the next year's bearing at one and the same time. Nearly 100,000 flowers of many varieties are set out each year at the park. James Underwood is superintendent of parks and municipal greenhouses in Columbus.

Robert Pierrie has gone for a week-end visit to his son, George, at Nashville, Tenn. His wife has been there several weeks and will return with him.

Mothers' day preparations are being made here and advertising for this event will start soon. The Elks are

The Market.

Last week the wholesale men were asking themselves this question:
"What are we going to do with all of this stock?" Iceboxes were as full at the end of the day as at the beginning.
They were indeed glad to see the street merchants come in. These men relieved the situation to some extent, but even their activity fell far short of clearing the situation.

The demand was normal, but the supply broke all records. Prices, consequently, went to pieces. Roses of the finest quality were so plentiful that I saw one sale of 10,000 made, and lots of 4,000 and 5,000 were of common occurrence. These were of the best grades and in every variety that came to the market. Carnations were so plentiful that not much attention was paid to count, and, mark you, these were not the kind that had grown sleepy, but the finest sort of stock. Sweet peas were everywhere, the finest kind of stock, with good shades and fine, long stems. One could not help thinking of the shortage of these just two weeks ago, Easter Sunday morning. Easter lilies were a glut. One wholesale man said the reason was that many of them had been grown for plants to sell at Easter, but had missed. Now there was nothing to do but cut them and the growers were glad to get $6 to $10 per hundred for them. Callas, that have been so scarce all winter, went slowly at $6 per hundred. To sum up, the market was simply demoralized, and yet there was a tone of optimism about it all. The wholesalers looked upon it as an abnormal state that will not last long. Indeed, they were predicting that in a few weeks we would be hearing of a scarcity.

"Who Is the Street Faker?"

Looking at the masses of stock in the wholesale houses, that could only last a few days at the longest, one realized the inability of the regular retailers to handle it. I looked at the street merchants, as they would make an offer for some big lot of stock. Say what we please, they are an important part of the florists' business in times like the present. There are about six combinations, as they call themselves, a combination being a firm or partnership, which most of them are. There are but two who work singly—James Morgan and Eugene Hoffman. The latter, at the present time, conducts a store on Lexington street. This is temporary, as he had taken it for three months for Easter business. Then there are Harry Goldberg and Jock Burshack; William Chandler and B. Curley; Harry Burt-nick, Sam Jontes and Thomas Roberts; Harry Berman, Leo Strausberg and William Deckman. These are wide-awake young fellows, possessed of business ability that would do credit to any man. They are men who will take a long chance and, although they sometimes miscalculate, as a rule they come through, to use their own phrase "to the good." In these combinations there is one who does the buying and one who does nothing but sell. Then, in times like last week, they have helpers and run four or five stalls on the busiest thoroughfares of the city. When they are stocked up, there is a gentlemen's agreement among them to hold to a certain price, say 25 cents a dozen for carnations, until, to use their vernacular again, "they are on velvet." This, of course, means that they have their original investment secured. It is then that salesmanship commences, for everything that is sold now represents clear profit. The trick, they will tell you, is to get all they can out of this.

An interesting question is, how do they manage when stock is high-priced and scarce? Well, I have found they are not tied to flowers if, in their judgment, flowers are too high. They will turn to something else, any sort of a job lot, it matters not what it may be, as long as they can sell below the regular market price. They will tell you that there are thousands of people in Public Talk on Roses.

The big floral event of the city was held on the roof garden of the Southern hotel, April 12, when E. Gurney Hill delivered his lecture on "Roses I Have Met at Home and Abroad." At the last club meeting, when it was announced that Mr. Hill would be with us on this date, there was a strong feeling that it would be, to say the least, selfish to have a man of Mr. Hill's prominence in the trade deliver this lecture to florists only. So the whole arrangement was put into the hands of the entertainment committee. This committee got to work and secured the following society women to act as patronesses: Mrs. Henry Williams, Mrs. H. E. Ashbury, Mrs. G. S. Jackson, Mrs. A. T. Hoen, Mrs. H. Barton Jacobs, Mrs. Van Lear Black, Mrs. R. T. Abercrombie, Mrs. A. N. Turnbull, Mrs. E. C.

set, and the public was still clamoring for more, but the size of the hall prevented a larger issue. The committee feels that this was one of the best mediums that have been tried as yet in order to boost "Say It with Flowers." Nothing the club has ever done has been more appreciated. Robert Halliday worked night and day on it, and to him belongs the credit for its success. Tate.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

The local market conditions last week were about the same as they were the week following Easter. The warm weather burned out a lot of sweet peas. Fruit trees were in blossom, and the heavy frost played havoc with the prospect of a good crop. As in almost every other city, the lilies for Easter were slow in developing.

Various Notes.

The most important event during last week was the organization of the local branch of the National Flower Growers' Association. The meeting was held at the Waldorf hotel, Thursday evening, April 7. In addition to promoting the welfare of the members of the association, there will be co-operative buying of coal, fertilizers Hagenburger, of West Mentor; Charles Anderson, of Rocky River; Mr. Fleckner and Mr. Hall, of Clyde, O.

Scottwood Greenhouses were in good time with their lilies and were able to supply many local retailers, an accommodation much appreciated. F. Imoberstag, of Forest Cemetery Greenhouses, was on the job with his full line of high-class bulbous stock for Easter.

Harry Heine, of Detroit avenue, had some good lilies. All his other stock, as usual, showed careful attention to detail.

W. F. Krueger, of Krueger Bros., is called the sweet pea king. Mr. Krueger probably produces as many peas in a season as any grower in the country.

Max Spanner had the decorations for the Eppstein-Ziegler wedding.

usually busy with funeral work. They made the bouquets for the Eppstein-Ziegler wedding.

W. Feniger, who purchased the business of Mrs. J. B. Freeman a short time after her death, and has run it since as the Central Flower Shop, maintains the standard that made his predecessor's name so well known.

Frank Schramm, of Schramm Bros., was instrumental in bringing together the local growers for the formation of a local council of the National Growers' Association. Business with this firm was the best ever for Easter. Business has continued to keep up well since.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

The Market.

As a rule, it is easy to find a dissatisfied florist, but I am afraid it would be hard to find a retailer or a wholesaler who is not more than pleased in every way with his Easter business. Stock was of an excellent quality and the weather was ideal up to Sunday. Nearly all the florists cleaned up on everything. Lilies were all sold out early Saturday. Many of the retailers report the Easter trade the heaviest in their history. It may be true that there have been Easters when higher prices were charged, but I doubt if there ever was a more satisfactory Easter. Lilies re-tailed at an average of 50 cents per bloom. Giganteum plants carried from three to six flowers and the formosums carried eight to twelve. Roses were in excellent demand, but it seemed nearly everyone wanted plants. Immense quantities of spiræas, genistas, hyacinths, jonquils, daffodils and hydrangeas were moved. Tulips were never in greater abundance. Ramblers sold well.

At present there seems to be an unlimited supply of cut flowers. Premier and Ophelia seem to compose the main supply in roses now. Violets are getting scarce. Sweet peas are getting better each day. Callas are plentiful. In the novelties one sees some fine stock of schizanthus, wallflowers and lupines. The lupines are in popular demand and seem to be taking the place of snapdragons. Valley is scarce.

Various Notes.

At a meeting of the Omaha and Council Bluffs florists, held last week, a committee was named to meet in conjunction with the undertakers and give support to the movement for no Sunday funerals. Sunday closing was thoroughly threshed out, and we hope in the near future to see every local store and greenhouse closed on Sunday. A committee was also named on coöperative advertising.

Mrs. Tony Gardiner has reopened the Beaton Flower Shop, formerly operated so capably by Miss Reba MacNamara. T. E. E.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

While there is an after-holiday quietness in the shipping end of the business, the retailers say that they are running along about as usual and that funeral work has been plentiful. The visit of the Chicago Opera Co. led to a good deal of entertainment and this, of course, has helped business. Stock has been plentiful most of the time, although a rain storm and high wind early in the week did considerable damage to outdoor flowers and made them hard to get. Roses, orchids, valley and choice flowers generally are about even with the demand, the buyer having a little the better of the deal on roses. Greenhouse carnations are high in price for this time of the year and the quality is fairly good. All outside stock is cheap and plentiful and the same applies to greens.

Various Notes.

Under the name of the Florence Florist, A. Moruzzo has opened a fine store at 2104 West Seventh street. Mr. Moruzzo is no novice in the flower business, as he has been connected with it for a long time both here and in Salt Lake City. The appearance of his new store looks as though it should be a success.

H. N. Gage Co. reports a constant improvement in business and states that large quantities of stock are being moved from all three of the growing establishments. Mr. Gage is highly pleased with the way his stock moves at the American Florists' Exchange.

The Superior Nursery Co. is getting out a large number of spring orders of dahlia roots now and C. Gutting, the manager, promises some fine things in the new seedlings for this season. Care in selection and packing enables Mr. Gutting to guarantee to his customers that every root sent out will grow. This is an immense advantage to the purchaser. Mr. Gutting is greatly interested in the coming big show and will be on hand with much late planted stock for this purpose.

The members of Redondo Floral Co. have turns at taking time off to forget business for a day or two in order to regain their lost energy. After F. Raymond had been away for a time, last week A. Kopf visited his lemon ranch near Santa Ana. On his return, A. F. Borden started for the east to attend the executive board meeting of the F. T. D., April 11 and 12. Mr. Borden says that, at the lowest computation, ten per cent of the company's business is of out-of-town telegraph orders.

There is a feeling among the boys on the staff of the Athletic Club Florist that they are going to lose Rosie Viota and that wedding bells may ring in the near future. Miss Viota, who looks after the books here, will not give herself away, so rumor is all that can be heard so far. Good business is reported at this store.

H. Reeve Darling, of Darling's Flower Shop, started April 4 to fly to San Diego and from there over the Mexican border. Mr. Darling has become an accomplished aviator and air-pilot.

John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., has been blessed with another addition to his family, a fine boy having arrived last week.

The Alexandria Florist had a fine decoration at the auditorium for the opening performance of the Chicago Opera Co. Andrew Bruce, of this store, is the proud father of a 6½-pound baby girl. Both mother and baby are doing well, but Andrew has had to lay off for a few days on account of sickness.

Gebhard Prechtl is also rejoicing in the birth of a son, but unfortunately Mrs. Prechtl was seriously ill at the hospital after the birth of the baby. At last hearing she was much better and doing as well as could be expected.

Funeral work has been plentiful since Easter at the store of Wolfskill's & Morris Goldenson.

The Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop is always attractive and especially so now with its fine display of tulips, roses and various spring flowers.

A fine cut of Iris tingitana is being sent in by Alois Frey to the E. C. Amling Co. Amaryllis Belladonna from the same grower is moving well.

J. Dieterich is on a trip to San Francisco this week and intends staying for two weeks.

R. G. Fraser & Son, of Pasadena, are working up a stock of a novelty in calendulas called the cactus-flowered. The flowers are prettily quilled and borne on long stems and it promises well as a florists' variety.

E. C. Norton, of Phoenix, Ariz., was in the city a couple of days en route to the east for the Rotarians' convention.

Dr. A. D. Houghton lectured on "Horticulture" before the Elysian Heights Civic Club at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Hills. Mr. Hills is a prominent member of the club.

completed a new and enlarged sawmill at their range. The building is 50x50 feet and fourteen feet to the eaves. There are no posts, the entire interior being open to facilitate the handling of the lumber. In addition to the present machinery, band saws and planers are to be put in and everything in the line of joinery, box lumber and other wood used in the establishment will be turned out direct from mill-run lumber, thus effecting a big saving. This is another detail toward the perfecting of this fine establishment. H. R. R.

PASADENA, CAL.The Flower Show.

The Pasadena flower show opened April 7. There was music by an orchestra and speaking by the leading florists and nurserymen of the community. The program is the result of the unceasing efforts of W. M. Rapp, the president and manager of the show; H. W. Stapleton, the vice president; H. Ross, the treasurer, and W. F. Warnke, the secretary.

Julius Thelin has on exhibition fifty varieties of blooming annuals, the largest collection of the kind ever exhibited at this show. Paulsen & Dempster have a small garden of chrysanthemum plants planted out in garden formation. This firm is a specialist in this line. Samuel Roe, of South Pasadena, has an exhibit of portieres, lamp pulls, canes and weegee birds, all constructed of seed pods and foliage of different plants.

The city of Pasadena, which has a nursery for the municipality, has a fine exhibit under the supervision of Jacob Albright, the park superintendent, and Mr. Boorman, superintendent of the nursery. The exhibit consists of cut flowers, ferns, blooming shrubs, banana plants, philodendrons and begonias.

The Jaunoch Nurseries have an unusually fine show of standard roses, of which this firm is making a specialty at this time. The firm is exhibiting an unusually large variety, and among others is one, Iona Herdman, a canary yellow rose of unusual beauty. John Teekamp, importer of bulbs, plants and roots, has Campbell Seed Store is showing fine cut flowers and flower seed in a booth decorated with genistas and Asparagus elongatus. Sadie Thomas, in the absence of her special flower, the chrysanthemum, is exhibiting her next best, baskets of beautiful roses.

John Blake, landscape architect and superintendent of Brookside park, has a miniature of a home with all the shrubbery and lawns fertilized with Pacific guano, for which he is representative. Fred Hills, the famous fern grower, is there with a fine collection of Nephrolepis Hillsii, in 5 and 7-inch pots. The Eldred Flower Shop is showing baskets of cut flowers in charge of the young lady artists of the store. Whitford's is exhibiting baskets of roses and other cut flowers.

Lichtenberg's, Wright's Flower Shop and Walter Armacost & Co., of Los Angeles, are showing their respective lines of productions. E. H. Rust, of South Pasadena, is showing his line of general nursery stock and palms. Robert Pegg, the landscape artist and nurseryman, is showing some fine ferns and other plants which he handles.

There are numerous private entries of all kinds, too many to enumerate. These include some fine collections of ferns, which are increasing in popularity each year. The schools are also there with their entries, all grown by the children.

Various Notes.

Business has been good here the last week. The Orchid had a large business, filling orders for the opening of Jensen's Raymond theater. This store had a large number of baskets of all kinds and set pieces. One in particular was six feet square, composed of roses, sweet peas and orchids.

Mrs. Eldred, of the Eldred Flower Shop, had in her window a good advertisement for telegraph business. She had telegraph instruments arranged among the flowers and a reminder for passers to remember their friends by this quick method. R. S. B.

sixty. The fact was brought up that the Retail Florists' Association has secured pledges for some $70,000 for purchasing a market. At this meeting, however, the growers were unanimously in favor of having a market of their own. A committee was appointed to investigate ways and means of purchasing a suitable market. Another meeting was called for April 12, when the committee would report. The growers present stated that they were anxious to cooperate with the retailers' association, but they want their own market. They estimate that, if they secure 100 members, each of whom will assess himself $10 a month, the resultant income of $1,000 a month will cover the expenses of the market. They want it to be in a suitable location and they would prefer some covered place into which they could drive their automobiles.

Association's market committee was held in conjunction with some of the growers April 1, at the store of Podesta & Baldocchi. The growers present pledged their support and some liberal contributions toward the market which

The Market.

There were no outstanding features during last week's activities. Prices on most items were steadily maintained. The season for hyacinths has about passed, but enough other spring offerings are being received to counteract this. Of the spring offerings, Japanese cherry blossoms and California iris proved the most novel. The former cleaned up in splendid style. Locally grown snapdragons are offered in larger quantities, and some of the shades developed make for a ready sale at this time. Late narcissi are showing well, and one grower is making deliveries of an unnamed, two-shaded yellow type, which exceeds in size and strength of stem anything else seen this season. Tulips are plentiful and there has been a notable increase in the stocks of cut flowers.

The cut of locally grown roses is decidedly heavier than usual. With the exception of a few reds and some Cecile Brunner, California shipments have about ceased for the season. Local growers are not supplying enough carnations to meet the demand, but other northwestern growing sections are able to take care of this shortage. Portland is sending in some fine pinks, and Spokane is shipping in its usual fine cut of Laddie. Local growers are offering better Laddie and Enchantress.

Violas from local growers are in larger supply and have been selling out freely. Violets are also plentiful and some shipping business has been developed. The cut of orchids is heavy enough to meet the trade demands, and the same can be stated of lily of the valley.

Various Notes.

Clifford Wagonette, of the Oakland Flower Shop, Oakland, Cal., and Giuseppe Garalducci, of the California Florists, Tacoma, called on the trade last week.

The largest was that at the Arabian Nights ball at the yacht club. Palms, ferns, greens and brightly colored flowers were used to produce an oriental effect. Another notable production was the making of a huge floral horseshoe for presentation to Jack Dempsey.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

L. L. MAY & Co., St. Paul, have disposed of their retail florists' department to Charles R. Fuehlbruegge.

J. A. MIDDLEBROOK & SONS, Burlington, Vt., report that they have good prospects for their largest season on record, for their seed business has already opened up well.

AFTER being confined to his home and to the hospital for nearly four months, William H. Dildine, secretary and treasurer of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., is now able to go to the office occasionally.

WALTER W. HARNDEN, president of the Harnden Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo., died at St. Joseph's hospital there April 5 from an operation necessitated by pneumonia. Further notice appears in the obituary column this week.

W. H. HAWKINS, Seattle, Wash., who began selling seeds and bulbs to the florists' trade a short time ago, has done so well at it that he is giving up his position as manager of the greenhouses of Rosaia Bros. to devote all his time to the business.

THE seed store of A. C. Kendel, which has been in Cleveland for eighty-two years, recently took a perpetual lease on property on High avenue between Huron road and Prospect avenue. The new building has been completely remodeled and is now a light, airy and modern seed store with plenty of room for display stock.

THE seedsmen of Vancouver, B. C., are pleased with the appointment of A. E. McKenzie, of the McKenzie Seed Co., Brandon, to the executive council of the Western Canada Colonization Association. The object of this association is to secure the settlement of some 20,000,000 acres of land, which is now held by absent speculators in western Canada.

SEEDSMEN from all over the state of Connecticut were present at Hartford to voice their disapproval when the pure seed bill was before the legislative committee on agriculture. To the men in the trade the proposed bill seemed, as they termed it, "impractical, cumbersome and radical." Watson S. Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn., stated that "the seedsmen had built up reputations for honesty and integrity and were guided by higher motives than the law could provide." Both Mr. Woodruff and S. F. Willard, of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, Conn., were present to oppose the proposed bill.

CHARLES DICKINSON, retired head of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, has gone in strongly for flying as a pastime and hobby. His friends at the club used his aeronautical leaning as a chance to jest, but have changed their tune now that Mr. Dickinson has become almost a marvel of robust health instead of a subject of frequent breakdowns from overwork. He has averaged a flight a day since last August and contemplates making his flight for a license soon. Mr. Dickinson says that he first became interested in aviation when he flew for thirty minutes with Tom Sopwith, the Englishman, at the Chicago aviation meet in 1911. One of the prized possessions of Mr. Dickinson

COPYRIGHTING CUTS.

An important decision, upholding the right to copyright distinctive cuts used in catalogues, was rendered by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, fourth circuit, in the case of Campbell vs. Wirebaek, 269 Federal Reporter, 372. The court says, in part:

"It is contended here, first, that the cuts reproduced in defendant's catalogue are not copyrightable matter, but this contention is refuted by abundant authority. It is sufficient to cite Westermann Co. vs. Dispatch Co., 249 U. S. 100, 39 Sup. Ct. 194, 63 L. Ed. 499, in which the Supreme court assumes the validity of a copyright of pictorial illustrations of styles in women's apparel, and which, therefore, seems controlling of the instant case. Among other cases of like import and directly in point are Bleistein vs. Donaldson Lithographing Co., 188 U. S. 239, 23 Sup. Ct. 293, 47 L. Ed. 460, which sustains a copyright on circus posters showing groups of performers; Da Prato Statuary Co. vs. Guilian Statuary Co., C. C., 189 Fed. 90, holding that a catalogue of cuts of pieces of statuary was copyrightable; White Co. vs. Shapiro, D. C., 227 Fed. 957, sustaining the copyright of a catalogue containing cuts of lighting fixtures; and Stecher Lithographie Co. vs. Dunston Lithographie Co., D. C., 233 Fed. 601, upholding the copyright of Bearing in mind that plaintiffs' cuts are made from drawings which 'were originally designed and prepared by persons of skill and artistic capacity,' as the court below finds, the case in hand comes clearly within the rule which we believe to be stated correctly in Weil on Copyrights, p. 226, as follows:

"A mere advertisement of a bare list of articles, prices or facts would seem not to be copyrightable. It would lack the minimum of originality necessary for copyright. On the other hand, cata-

HOLLAND'S EXPORTS OF SEEDS.

Present indications are that the seed-growing industry of the Netherlands, which had assumed large proportions before the war, is resuming its extent and vitality, especially in north Holland and Groningen. The trade in 1920 was good, and while the total exports were considerably less than during the preceding year, the decrease was due almost wholly to the fact that in 1919 there was an abnormal demand in Germany for seed peas and beans and miscellaneous garden seeds to restock the country after the war, according to the statement of George E. Anderson, United States consul at Rotterdam. There were decreased exports of caraway seeds to the United States and Great Britain, because of overstocking the year before. The exports of yellow mustard seed to the United States were also much smaller. Most other important items showed increases.

The exports of seeds from the Netherlands in the last two years have been as follows:

Seed	1919	1920
Linseed:
For sowing	$ 821,648	$ 974,233
Other	620	131,730
Rape seed	4,248	218,048
Poppy seed	103,924	243,630
Caraway seed	761,486	470,589
Mustard seed:
Brown	89,876	107,281
Yellow	208,202	168,661
Grass seed	101,172	117,775
Clover seed	64,382	135,158
Seed peas and beans.....	2,248,803	205,839
Other garden seeds.....	1,421,780	586,776
Flower seeds	122,337	157,728
Beet seed	271,068	221,823
All other seeds	165,527	191,321

Total$6,385,073 $3,930,598

About seventy-five per cent of the linseed went to Ireland in both years. Germany takes about half and Great Britain a sixth of the rape seed, while the United States and Belgium divide the remainder of the exports. The United States imported about eighty-five per cent of the total exports of poppy seed, while of the exports of caraway seed Germany took thirty-five per cent, the United States twenty per cent, Austria eighteen per cent, and Czechoslovakia and Great Britain the rest. The United States takes a fair amount of the yellow mustard seed, though the trade fell off greatly last year. The brown mustard seed goes almost entirely to Belgium, Denmark, Germany in 1919. The United States has been the best customer in miscellaneous garden seeds, with Germany a fair second, the rest of the exports being scattered over northern Europe. The United States takes about sixty per cent of the flower seeds and Great Britain most of the remainder, while the United States takes seventy-five per cent of the beet seed and Italy most of the remainder.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Alt F. Clark, Netcong, N. J.—"Abridged Dictionary of the Dahlia for 1921," a clearly, accurately printed 23-page catalogue, in pocket form. "Dahlia catalogues," says Mr. Clark, "as a rule are more or less typographical puzzles," on account of the difficulty in finding therein the name of any desired variety. Therefore, instead of dividing his stock into groups according to type, he has arranged the entire collection in one continuous alphabetical list, attaching an abbreviation to the name of each variety to indicate the class to which it belongs. A condensed wholesale list also is enclosed.

Greenfield Tap & Die Corporation, Greenfield, Mass.—"How I Fixed It," an interesting 108-page booklet, illustrating and describing numerous devices that are adapted for making quick repairs. Many of the forms of apparatus offered, though intended primarily for farmers, would be equally serviceable to members of the horticultural trades. "The farmer has learned," says an introductory paragraph, "that the little job the blacksmith never did want to do anyway, because there was no money in them for him, can be done just as well and much more quickly at home if suitable repair tools are handy." In the booklet many farmers and others tell about emergencies in which certain of the devices were helpful. Hence the title, "How I Fixed It."

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Business is quiet following the Easter rush. Those who sell seeds, plants or bushes for outside planting are daily increasing their sales. Prices of cut flowers keep up fairly high, although they are lower than they were at Easter. The outlook for the weeks before the dull summer season is for good business, but without much real life to trade. During a short period before Memorial day, there will, of course, be considerable cemetery decoration and a large sale of potted plants.

Various Notes.

The Washington Florists report that since Easter business has been quiet, except for considerable funeral work.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., nurseries report heavier business than has been experienced at this time for many years. The early season is largely responsible.

DIGGING began in the nursery of H. F. Baker, at Minneapolis, Minn., as April opened, since the frost was later leaving the ground here than in other sections. Mr. Baker has just purchased a Reo truck.

FOLLOWING Rochester's example, the high school at Dansville, N. Y., postponed the Easter vacation until the middle of April, in order to make it possible for the many nurserymen there to avail themselves of the boys' services at this time.

THE attempts of nurserymen to restrain customers' enthusiasm for early planting received their justification and reward when the drop in temperature played havoc with the plants of those who had not followed the nurserymen's advice.

THE price of the postage stamps on that surplus list you are going to mail out would buy ample space to print it in the Nursery Department of The Review, while you'd save the cost of the paper and printing, and reach more buyers in need of your stock than are on your mailing list.

ONE reason that nurserymen have not taken more interest in many excellent suggestions brought out at the meetings of the various associations in the past is because they are too busy. The first breath of spring sees most firms up to their eyes in work, and before they have time to think about anything else again, winter has arrived.

EDWIN A. REEVES, of Cleveland, O., for twenty-five years one of the leading peony specialists in the country, but now retired from active business, broke into print at Toledo, O., recently. The new school on Jackman road, Toledo, will have grounds planted with peonies, ornamentals and perennials, a present from Mr. Reeves' nursery.

C. A. TONNESON, Burton, Wash., executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, is conducting a column in one of the Seattle daily papers. The column appears every Saturday and deals entirely with horticultural problems. It is proving helpful to the business in that section. The articles are well prepared, as Mr. Tonneson's previous experience, as publisher of a horticultural paper, stands him in good stead in this work.

F. N. RHODES, Seattle, Wash., district state horticultural inspector, is warning local dealers and buyers that a quarantine against the shipment of nursery stock from Linn, Marion and Polk counties, in Oregon, into the state of Washington exists, on account of the prevalence of pear thrips in that section. Only stock dipped in a solution approved by the state horticultural department may come in. In addition there is a quarantine against the importation of 5-leaved pines, currant or gooseberry plants for states east of North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

FROM Minnesota nurseries it is reported that Ribes alpina and R. aurea are quite scarce.

LIGUSTRUM IWATA.

Ligustrum Iwata, a hedge plant now being offered by a few nurserymen, is reported to be the offspring of L. Ibotia and to have come from Japan.

A plant of this variety was imported by Charles Fremd, of the Rye Nurseries, Rye, N. Y., along with other plants from Japan for the winter home, at Thomasville, Ga., of Mrs. J. C. Morse, of Cleveland, O., some fifteen years ago. Mrs. Morse, taking a fancy to the plant, asked Mr. Fremd to import enough plants to make a hedge along the main drive leading to her residence. The plants he received from Japan proved to be mainly L. ovalifolium and the remainder L. sinense, commonly known as L. amurense in the south.

Mrs. Morse thereupon asked P. J. Hjort, of the Thomasville Nurseries, to grow sufficient plants for the hedge desired. This he did by grafting on L. ovalifolium the wood supplied by Mrs. Morse. Mr. Fremd in a letter to Mrs. Morse stated that L. Iwata was a seedling of L. Ibotia, having originated in Japan in 1895 and having been named by the Japanese.

This variety has also been grown commercially at the greenhouses of Mills the Florist, at Jacksonville, Fla.

The operators of the Thomasville Nurseries did not at first realize the commercial possibilities of L. Iwata, but found that customers who selected their purchases on the grounds the last few years were partial to this variety. It is reported to be comparatively resistant to the attacks of the white fly, Aleyrodes citri, which is a strong point, in combination with the beauty of its foliage.

L. Iwata branches well. It makes a plant that may be trimmed as a specimen, or it will make a hedge or attractive clump planting, according to those who have used it.

STOCK INJURED IN TRANSIT.

Carrier's Liability.

Although shipments of florists' or nursery stock are in the main governed by the same legal principles that apply to shipments of other commodities, their peculiar nature gives rise to considerations not applicable to all other kinds of freight. Therefore the few judicial precedents specifically bearing on the problems of florists and nurserymen should be of particular interest to the members of these trades.

One of the leading cases under this head is that of Bobbink & Atkins vs. Erie Railroad Co., 82 New Jersey Law Reports, 547. The principal points decided in this case by the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals are as follows:

1. A clause in a bill of lading exempting the carrier, the railway company, from liability for loss or damage caused by fire does not relieve it from liability for negligence.

2. In an action to recover for the loss of goods destroyed while in the possession of a carrier under a bill of lading containing an exemption of liability for loss by fire, the evidence was examined and held sufficient to warrant an inference of negligence—in shipping the particular goods upon open cars, rather than in box cars, and in failing to keep the spark-arresting screen upon one of defendant's locomotives in a proper condition.

3. The responsibility of a carrier of goods does not terminate until after the consignee has had a reasonable time within which to remove the goods.

4. A carrier of goods holding them as grounds: First, that the defendant negligently loaded the trees and shrubs (wrapped, as they were, in straw and burlap) upon open cars, instead of placing them in box cars; and secondly, that the defendant negligently permitted sparks to escape from one of its locomotive engines, whereby the fire in question was started. The verdict of the trial court was directed upon the ground that by the contract expressed in the bill of lading it was agreed that the company should not be liable for damage caused by fire and that there was no proof to show that the fire was in any way due to the negligence of the defendant.

The bill of lading did contain an exemption of liability for loss or damage caused by fire, and it was conceded by plaintiffs' counsel that for this reason it was incumbent upon them to show negligence on the part of the carrier, while, on the other hand, it was conceded that the clause in the bill of lading did not relieve the carrier from liability for negligence.

Decision Reversed.

Reversing the decision made by the trial court in defendant's favor, the Court of Errors and Appeals said:

"There was evidence from which the jury might infer that goods of the character of those in question were customarily shipped in ordinary box cars; that proper care required this; and that the plaintiffs did not authorize their goods to be shipped upon open cars, nor know that it was to be done until the goods arrived at destination.

"It seems to us also that there was sufficient evidence to go to the jury upon the question whether the spark-arresting screen of the locomotive was not in a defective condition, attributable to defendant's negligence. There was evidence, on the other hand, tending to show that the screen had been inspected on the day before the fire because the sparks are thrown so high in the air that they 'die' before coming down.

Assertion Denied.

"Defendant claims that the bill of lading was issued by the Hoboken Railroad Co. and that this company is not in any way connected with the Erie Railroad Co. except that it ships freight for that company and makes connection with its line. But the bill of lading shows that it was made by the Hoboken company in the name and for the account of the Erie Railroad Co. and upon all the evidence it was a permissible inference that the Hoboken company was authorized to act and did act as agent for the Erie company in the shipment.

"Defendant further claims that the switch or siding upon which the cars stood at the time of the fire was a private siding controlled by the defendants and not a regular place of delivery of the defendant company. The evidence, however, did not show this so clearly as to warrant the court in taking it from the jury. Moreover, the fact, if it were established, that the goods had been placed within the control of the plaintiffs, was not sufficient to terminate the responsibility of the carrier until after the consignee had had a reasonable time within which to remove the freight.

"And even if the defendant company was no more than a warehouseman, it would nevertheless be responsible for damages attributable to its negligence.

Reasonable Time for Removal.

"The bill of lading contained a provision that property not removed by the consignee within twenty-four hours after its arrival at destination might be kept in the car at the sole risk of the owner of the property. It is contended that the cars in question were in the Rutherford yard more than two days before the fire. But the evidence upon the question of the time of their arrival was in conflict, there being evidence from which it might be inferred that they arrived within twenty-four hours preceding the fire. Moreover, there was evidence to the effect that notice of their arrival was not given to the consignees longer than six or seven hours before the fire.

"There being evidence from which the jury might reasonably attribute negligence to the defendant company, both with respect to transporting the goods in question upon open cars, instead of box cars, and with respect to the communication of the fire itself, by means of which the goods were destroyed, and there being no indisputable ground upon which the defendants could be excused from the consequences of such negligence, it results that it was erroneous to take the case from the jury."

The Market.

Last week business continued steady and good. Usually a holiday is followed by a dull period, but not so with this Easter. Orders kept on coming in a volume sufficient to prevent a surplus of stock from accumulating in the wholesale houses. Outdoor spring stock was not yet ready for cutting and the early greenhouse flowers were plentiful, but there was a good supply of roses and carnations. Prices were extremely reasonable.

GRAFTED ROSES

Five hundred thousand this year and half of them sold! The old, worn-out section won't do for the days that are to come—days when production will tell the story of profit or loss. Labor is plenty. Dig in and replant. We can still supply the best that can be produced, before-the-war quality; better shipping conditions, better deliveries than we have had in the past few years. Get good soil under and good roofs over our grafted roses and watch things grow!

Let us know the verdict!

Various Notes.

John Klaus, of Greenwood, Mo., cut 12,000 roses and 12,000 Darwin tulips during Easter week.

W. S. Dolan, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., was called back from Iowa for a few days, but returned there April 9 in order to close some deals. Mr. Dolan has an order for two new houses, each 37x150 feet, for the Sapulpa Flower Shop, Sapulpa, Okla. This company now has a retail store and will grow its own stock in the new houses.

In compliment to the florists of Kansas City, Kan., the April meeting of the Florists' Club was held in the Chamber of Commerce building in that city the evening of April 7. W. S. Dolan, E. A. Humfeld and E. L. Clemens were appointed as a local committee to cooperate with the S. A. F. in its drive for new members. William Wade, secretary, read a letter from J. F. Ammann, secretary of the S. A. F., complimenting the local club on its accomplishments thus far and wishing it success in all undertakings. T. J. Noll, president, mentioned grievances that some of the florists have told him, chief of which is the selling of flowers at retail by wholesale florists. This was discussed pro and con. Easter business was gone over to some extent and everybody expressed satisfaction with it. It was decided to hold the May meeting at some downtown store and no special program will be arranged, as the date will be so close to Mothers' day. After all business was disposed of, there was music by Miller's orchestra and dancing.

J. E. Murray & Co. had unusually good business last week, principally funeral work.

Frank M. Johnson and A. L. Randall, of Chicago, spent a couple of days in the city looking over trade conditions last week.

With Henry Kusik & Co., April business has been as good as it was last year, including the Easter business. Wire and supply orders have been a big part of this year's business.

The obituary of Walter W. Harnden, who died April 5, appears in the obituary column of this issue.

AGERATUM, Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ¾ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant. 2-inch, $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100. 3-inch, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

October. Mr. Carter would like to see the florists take a more active part in the campaign and devote part of their advertising to this end. The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has run several advertisements about planting grass seed and they have had a tremendous business on grass seed.

T. J. Noll Floral Co. moved a big cut of roses from the Longview last week.

L. R. Cook, who has charge of the supply department of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., is on a trip through the southwest.

Samuel Murray has one house of gloxinias. He will run these plants as a specialty for Mothers' day.

"Business is splendid. You can't use too strong an adjective to express it," remarked Miss L. E. Boggess, as she made up a spray, answered the telephone and took an order from a waiting customer, almost all at one and the same time.

The Emery, Bird, Thayer Dry Goods Co. sold carnations for 3 cents apiece April 9. They were from a local grower.

Mrs. Gertrude Stokes, who has been selling flowers on the street for the last three years and has always paid a peddler's license, was forced out of business by the police department. Later an order was issued to stop all flower peddling on the streets. As Mrs. Stokes is a widow and has three children to support, this is her means of living. She is preparing a petition to the chief of police to be allowed to resume business.

James Musso has opened a flower shop in the Jones' Store, Twelfth and Main streets. The first week he had the decorating of the new Merchants' bank and a wedding, in addition to a nice trade in cut flowers.

P. A. Manson, Harry Blake and William Day, of the Pinehurst Floral Co., came from Pleasant Hill, Mo., for the Florists' Club meeting.

Shortly before Easter, the Pinehurst Floral Co. sent a carload of Easter lilies and other plants to the florists of Dallas, Tex. The car arrived on time and the customers were well pleased with the stock. On the outside of the car was a white sign, 3x10 feet, with the following in black letters: "Say It with Flowers." A carload of Easter lilies and other plants for the florists of Dallas, Tex., from the Pinchurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo."

The Sarcxie peony fields, which are known throughout the country and attract thousands of sightseers during the harvest season, are expected to bloom about May 1 this year. The Sarcxie peonies are shipped to all parts of the country and occupy more than fifty acres of specially prepared ground. The crop was ruined last year by a hail storm about a week before the blooms came out. The loss was approximately $25,000. J. E. K.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Business the week following the rush of Easter appeared to be rather quiet. There was a good demand for design work, but the warm weather affected the sale of cut flowers. Stock was plentiful.

Various Notes.

Toronto florists have had a chance of comparing the returns this year with last year's figures and have been agreeably surprised at the result.

During the week, I visited Hamilton and found that the florists there enjoyed a good Easter. They had been well supplied with plants and, generally speaking, all were sold. Mr. Brown, of the Arbor Florist, has a beautiful store just completed. In addition to the main store, he has opened a branch in one of the department stores and did a big business at the branch at Easter.

Retail florists have been advised not to collect the sales tax on design work. Toronto and Montreal florists have not been collecting it. A test case is being tried at Ottawa to see if florists are liable, but the feeling among Toronto florists is that they are not.

The program of the annual convention of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, at Peterborough, in August, is taking shape and it is expected that there will be a large attendance. It is hoped that there will be a large representation from south of the border. J. J. H.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

CONVENIENCE VS. COMPASS.

We are going to build six houses, 30x100, even span, with 8-foot gutters and one-quarter pitch. The location we wish to use is on a street that runs almost due southeast and northwest. We wish to build square with the street. Our land lies so that we can put the houses either with the sides toward the street or the ends toward the street. We prefer the ends toward the street. We expect to grow a general line of plants, carnations and a few vegetables. Which way would you advise setting the houses, considering the high altitude and the northern location? We have a great deal of sunshine. Will vegetables do as well with 8-foot gutters as with lower ones?
S. F. C.—Wyo.

It will really make little difference whether the houses are built with the sides or ends to the street. On some accounts, for the plants to be grown in the house, we should prefer to have them with the ends to the street. However, the matter of convenience would have more weight than the points of the compass. If the gutters are placed six feet from the ground, the cost of construction will be reduced. For carnations and vegetable crops, we should prefer to have six feet rather than eight feet. If any of the houses are to be used for tomatoes or cucumbers, 8-foot gutters would be desirable, although the middle beds in 6-foot houses would answer well for those crops.

ARRANGING THE PIPES.

I propose putting up a greenhouse, 21x57 feet. The front end will be of glass, but the rear end will abut against a garage. It is to be an even-span house. Please state the best general arrangement and the size of feed pipes required if 2-inch returns are used. Also, tell me the number of 2-inch returns necessary. The two side benches are to be three feet wide and the center bench will be solid and ten feet wide.

Also, please state the size of hot water boiler that will be necessary. This boiler will be located in the adjoining residence, which is due north of the greenhouse. Also, please tell me the height and the size of the flue that will be required.
E. G. B.—Pa.

As nearly as we can make out, the side walls are to have three feet of glass over three feet of tile. A temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather is desired.

About 625 feet of radiation will be required and we should select a boiler rated for about 800 square feet of radiation. This will mean, or it does in most cases, a hot water heater with a grate about twenty-four inches in diameter.

Eliminate the Fuel Wasting Factors

The most destructive forces working against the Nation's fuel resources are soot and boiler scale.

In these times every source of fuel waste must be abolished from your plants. The slacker, either man or mechanical equipment, has no place.

Kroeschell Tubeless Boilers

A boiler with bulky soot accumulating surfaces causes enormous fuel losses. Faulty coal wasting boilers that cannot be kept clean and which constantly keep you in trouble can no longer be tolerated.

Meet the high cost and limited supply of fuel with Kroeschell Boilers. These highly effective fuel-saving boilers will make every dollar you spend for fuel do its utmost.

Further, improved economy can be obtained if you centralize your heat supply. Use only one boiler instead of three or four. It will save the expense of needless fuel and labor.

Successful greenhouse owners demand Kroeschell Boilers to handle the heat supply in a modern way—the larger the plant the more insistent is the use of Kroeschell Boilers, as they carry enormous glass areas with a minimum of fuel and labor.

Our Water Tube Steam Boiler

Don't wait until the winter's distressing coal shortage confronts you to begin investigating the advantages of Kroeschell Boilers as a means of relieving the situation.

ACT PROMPTLY! There is a Kroeschell for every greenhouse plant, be it large or small.

"White Coal"

Black Coal

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

The flue should have a cross section of about 100 square inches and should extend from four to six feet above the ridge.

The main flow and return should be 4-inch. For the feed pipes in the house, we should run a 2½-inch flow on each side wall plate and a third flow three feet below the ridge. Twelve 2-inch returns will be needed. Place four under each side bench and two on each side of the solid bed. These are to be fed by the mains overhead. If either side wall is exposed to the prevailing cold winds, an additional return may be used to advantage under the bench on that side of the house. But, ordinarily, it will not be required for zero weather.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

the Retail Florists' Association has been planning for the last month to purchase. The fine building on Bush street, near Kearney, which was under consideration, will probably not be the association's choice. The main floor is large enough at present for a market and the location is excellent, but, as business is growing rapidly, the trade would probably soon outgrow the market.

One of the leading members of the "Tell the World" campaign is Angelo Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. This campaign is to give world-wide advertising to northern California, and most of the leading organizations in the San Francisco bay region are participating. Mr. Rossi is a prominent member of the San Francisco Advertising Club and of several other civic organizations.

The Powell street baseball team is the name of a newly organized club, composed of the staff of F. C. Jaeger & Son. Sam Matraia is the captain of the team.

Brown & Kennedy are already making special arrangements for Mothers' day telegraph deliveries. They did this before Easter, enlarging their delivery department so that orders were delivered within the hour.

As Mothers' day is on Sunday, the Retail Florists' Association will take up, at its next meeting, the question of keeping open for half the day, as a special concession to telegraph deliveries.

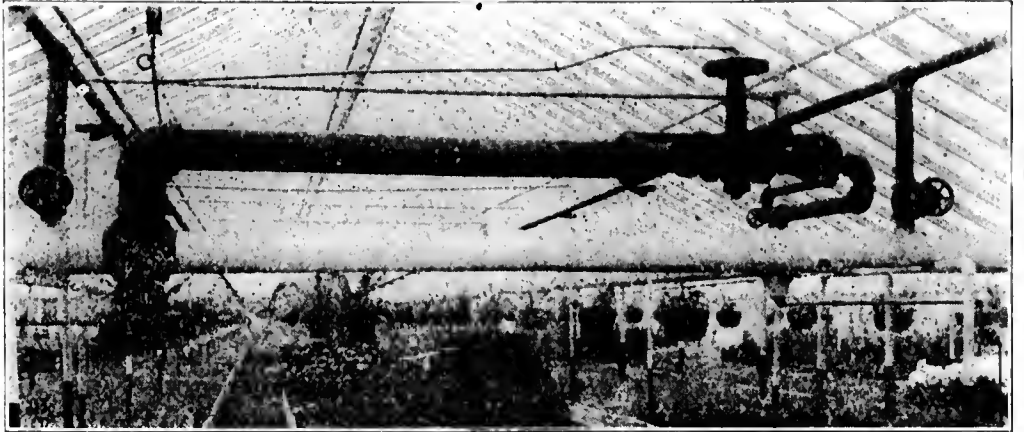

C. Kooyman is having over 1,000 magnolia wreaths made, in preparation for Memorial day. They are for use in conjunction with strawflowers.

J. A. Axell is showing some variegated ranunculi that are attracting attention. They are lemon yellow, tipped with vermilion, shaded to magenta. "One woman worked for sixteen years to produce them," said Mr. Axell. "She is Mrs. Marks, who began as an amateur and, becoming interested, is now a grower." L. H. Brown, of San Leandro, is sending Mr. Axell 10,000 Darwin tulips a day, and they are usually gone early.

A number of excellent strawflowers are being dried by the United Flower & Supply Co. for Mothers' day and Memorial day decorations. The company expects to be able to fill all orders.

Domoto Bros. will have iris and cut lilies from the nurseries from now till after Memorial day. Fine hydrangeas in pots are just coming in.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. is still specializing in greenhouse pansies, which are larger and finer than those

Reducing Steam In Arkansas

Here is a view of Vestal & Sons' range in Little Rock, Arkansas. This modern greenhouse was designed and erected by the John C. Moninger Company of Chicago.

They say:

"Fisher Reducing Valves are used in this range because experience has proved them to be the very best for greenhouse heating. They are reliable and very sensitive. We are installing Fisher Reducing Valves in all our heating systems because we know they give satisfactory and economical service for unusually long periods of time."

Fisher Reducing Valve is super-sensitive. Controlling pressure is taken from the low pressure main at a point where there is an average balanced, low pressure.

Inner valve is double-seated, which prevents all hammering and chattering.

Fisher Reducing Valves are made in a wide variety of inlet and outlet size combinations. This enables you to effect considerable saving in pipe, in the high pressure line.

Bulletin 201 contains a flow-chart which shows exactly the proper sized reducing valve for your particular service. Write for it TODAY.

Carl E. Melby, lately with the Pinehurst Floral Shop, is about to start a new shop of his own.

The Orpheum Floral Co. has been showing some fine late Vermilion Brilliant tulips and white cyclamens in pots, both of which have proved to be good sellers.

F. Van der Schoot, of R. A. Van der Schoot, a Holland bulb house, called on the northwest trade during the last two weeks. He is planning to return to England as quickly as possible, calling on the Canadian trade en route.

E. O. Peterson, of the Hollywood Gardens, has been enjoying a short vacation, and, on his return, Russell Jones is to leave. Rather novel wedding bouquets were developed by Miss Wharton, of this shop, for one of the week's social events. The four bridesmaids' bouquets were made of forget-me-nots, Delphinium Belladonna and blue hyacinths, bound in two shades of blue tulle. The bouquet for the matron of honor consisted of a sheaf of long-stemmed Darwin tulips. The bride carried five Easter lilies. The breaking away from the usual in wedding decorations was the cause of much comment here.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop has been showing some splendid locally grown snapdragon and portulacas, and in addition Dr. Allen has been able to feature Keizerskroon grown in his own yard. He will have about 500 blooms to cut this season.

W. A. Beall, who owns greenhouses at Vashon, Wash., reports a notable increase in the cut of Ophelia and Columbia roses, but the halt in California shipments has placed such a load on the local growers that the demand is still ahead of supplies at times.

William Goldsbary, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, has returned from a business trip to Vancouver, where he found the florists reporting generally satisfactory business. There has been an especially good showing this year in business occasioned by trans-Pacific travel.

L. W. McCoy showed the first Japanese cherry blossoms of the season, and is drawing from his greenhouses what are considered the best of the local Laddie carnations. La Verne Jackson spent the last week-end in Bremerton.

Rosaia Bros. handled a good share of the booth decorations for the automobile show and used more roses in this work

MR. A. J. WASHKO, of A. J. Washko & Sons Floral Co., Bedford, Ohio, writes:

"It is a pleasure to me to express my opinion in regard to your patent LEAK-PROOF gutter. I wish to state that I speak of many years' experience as an architect and know when material is fit for a certain place. The fact is that your gutter really is the best gutter on the market up to date. It is second to none; it really has no equal."

We are the patentees and sole manufacturers of this LEAK-PROOF gutter which is giving so much satisfaction.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds has been plentiful and there has been a slight decline in prices. Considering labor conditions, etc., trade has kept up remarkably well. The retailers all report good trade.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. has been busy with a number of large funeral orders, among which was a beautiful blanket for the funeral of the late John White, banker.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some fine Cattleya Mossiae.

Some fine Darwin tulips are seen at the store of the Blossom Floral Co. This firm furnished a large order for the opening of the Fort Wayne Motor Service.

Among the trade visitors last week were S. R. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, and H. A. Frishkorn, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh. S. N.

Moultrie, Ga.—T. E. Ginn, owner of Ginn's Greenhouse, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., has purchased the range of greenhouses here owned by H. H. Rothe. He is going to move immediately and will operate under the name of the Moultrie Floral Co.

When You Call a Doctor Do You Get Bids?

Or do you get the best man you can find and cheerfully pay the bill when he has saved some loved one? Of course your business success is not as vital as life—but it is the second in importance. It spells happiness and comfort for those you love as well as yourself. And your success as a grower depends largely on the quality of the houses you own—their “rightness” means greater, better crops and lower costs.

If you buy your greenhouses as you select your doctor—you will not quibble over costs but order a

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There is little to say concerning the market conditions last week. There was ample supply for all demands and prices were about normal. A few social functions were held and there are a few scheduled for this week. The outdoor season was from ten days to two weeks early and the landscape men were all driven to catch up to the weather. The nurserymen and seedsmen all reported heavy demands upon them and the indications in these lines are for an unusually active season.

Various Notes.

Otto Hassert furnished the bouquets and decorations for the annual matron's reception of the Providence chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, at the Masonic temple last Wednesday evening.

William J. King, of Narragansett, has sold his landscape and gardening business to Antonio de Sista, of Rocky Brook.

Fred V. Child, Warren, has several thousand aster and salvia plants as well as some tomato, pepper and cabbage plants.

The Lowell Avenue Greenhouses, operated by Cohen Bros., are planning some radical improvements and changes in the houses this spring.

Jesse B. Mowry, Rhode Island state commissioner of forestry, who has been ill with influenza at his home in Chepachet, is improving.

Eugene McCarron reports an unusually good business for the first three months of this year. He is preparing for much new work at his houses.

The East Greenwich Greenhouses have a heavy booking for landscape and outdoor work and have a large lot of plants for bedding.

C. A. Browning, of Apponaug, is busy shipping strawberry plants, Everbearing being especially in demand. W. H. M.

The Market.

Early summer temperatures were recorded during the greater part of last week, the highest being 82 degrees in the sun. It was apparent that this was general in the east, judging from the large supply of roses shipped from this quarter. Not for a period of twenty or more years has such weather been recorded at this time of the year. The month of March was exceptionally warm and April had been likewise until April 9, when a sharp frost, without doubt, did much damage to the fruit trees and shrubbery.

Business last week was good indeed and the greater part of the heavy supply was worked off in a satisfactory manner. The street venders were responsible for clearing a large amount of surplus stock and each day rendered the wholesale market practically clean by night.

In roses about everything in season was seen, and cleaner, finer stock would be hard to find at this time of the year. Carnations were also good and in fair supply. Easter lilies were in supply enough to meet the demand. Sweet peas were plentiful, particularly so in the medium grades. The quality throughout was good. Snapdragons were not overplentiful. There was, however, a good demand for them. Callas were also in good supply and sold well. There was a good supply of pansies, but no particular sale for them was noticed. There was plenty of valley on hand. White and yellow daisies were plentiful and sold readily. Calendulas were selling well and the supply was about equal to the demand. Gardenias and orchids did not sell well. Sweet alyssum was found useful in design work, which was heavy last week.

Various Notes.

Artistic decorations were seen at the policemen's annual ball, held at the Armory Monday, April 4. Great quantities of flowers and palms were used, as well as a big supply of wild smilax. Corsages of violets, about 125 in all, were sent to the patronesses by the committee. George T. Boucher did the decorations and supplied the corsages.

The Woodlawn Nursery Co. reports an exceptionally busy season this year.

Albion, N. Y., died at the General hospital early Saturday, April 9, from injuries received when he fell from the rear of a florist's truck in this city, the afternoon of Wednesday, April 6. Mr. Weilheimer sat in the rear of the truck and a sudden lurch of the vehicle caused him to fall. At first it was thought that he was not seriously injured. Death, however, was found to have been due to three broken vertebrae in the neck, which exerted pressure on the spinal cord. He was the father of Mrs. Valentine Gatz, of Albion, N. Y., and with Valentine Gatz was in the city on a business trip.

William H. Dildine, secretary and treasurer of James Vick's Sons, is able to get down to his office occasionally. He has been confined to his home and the hospital since just before last Christmas. He has suffered considerably, but is making good progress now and it is sincerely hoped that he will make a complete recovery as the better weather continues.

The regular monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held Friday evening, April 8, at the Osburn House. The principal speaker of the evening was Clinton R. Lyddon, president of the Lyddon & Hanford Advertising Agency. His subject was, "How to Increase Your Income by Advertising." He pointed out the benefits from advertising to be derived by florists and growers and urged them to do all in their power to make their products more popular by this method. There was a good attendance. More members would have been present, but the heavy demands now made at the greenhouses prevented some from attending. A discussion followed the speaker's remarks.

Visitors last week included Valentine Gatz, of Albion, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Quance, of Newark, N. Y. H. J. H.

Akron, O. — E. Schwerdtfeger, the proprietor of the North Hill Greenhouses, sent out cards to his customers and friends inviting them to call at the store and help celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary, which fell on April 13.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders, owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)

There are no bonds, mortgages or other securities outstanding against The Florists' Publishing Co.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

How Thousands of Lawns Are Kept in Fine Condition

The proper care of large lawns no longer presents the big problem that it did a few years ago. For the Ideal Power Lawn Mower has definitely demonstrated the superiority of power-driven mowers in caring for large areas of grass.

In fact, during the past few years thousands who have large lawns to care for have found that the Ideal gives better care at less cost.

They have found that their Ideal Mower represents a paying investment, that our claims for the work that can be accomplished with an Ideal are indeed conservative.

They have found that while we state that the Ideal will do as much work as five men, it will in many instances do as much as six or even seven men with hand mowers. That it will easily cut from four to five acres of grass per day—is simple and easy to operate—easy to care for and very economical. Many have expressed their special appreciation of the rolling feature and how it has improved their lawns.

Ideal Power Lawn Mowers are used on private estates, golf courses, polo grounds, municipal parks, college grounds, cemeteries, ball parks, school grounds, hospital grounds, etc. Here are just a few names from the thousands of Ideal users: Geo. Ostrander, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; Mt. St. Agnes College, Mt. Washington, Md.; Marion Golf Club, Marion, Mass.; City & County of Denver, Denver, Colo.

With riding trailer the Ideal makes the most practical and economical riding mower on the market. Furnished either with or without riding trailer. Also special cutting unit for putting greens.

Any of our dealers will gladly demonstrate the Ideal for you. Special illustrated catalog upon request.

TOTTI'S MUMS.

A familiar slogan for nearly twenty years. The stock we offer you today is absolutely free from the dreaded mildew, having been propagated entirely from plants that have been grown outdoors all summer. Lifted in the fall and housed solely for propagating purposes. It costs more to raise stock this way, but the results obtained more than justify the cost. The following varieties we can offer for immediate delivery in 2 1/4-in. pots; planted out in a bench now and stopped, they will give you quantities of fine, clean cuttings during the next four months. Remember we guarantee this stock is ABSOLUTELY CLEAN.

25,000TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In the best commercial colors, consisting of light salmon, dark salmon, wine red, Christmas red, Rose of Marienthal, Daybreak, white with pink eye, and white; and the best strain on the market, throwing some blooms the past season with us that measured 3 and 4 inches from tip to tip. We will give you 65 per cent salmon if you prefer.

Our method of growing transplanted seedlings is entirely distinct from others and gives them the most vigorous root growth you ever saw. No plant will have less than 4 leaves and from that to 8, and you must expect to get stock that will please you.

Let us put you in line so you can grow some of the big stuff for next Christmas.

I WISH TO CLOSE OUT MY

Collection of high class, cut flower Dahlias; over 200 varieties, 700 clumps; only a few of each variety, some of which have only one clump; clumps are average size and will make from 4 to 10 cuttings; a great many of these are high priced Dahlias of recent introduction, one cutting of each variety cost me $83.50; I will sell the whole lot for $115.00, or half of them for $70.00, or divide them up at the catalogue price.

A bargain for anyone who wants to start a Dahlia farm; none better. They are of the Peony, Cactus, Show, Decorative and Pompon types. Send for list.

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION.

Portable Lines with Two Sets of Nozzles

—One for Outdoors
—One for Inside

Every month in the year, your Skinner System Portable watering line can be busy SAVING money and MAKING money for you.

In the outdoor growing months, screw in the Silver Stream Nozzles that throw the water 25 feet on each side of the line.

The rest of the year put in the Scatter Mist Nozzles and use it in your greenhouse.

The pipes come in 16-foot length.

The couplings are simplicity itself.

Just a slip in of the square end into its socket, a turn or two of the slip collar and it's done. Four moves of a 200-foot line waters a full acre.

Two men can make the moves in twenty minutes.

That complete line 200 feet long, equipped with an extra set of nozzles, costs only $88.25.

Compare it with hose that wears out as soon as your back is turned and waters one spot at a time, and takes one man's time to do it.

Will sell you any length line you want.

Can ship at once.

Solves Labor Problem

By A. F. J. Baur, Secretary of the American Carnation Society

From "The Florists' Review," Feb. 10, 1921

"Seeing a discussion in the columns of The Review regarding the merits of motor-driven cultivators, I feel impelled to add a word regarding our experience along that line. It is a most important matter to the trade and will be more so as time goes on.

"About a year ago we purchased a Merry Garden cultivator. We judged that this implement was just about what we wanted here for cultivating young carnation plants in the field, and for any other cultivating of a similar nature.

"Up to last spring we had been using Planet Junior man-power cultivators. We were obliged to put four men in the field after every rain in order to secure the full benefits from the rain. During the past summer, with a slightly enlarged planting, we found it possible to do all our cultivation with this one Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator. It did the work in the same time as the four man-cultivators and did better work. We would not think of parting with this implement.

"We break our field in the late fall and work it down with the disk in the spring, using the team for both operations. After that, we need only the light cultivator and the Merry Garden is just the ticket for that."

A. F. J. BAUR,
Secretary, The American Carnation Society.

Many Write Like This:

"The Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator easily pays for itself in labor saved every 30 days. On our place, one man cultivated, in 3 hours, a patch usually requiring two men, with hand cultivators, a day and a half. Besides, the job was done twice as deep."

Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator

A man or boy can do the work of four men in the same time and do it more thoroughly. It works where another cultivator can't be used, on any kind of soil. Digs deeper and gets close to roots when desired. Straddles narrow rows, works between wider ones. Enclosed gears prevents loss from mutilated plants and exhausts to side also protects them. Also operates 30-inch lawnmower.

So easy and simple to operate it's play for a boy and recreation for a man. Makes a pleasant chore of an otherwise hard day's work. Hundreds of owners from coast to coast say they would not part with their Merry Garden at any price if they could not buy another.

Equipped with pulley and stand for stationary work, such as: pumping, washing, etc.

—and J. Ogden Armour says:

"I believe we are right on the eve of the day when the buying public will hang out the 'business as usual' sign and end the slump that has gripped the country, slowed up business and thrown such a scare into most of us that we have failed to note the prosperity signs all about us.

"The turn toward better business will come one of these days just as suddenly and just as irresistibly as did the present slump. It cannot be otherwise. The American people constitute the best market in the world, and their buying power is as great as ever."

Now, Mr. Armour is generally conceded to be one of the most careful and experienced students of business conditions, and when he speaks, his expressed thoughts are generally the result of a lot of hard thinking and sifting. So you will do well to read his message several times and then prepare to reap your share of the coming big business by getting an AGMCO estimate on what you intend to—

Built by us for Memorial Park Cemetery, Evanston, Ill.

There is no denying nowadays that a greenhouse is an essential part of a cemetery. The trouble is in so many cemeteries the greenhouses are poor, makeshift affairs and, besides being inefficient, are an eyesore.

The conservatory as shown above is a modern curved eave steel greenhouse which, in addition to producing excellent stock, is a distinctive ornament and a salesman in itself.

We will be more than glad to give you an estimate and sketches for a conservatory or any other kind of greenhouse if you will just drop us a line.

Greenhouse Builders

How Our Wrought IRON Posts Are After 40 Years in the Ground

Here's where we make an honest confession.

This is it.

Over a half century ago, before we had much of any experience building greenhouses, we thought we knew about all one needed to know. Now we know less than we thought we knew then, but we have a half century of experience on which to base what we now know.

Just for example, we claim that our guaranteed wrought iron posts will outlast any steel posts that are made, even it is twice as thick.

We didn't make that claim because we thought it was so. Or because the people who had wrought iron to sell, told us it was so.

We knew it was so, because we had experience that proved it was so.

CLEVELAND 107 Finner Bldg.	TORONTO Royal Bank Bldg.
Eastern Factory Irvington, N. Y.	Western Factory Des Plaines, Ill.	Canadian Factory St. Catharines, Ont.

Exactly 30 years after we built Frank Pierson of Tarrytown a house, he began wondering about whether the posts ought to be replaced.

He dug down and found them sound as a nut.

Last fall, which was close to 10 years afterward, we asked him to let us do some digging on our own hook.

Still those wrought iron posts were sound and strong.

Rusted over the surface, of course. But not rusted into the metal.

For exactly the same reason that wrought pipe lasts longest: so do wrought posts.

Why be so determined to have wrought pipe, or nothing; and then let someone sell you a greenhouse with steel posts?

Wrought iron posts set in concrete and double gusset plates on ready for putting up rafters.

Photo of one of the Pierson wrought iron posts after being 40 years in the ground. It's rusted over. But not in.

Note those gusset plates on both sides the post. It's so that some builders use only one plat.

CHOICE QUALITY of Roses in All Lengths of Stem

OUR ROSES

have a National Reputation for Quality

Buy Direct of the Grower

We are Rose growers especially for the shipping trade. We cut our Roses more in the bud, and grow them cooler, so that they will ship in better condition. All of our Roses are grown in one large range of glass, and are brought in from our greenhouses two and three times per day.

TURNING DAHLIAS INTO DOLLARS

After a period of comparative disfavor, dahlias have been returning in recent years to their rightful place in public esteem. On account of their wide diversity of form and color, they are now peculiarly well adapted to aid in preventing monotony in florists' displays of stock.

DAHLIAS old-fashioned! No, not now, though still occasionally called old-fashioned flowers. Thirty or forty years ago they were correctly so called, for they then had all the prim, precise dignity that is characteristic of many old fashions. The prim form, the show type, still survives and is a beloved member of the group, but now the show type is only one of many types; it no longer dominates the fashions of the entire dahlia family. No, indeed, dahlias now are not old-fashioned. There is nothing antiquated or slow about them; they are genuine progressives. Just when the experts have completed a nice, elaborate classification of the dahlia forms, labeling them cactus, decorative, show, peony-flowered and so on—just then two or three brand-new types are likely to appear and create fresh disorder, because none of the old labels will fit the new arrivals.

In fact, the dahlia always has been peculiarly quick to respond to good treatment. When, late in the eighteenth century, the first consignment of seed of the wild dahlia was sent from the native dahlia home in Mexico to the gardeners of Europe, the flower immediately—even in the first year—showed its appreciation of its new environment by beginning, in numerous instances, to assume a double form.

A Fortunate Find.

Even the first flowers of the cactus type had their origin, apparently, in accidental discovery, or in entirely natural circumstances, rather than in special culture or systematic experimentation. It is said that in 1872 a shipment of dahlia roots, mostly decayed on arrival, was received by a Dutch florist from a friend in Mexico and that a cactus flower, the first one known to civilization, was produced from one of the few sound roots in the lot. If, then, the dahlia has proved itself so appreciative of slight human attention, why should it not develop wonderfully under the skillful care of modern specialists?

In accounting for the temporary check in the popularity of dahlias, two reasons usually have been cited; first, the former predominance of the stiff, prim show type, and, second, the difficulty that sometimes has been experienced in shipping the flowers successfully. The first-mentioned obstacle, monotonous formality of flower, surely has been effectually removed. Among the many classes of modern dahlias, there certainly are sufficient diversities of form and color to suit the most exacting and dissimilar tastes.

Satisfactory Shipping.

The other trouble, in regard to shipping, has also been overcome to a large extent. Successful shipping of dahlias depends chiefly on care in packing them. They are easily bruised, but the bruising may be avoided by proper handling. Shippers have learned how to pack them so they will travel long distances satisfactorily, at least if the weather is not intensely hot. They are not the easiest of flowers to ship in excessive heat and each grower must decide for himself, in consideration of his market and other circumstances, whether it will be profitable for him to make an effort to get an especially early crop. In solving this problem there is plenty of opportunity for the exercise of shrewd judgment. Experience with dahlias, as with chrysanthemums, has proved that sometimes there is no gain in greatly extending the blooming season. Dahlias are in their highest glory from the first part of September until frost, but it is possible to have them in bloom for three months, beginning in mid-July.

A prosperous New Jersey grower gives this brief outline of his method of packing: "We usually pack two layers to a box. Corrugated boxes are used, from five to six inches in height, forty inches long and sixteen inches wide, holding from 200 to 300 dahlias, according to the kind of flower. We can ship them in this manner, we believe, to Chicago. We certainly ship them to all the big cities east of Chicago and get them there in good order."

Single dahlias may be propagated from seed. Seed of the double forms may also be used, if the grower wishes to experiment in the production of new varieties or if he will be satisfied with a crop of blooms of all forms and colors. At large commercial places, plants are extensively grown, also, from cuttings. It is here supposed, however, that the beginner has obtained a stock of the tuberous roots, usually called tubers or bulbs.

Dividing the Clumps.

If the roots are in the form of undivided clumps, the grower needs to bear in mind that the eyes or buds are all on the crown—that is, on the base of the old stem—and that a root without an eye is worthless. In the process of division, therefore, the clump or cluster must be so cut as to apportion to each separate tuber or root a piece of the crown containing at least one eye. Unless the eyes are already clearly visible, so as to serve as a sure guide in the use of the knife, it is well to start the buds by placing the clumps in moist, moderately warm earth for a week or two before dividing them. Then there will be no need of guesswork and no danger of depending on blind tubers.

Dahlias generally will thrive in any soil that produces good corn. The best soil is a light loam, with good drainage; the worst soil is an extremely stiff clay. A light, sandy soil will serve the purpose well if plenty of manure and moisture is available. Dahlias need an abundance of nourishment. It is just possible, not probable, that the soil may be too rich, especially if it is heavy and stiff; then the plants will be more productive of stalks and foliage than of flowers. But the danger usually is entirely of the opposite sort—the danger of having the soil too poor. If the ground is too heavy and clayey, it may be improved by the addition of coal ashes or sand. Either of these materials, as well as the needed manure, may be incorporated with the soil while digging or plowing it deeply in preparation for planting.

When to Plant.

The date of planting is a matter of some dispute and uncertainty. As already stated, the question hinges not only on the differences of climate or latitude, but also on the character of the local market and on many other circumstances. The planting may be done as soon as danger from frost is past, or may be deferred until the middle of June, or in rare instances even until July 1. In case the planting is done early, say in April or the first part of May, it is doubly desirable to have an abundant water supply and convenient means of irrigation, or an early summer drought may cut the blooming period short, harden and blight the plants and render them worthless for the rest of the season. That is perhaps the principal risk incurred in early planting.

How to Plant.

The distance between the plants or roots may vary from two to four feet each way, allowing about two feet for the single varieties, two and one-half feet for the pompons, three feet for the fancy sorts and from three to four feet for those of the most luxuriant growth. If planted in a single row, hedge-fashion, even the most vigorous kinds need not be more than two and one-half feet apart in the row.

If the soil must be further enriched during the process of planting, capacious holes must be dug, so that a substantial layer of soil may be placed between the fertilizer and the root. If either strong manure or commercial fertilizer comes in direct contact with the sprout, burning may result.

Plant the roots six inches deep, not setting them on end in an upright position, but laying them flat on their sides, with an eye or bud turned upward. Many of the more painstaking growers do not fill the hole completely at the time of planting, but cover the root to a depth of only two or three inches at first, afterward drawing in the soil about the young shoot as it pushes upward and finally leaving a slight depression to serve as an aid in watering.

Setting the Stakes.

Now comes the question: To stake or not to stake? There is no question about the matter, however, in the minds of many growers. They have always used stakes, except for the decidedly dwarf varieties, and probably will continue to do so. Moreover, staking is perhaps the simplest and most practicable method for nearly all beginners. It is advisable to set the stakes at the time of planting, driving them in just before the roots are placed in the ground and thus avoiding the possibility of such damage to the roots as might result from future staking. The plants should be secured to the stakes as soon as the need of support is indicated, perhaps when the plants have attained the height of two feet or slightly more.

If extra large, long-stemmed flowers are wanted, disbudding is practiced. The best flowers usually are produced at the end of the main stem and of the principal branches, and these flowers will be improved if the buds and branches in the axils of the three or four pairs of leaves immediately below are removed about as soon as they appear.

The Branching Method.

An increasingly large number of growers, however, follow an entirely different method, the so-called branching method, which dispenses with the use of stakes. If, soon after planting, two or more shoots appear and do not seem to be menaced by cutworms, only the strongest shoot is retained and the center of it is pinched out or cut off as soon as two or three pairs of leaves have formed. Thus the plant is induced to branch close to the ground, or even below the level of the ground if the soil was accumulated over the root by degrees, as described in a preceding paragraph. As a result of this treatment, the plant has one strong, sturdy stem and four or more stiff branches, generally self-supporting. The branching method, of course, delays the first cut of flowers, but improves their quality and increases their quantity.

Feeding and Watering.

It is a great benefit to feed the plants several times during the growing season, either by applying liquid manure or by raking in some commercial fertilizer or well decayed manure. This extra nutriment is especially helpful when the plants are in bloom and is really essential if the crop begins to deteriorate too early, thus showing signs of starvation.

Though views about the watering of dahlias have differed considerably in the past, yet modern opinion seems to be more and more in favor of providing an abundance of moisture. It is scarcely necessary to tell any florist that the waterings should be thorough soakings, separated by longer or shorter intervals, according to the climate, the season and the nature of the soil. One successful grower recommends "watering heavily two or three times a week, preferably in the evening." Another specialist, seemingly more conservative, prescribes "a thorough watering once each week or ten days during the continuance of the drought." Probably the apparent disagreement in those two offers of advice does not indicate so much a difference of opinion as a difference of circumstances.

Harvesting the Clumps.

Soon after the foliage of the plants has been cut down by frost, the clumps are harvested. The phrase "soon after" is vague, but it is difficult to speak definitely when there are so many uncertainties in the situation. Under ordinary conditions of the weather, leaving the clumps two or three days in the ground, after the tops are dead, would be beneficial, in aiding the ripening of the roots. But if the period of underground ripening is prolonged to two or three weeks, the clumps may seriously deteriorate, being exposed to various dangers, such as the freezing of the crowns and the consequent damage of the eyes, or the growing of worthless and weakening suckers or shoots.

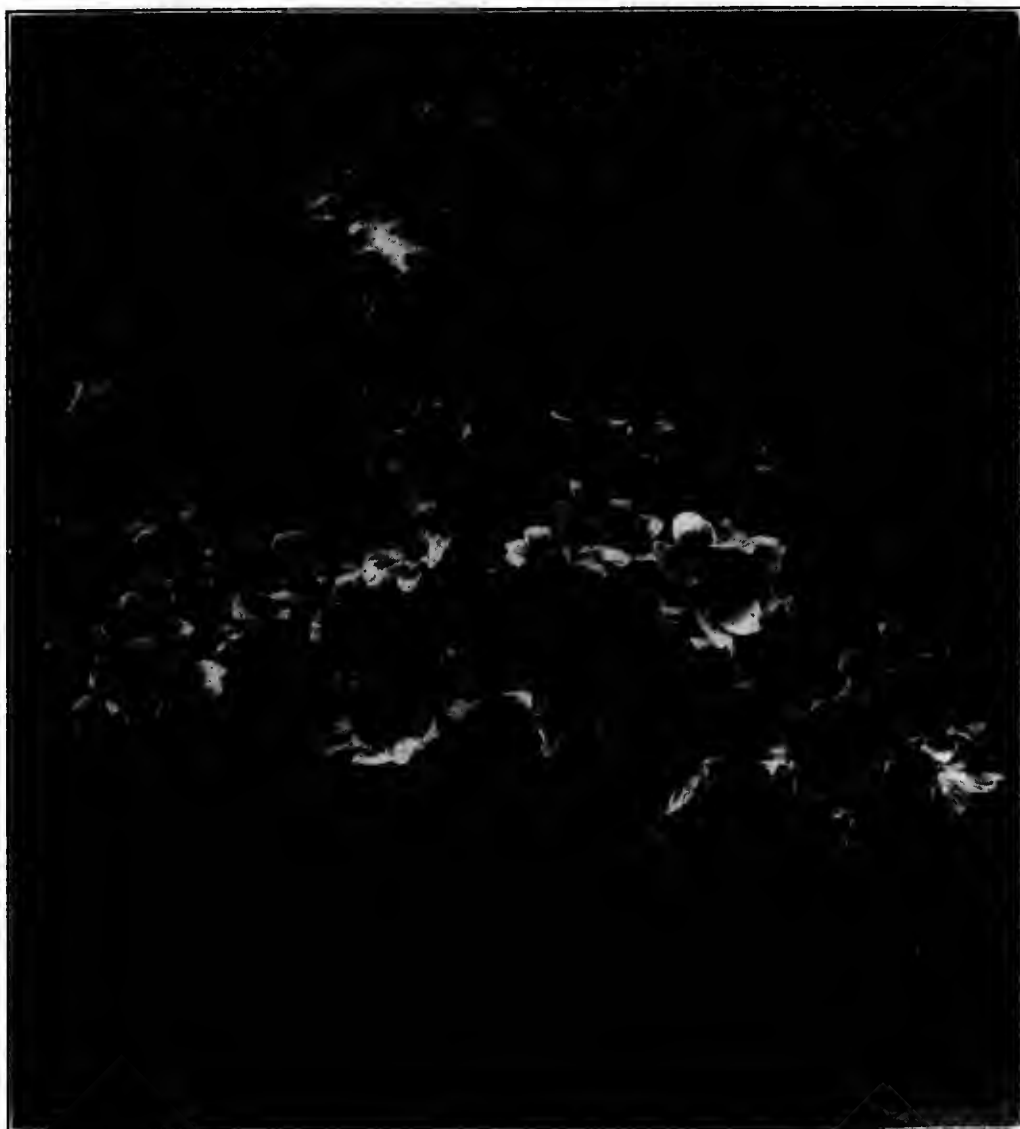

A day or two before the lifting of the clumps, the tops are cut off, with any sharp, clean-cutting tool, two or three inches from the ground. Great care is needed in digging the clumps, so as to avoid breaking either the neck or the lower part of the roots.

As the clumps are dug they are shaken gently, so as to free them from any soil that will fall off readily. After being allowed to dry off for an hour or two, they are packed on shelves, or in boxes or barrels, in a dry, cool, frost-proof cellar, with an average temperature of 45 degrees. Specialists advise packing the clumps upside down—that is, with the stalks down—so as to permit the excess sap or moisture in the stump or neck to drain out, instead of settling into the crown and causing decay.

In a cellar containing a furnace, it is necessary that the clumps be protected from the deleterious effects of the artificial heat. The boxes or barrels may be lined with heavy paper and covered on the outside with paper or burlap. Some growers prefer to pack the clumps in sand, coal ashes or soil, and appear to obtain excellent results from that practice. Others condemn the use of such packing materials.

GOOD DAHLIAS FOR CUTTING.

Since there are a number of types of dahlia and nearly every type comprises many varieties that are excellent for cutting, there is almost unlimited room for difference of opinion on the comparative merits of the flowers. It would be unreasonable, therefore, to expect any two persons, acting independently, to select precisely the same varieties and recommend them as the best obtainable for cut flower purposes. The following list has at least this fact in its favor, that it was selected by an expert grower who can scarcely be suspected of being prejudiced by self-interest, since he has no dahlia stock for sale. The list does not include any of the most recent introductions, but only well tried varieties of reasonable price:

Show—Grand Duke Alexis, white, tinted lavender; Dreer's White, pure white; Dreer's yellow, clear yellow; A. D. Livoni, pink.

Peony-flowered—Bertha von Suttner, salmon pink; Geisha, scarlet and gold; Queen Wilhelmina, pure white; John Green, scarlet; Yellow King, clear yellow.

Pompon—Queen of Whites, pure white; Fairy Queen, pale yellow, edged pink; Phoebe, coppery orange; Sunbeam, crimson.

Single—Pink Century, shell pink; White Century, pure white; Golden Century, primrose; Scarlet Century, clear scarlet.

CULTURE OF EVERLASTINGS.

Please give cultural directions for the following everlastings: Aero-elinium, statice, Gomphrena globosa, helichrysum and rhodanthe, or Swan river everlasting. I find no directions for any of these plants in any of the seedsmen's catalogues, except this brief statement in reference to the rhodanthe: "Charming everlasting; succeeds in light, rich soil and warm, sheltered situation. Valuable for pot culture." Before finding that statement, I had imagined the plants would all require about the same treatment as asters and I was about to sow the seeds in flats, expecting to transplant the seedlings to the field when they reached a height of two or three inches.

H. L. G.—Mich.

The idea at first entertained, that the so-called everlastings "require about the same treatment as asters," was not far wrong. The statement quoted from a seedsman's catalogue, in regard to the proper cultural conditions for rhodanthes, is quite accurate, but is easily capable of misinterpretation and seems to have conveyed the wrong impression in this case. Not being absolutely hardy in the most northerly American latitudes, the rhodanthe does prefer a "warm, sheltered situation." It is true, also, that the rhodanthe, like some other everlastings, is an excellent subject for potting as well as for ordinary field culture.

The plants which serve as everlastings are mostly hardy or half-hardy annuals, or at least are generally treated as annuals. According to botanists, the acroelinium and rhodanthe are both included in the genus heliopsis. The

If the soil must be further enriched during the process of planting, capacious holes must be dug, so that a substantial layer of soil may be placed between the fertilizer and the root. If either strong manure or commercial fertilizer comes in direct contact with the sprout, burning may result.

Plant the roots six inches deep, not setting them on end in an upright position, but laying them flat on their sides, with an eye or bud turned upward. Many of the more painstaking growers do not fill the hole completely at the time of planting, but cover the root to a depth of only two or three inches at first, afterward drawing in the soil about the young shoot as it pushes upward and finally leaving a slight depression to serve as an aid in watering.

Setting the Stakes.

Now comes the question: To stake or not to stake? There is no question about the matter, however, in the minds of many growers. They have always used stakes, except for the decidedly dwarf varieties, and probably will continue to do so. Moreover, staking is perhaps the simplest and most practicable method for nearly all beginners. It is advisable to set the stakes at the time of planting, driving them in just before the roots are placed in the ground and thus avoiding the possibility of such damage to the roots as might result from future staking. The plants should be secured to the stakes as soon as the need of support is indicated, perhaps when the plants have attained the height of two feet or slightly more.

If extra large, long-stemmed flowers are wanted, disbudding is practiced. The best flowers usually are produced at the end of the main stem and of the principal branches, and these flowers will be improved if the buds and branches in the axils of the three or four pairs of leaves immediately below are removed about as soon as they appear.

The Branching Method.

An increasingly large number of growers, however, follow an entirely different method, the so-called branching method, which dispenses with the use of stakes. If, soon after planting, two or more shoots appear and do not seem to be menaced by cutworms, only the strongest shoot is retained and the center of it is pinched out or cut off as soon as two or three pairs of leaves have formed. Thus the plant is induced to branch close to the ground, or even below the level of the ground if the soil was accumulated over the root by degrees, as described in a preceding paragraph. As a result of this treatment, the plant has one strong, sturdy stem and four or more stiff branches, generally self-supporting. The branching method, of course, delays the first cut of flowers, but improves their quality and increases their quantity.

Feeding and Watering.

It is a great benefit to feed the plants several times during the growing season, either by applying liquid manure or by raking in some commercial fertilizer or well decayed manure. This extra nutriment is especially helpful when the plants are in bloom and is really essential if the crop begins to deteriorate too early, thus showing signs of starvation.

Though views about the watering of dahlias have differed considerably in the past, yet modern opinion seems to be more and more in favor of providing an abundance of moisture. It is scarcely necessary to tell any florist that the waterings should be thorough soakings, separated by longer or shorter intervals, according to the climate, the season and the nature of the soil. One successful grower recommends "watering heavily two or three times a week, preferably in the evening." Another specialist, seemingly more conservative, prescribes "a thorough watering once each week or ten days during the continuance of the drought." Probably the apparent disagreement in those two offers of advice does not indicate so much a difference of opinion as a difference of circumstances.

Harvesting the Clumps.

Soon after the foliage of the plants has been cut down by frost, the clumps are harvested. The phrase "soon after" is vague, but it is difficult to speak definitely when there are so many uncertainties in the situation. Under ordinary conditions of the weather, leaving the clumps two or three days in the ground, after the tops are dead, would be beneficial, in aiding the ripening of the roots. But if the period of underground ripening is prolonged to two or three weeks, the clumps may seriously deteriorate, being exposed to various dangers, such as the freezing of the crowns and the consequent damage of the eyes, or the growing of worthless and weakening suckers or shoots.

A day or two before the lifting of the clumps, the tops are cut off, with any sharp, clean-cutting tool, two or three inches from the ground. Great care is needed in digging the clumps, so as to avoid breaking either the neck or the lower part of the roots.

As the clumps are dug they are shaken gently, so as to free them from any soil that will fall off readily. After being allowed to dry off for an hour or two, they are packed on shelves, or in boxes or barrels, in a dry, cool, frost-proof cellar, with an average temperature of 45 degrees. Specialists advise packing the clumps upside down—that is, with the stalks down—so as to permit the excess sap or moisture in the stump or neck to drain out, instead of settling in to the crown and causing decay.

In a cellar containing a furnace, it is necessary that the clumps be protected from the deleterious effects of the artificial heat. The boxes or barrels may be lined with heavy paper and covered on the outside with paper or burlap. Some growers prefer to pack the clumps in sand, coal ashes or soil, and appear to obtain excellent results from that practice. Others condemn the use of such packing materials.

GOOD DAHLIAS FOR CUTTING.

Since there are a number of types of dahlia and nearly every type comprises many varieties that are excellent for cutting, there is almost unlimited room for difference of opinion on the comparative merits of the flowers. It would be unreasonable, therefore, to expect any two persons, acting independently, to select precisely the same varieties and recommend them as the best obtainable for cut flower purposes. The following list has at least this fact in its favor, that it was selected by an expert grower who can scarcely be suspected of being prejudiced by self-interest, since he has no dahlia stock for sale. The list does not include any of the most recent introductions, but only well tried varieties of reasonable price:

Cactus—Countess of Lonsdale, salmon pink; Hoffnung, old salmon rose, suffused yellow; Mrs. Douglas Fleming, pure white; F. W. Fellowes, orange scarlet; Prince of Yellows and Wolfgang von Goethe, apricot.

Show—Grand Duke Alexis, white, tinted lavender; Dreer's White, pure white; Dreer's yellow, clear yellow; A. D. Livoni, pink.

Pecoty-flowered—Bertha von Suttner, salmon pink; Geisha, scarlet and gold; Queen Wilhelmina, pure white; John Green, scarlet; Yellow King, clear yellow.

Pompon—Queen of Whites, pure white; Fairy Queen, pale yellow, edged pink; Phoebe, coppery orange; Sunbeam, crimson.

Single—Pink Century, shell pink; White Century, pure white; Golden Century, primrose; Scarlet Century, clear scarlet.

CULTURE OF EVERLASTINGS.

Please give cultural directions for the following everlastings: Acro- clinium, statice, Gomphrena globosa, helichrysum and rhodanthe, or Swan river everlasting. I find no directions for any of these plants in any of the seedsmen's catalogues, except this brief statement in reference to the rhodanthe: "Charming everlasting; succeeds in light, rich soil and warm, sheltered situation. Valuable for pot culture." Before finding that statement, I had imagined the plants would all require about the same treatment as asters and I was about to sow the seeds in flats, expecting to transplant the seedlings to the field when they reached a height of two or three inches.

H. L. G. Mich.

The idea at first entertained, that the so-called everlastings "require about the same treatment as asters," was not far wrong. The statement quoted from a seedsmen's catalogue, in regard to the proper cultural conditions for rhodanthes, is quite accurate, but is easily capable of misinterpretation and seems to have conveyed the wrong impression in this case. Not being absolutely hardy in the most northerly American latitudes, the rhodanthe does prefer a "warm, sheltered situation." It is true, also, that the rhodanthe, like some other everlastings, is an excellent subject for potting as well as for ordinary field culture.

The plants which serve as everlastings are mostly hardy or half hardy annuals, or at least are generally treated as annuals. According to botanists, the acroclinium and rhodanthe are both included in the genus heliopsis. The helichrysums, though considered a separate genus, are also closely allied to the helipterums. All three classes of plants require similar treatment, with this difference, that the helichrysums generally are believed to be hardy and the helipterums only half-hardy. The seeds are germinated in a greenhouse or hotbed during the latter part of March and the seedlings are planted out in full sun as soon as danger of frost is past. Any good garden soil suits them, though a rich loam is the best.

Gomphrena globosa, the globe amaranth, belongs to an entirely distinct race or order from that of the foregoing plants, but is one of the most easily grown annuals. Most of the staticees in cultivation are hardy perennials and may be treated accordingly. They are of easy culture, rooting deeply and remaining for some years when well established.

It is important to bear in mind certain facts with reference to the harvesting of everlasting. It should be noted, especially as regards aeroeliniums, that when the blooming season has fully started, the flowers should be picked daily, so as to be seenred when in just the right stage of development. If the flowers are too far advanced, the ray petals will open flat, exposing the center, which will quickly turn brown when dried and thus will mar the effect. The best course is to pick the aeroeliniums just as soon as the buds show color, even if they are disappointingly small. The same general watchfulness is necessary with regard to helichrysums, though the helichrysum buds may be permitted to develop to fairly good size. In harvesting the flowers, remove all the foliage and hang the flowers in bundles, heads down, in a dry storeroom or closet.

EDUCATING THE PUBLIC.

Working on the Rising Generation.

Some advertising is straight selling talk; some is educational. Florists are becoming more and more adept at the former. The chief instrument of the latter, the national publicity campaign, is now in temporary abeyance. Each florist, particularly if he has greenhouses, is engaged in educational advertising, however. Some devote more efforts to it than others, because they place more value on it as a result-getter than do others.

One form of educational advertising is showing visitors through greenhouses. One grower said not long ago, "I can see in the people who visit my houses a greater interest and a keener appreciation of flowers when they leave than when they enter. They learn something in a way that makes it stick better than all the words we could waste on them. Not the least of what they learn, in importance to us, is the actual money involved in producing flowers under glass. If more people had the chance to visit our big ranges, the trade would correspondingly benefit."

One proprietor of a large range of glass invites the classes from the neighboring high school to visit his establishment at a season when the houses are in full crop and the impression the stronger, therefore. "We can cultivate interest in our products and breed desire for them if we will work in this way on the rising generation," he says. "The boys and girls who come here—some of them are on the verge of being young men and young women—remember the impressions they get here and the effects are to be seen not so long after in the retail store."

Shown in Savannah.

Among the florists who work on the principles just stated is John Wolf, of Savannah, Ga. He believes in starting young. So he invites not only the upper grades to visit his houses, but also the kindergarteners. In the illustration on this page is shown a group he piloted through his houses recently. When they had finished the tour, each child was presented with a geranium—and not the smallest-sized, either. The sunny proprietor himself can be seen at the entrance to the foremost house, a geranium in his hand, as pleased as anybody in the picture.

Mr. Wolf is one of those advocates, and practitioners, of educational advertising. If you subject a person to an influence, according to their theory, he will soon feel the need of that influence constantly. Give children flowers, and they will want the blooms replaced when they are gone. If a person visits an art gallery, he will not pin cheap lithographs on his walls at home. By the same logic, if a person is subjected to the pleasure of seeing flowers, he is not likely to be content without experiencing that pleasure again. And flowers, it appears, are like that favorite condiment of children, "the more you eat, the more you want." In that homely comparison lies the force and meaning of flower shows, park conservatories, flower store openings and greenhouses with the lathstring out.

THE BIG DRIVE.

"Clear the decks for action, for action there will be." So said J. F. Ammann as he rolled up his sleeves and started in to figure out the plans for the present extensive drive to obtain new members for the S. A. F. And there certainly will have to be some action if he attains the goal which he has set, "to double the membership in ninety days." But even that will be easily accomplished if all the present members will follow out the slogan of "every member get a member." Mr. Ammann is the chairman of the membership committee and has already done some good, hard work with the help of his fellow committee members. These are S. S. Pennoek, A. L. Miller, Paul R. Klingsporn and Joseph H. Hill.

Two letters have been sent out to the secretaries of all the florists' organizations that the S. A. F. knows about. These letters ask that the secretaries of these various clubs send in a list of all their members and also ask that a committee of three be appointed in each club to cooperate with the S. A. F. committee and to secure members in their respective territories. The letters point out the fact that anything done to help the S. A. F. in obtaining new members will also be of great benefit to the cooperating club. Mr. Ammann says that as yet there have been but few answers to these letters.

But there is still time and if you belong to some florists' club that, by any chance, has not received these letters, or if you do not belong to any club, a short note, addressed to J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., will be appreciated.

KILLING MEALY BUG.

What will kill mealy bug on gladiolus bulbs and also on coleus plants?

W. B.—O.

For mealy bug on coleus plants, the best cure is to lay the plants on their sides and turn the hose on them. By using a fine spray nozzle in this way, the mealy bug will all be blown from the plants. For the mealy bug on gladiolus bulbs, the spray method cannot be used, but the bulbs may be put in a box, case, barrel or any other receptacle which can be made approximately airtight. Then some carbon bisulphide may be put in a saucer over the bulbs and the top may be closed as nearly hermetically as possible. The fumes of the carbon bisulphide will strike downward and kill the bugs. C. W.

COSTS' CLIMB IN CANADA

RIISING COST OF PRODUCTION.

At Big Canadian Establishment.

My subject, "The Cost of Production," was no doubt suggested by the fact that there has been some unfair criticism in the press referring to prices of flowers. Fault has been found that prices are unreasonably high, and while we admit that they are higher than in some years past, we are prepared to justify prices as being fair, and even lower than might have been expected, taking into account the increased cost of production.

Let us take for comparison a few of the leading items. As you no doubt are already aware, the two which largely make up the cost of growing flowers in Canada are labor and coal. Taking the former, we will take periods 1900, 1910 and 1920. I go back to 1900 because my knowledge of the flower business commences with that year, having taken a position with the late Henry Dale in April of that year as office boy at $2 per week.

Common Labor.

Common labor, which we find in 1900 could be secured at 12 cents per hour, had risen in 1910 to 16 cents per hour, while in 1920 we were actually paying 50 cents per hour. In 1900 assistant growers, being chaps around 18 and 22, were readily secured at 9 and 10 cents per hour. In 1910 we were paying 13 to 15 cents, while in 1920 they were demanding 45 to 48 cents. Full-fledged growers in 1900 could be secured at 14 to 16 cents per hour. In 1910 the rate had risen to 24 and 27 cents, while in 1920 we were paying 55 and 60 cents.

I made a careful examination of our wage books at these different dates, and found that in 1900 we were employing forty hands at a weekly wage of $350, making the rate per man $8.75. In 1910 we were employing 135 men at a weekly wage of $1,500, the rate per man being $11.10, while in 1920 we were employing 275 hands at a weekly wage of $6,700, or a little over a $24 average for every employee on the place.

You will note from this information that from 1900 to 1910 wages had increased not quite one-third, while from 1910 to 1920 the increase was about 125 per cent, and I am sorry to say in many cases the efficiency was greatly lowered.

Coal and Other Supplies.

Next let us turn to coal. In 1900 there was no difficulty in getting all the coal required laid down at Brampton for about $1 per ton. In 1910 the rate had risen to $3 per ton, and in 1920 I think I am safe in saying that the average price paid by growers in this locality would be around $12 per ton, so that you will observe that the price of fuel had risen 300 per cent from 1900 to 1910 and 400 per cent from 1910 to 1920, or its cost was twelve times greater in 1920 than in 1900.

Fertilizers, which also play a considerable part in greenhouse production, had risen from 300 to 400 per cent during the ten years between 1910 and 1920. In 1905 Manetti used for rose grafting could be purchased at $10 per thousand, while in 1920 stocks of the same quality were costing $70 delivered here in Canada.

Glass, which is also another important item in our repair account annually, had risen from around $4 in 1904 or 1905 to $15 in 1920.

These are only some of the more important items, but I can assure you that a careful examination would prove that a similar increase in nearly every item going into the production of flowers could be shown.

Last week's leading article in The Review showed the increase in growing costs in the last three years at a big middle western rose range. This week, on this page, even more striking figures are given, though only regarding a few items, showing the rise in growing costs over a period of twenty years at Canada's largest flower growing establishment. The Editor of The Review will be pleased to receive statements of other growers' costs, to be published with or without the name of the sender, as he likes.

How Roses Rose.

On the other hand, let us make a comparison of flower prices during the same period. In 1900 Bride and Maid, which were the standard roses of that day, were selling in October at $6 and $3 per hundred and carnations at $1.50 per hundred.

In 1910 roses were selling at $8, $4 and $2 per hundred; carnations, $4, $3 and $1.50 per hundred; violets, $1 per hundred; asparagus, $1 per bunch, and smilax, 25 cents per string.

In 1920 roses such as Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Premier at the same period were bringing $20, $15, $10 and $6 for the different qualities respectively, while Richmond and Ophelia were bringing $15, $12, $8 and $5 for the different grades. Carnations were selling at $7, $6 and $4; violets at 75 cents per hundred; asparagus, $1.50 per bunch, and smilax, 35 cents per string.

Comparing Figures.

A comparison of these rates will show that rose prices had increased about one-third from 1900 to 1910 and from 1910 to 1920 an average of 200 per cent. You will also notice that during this period the varieties of roses grown have been greatly improved. For instance, Columbia, Premier, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia are much more select in quality than the Killarneys which formed the bulk of the stock being grown in 1910.

Dealing with carnations, you will note that there was an increase from 1900 to 1910 of about 250 per cent, whereas from 1910 to 1920 the increase showed only about 100 per cent. In my opinion, carnations have never brought a really paying price until the last couple of years, which is proved by the fact that many growers who were extensively engaged in their production several years ago have given them up entirely. Surely a No. 1 carnation should bring as much as a No. 3 quality rose.

Violets were being sold in October, 1920, at a slightly lower price than in October, 1910, and this is one line that has shown little increase in price.

Asparagus and smilax you will notice show only about a fifty per cent increase during the ten years from 1910 to 1920.

Close Margin on Flowers.

After careful comparison you will note that the cost of production on the basis of wages and coal actually showed a much greater increase than the wholesale selling price of the flowers, but this has been offset to some extent by the introduction of machinery and improved methods of handling soil, etc., and in our case a greatly improved system of heating which we completed last autumn. In this department alone during February and March we showed a saving of $250 per week in wages.

I can assure you that the production of flowers on a big scale is an exceedingly intricate business. It has been impossible in the short time at my disposal to go into details with any minuteness, but I hope the information given may be valuable to the retail trade in refuting any unfair criticism on the part of their customers, the public at large or the press as regards prices. I doubt if there is any class of goods produced on a closer margin of profit than flowers.

CYCLAMENS GROWN TOO HOT?

Commenting on the trouble American growers have with diseased cyclamen plants, a German grower of this plant remarks:

"I think your growers sometimes grow them too hot. About ten or twenty years ago we had the same trouble, as we grew the plants in hotbeds. Now we grow them in beds packed with leaves only and give as much air as possible according to the weather conditions, and no diseased plants are to be found. Sometimes they may be overfed and the leaves cannot assimilate as much food as the roots are offering. This causes an overpressure in the bulbs and makes them rot."

LIVE WIRES

THE MEETING AT DETROIT.

F. T. D. Directors Are Enthusiastic.

The annual mid-year meeting of the directors of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association was held at the Statler hotel in Detroit April 12 and 13. Two days of continuous discussion resulted, there being the following present:

Philip Breitmeyer, president, Detroit.
H. G. Dilleuth, vice-president, Toronto.
Albert Poehelon, secretary, Detroit.
Wm. F. Gude, director, Washington.
Irwin Bertermann, director, Indianapolis.
A. F. Borden, director, Los Angeles.
W. J. Palmer, director, Buffalo.
C. H. Grakelow, director, Philadelphia.
W. J. Smyth, director, Chicago.
Karl P. Baum, director, Knoxville.
W. W. Gammage, director, London, Ont.
H. P. Knoble, director, Cleveland.
Edward Seery, director, Paterson, N. J.
Max Schling, director, New York.
George M. Geraghty, representing the Retailers' Association of the next convention city, Toronto.

The only absentee was Treasurer W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, who had business which detained him.

Everybody Optimistic.

When members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association get together the discussion which ensues is so broad in character that it is impossible to distinguish between that which concerns the welfare of the flower business in general and that which pertains to the affairs of the organization in particular—there are those who believe the two are so closely related as to make it unnecessary to consider which is which. There was general satisfaction with the way the retail florists have come through a winter of widespread depression in general business and a spirit of decided optimism prevailed. The Easter business exceeded the expectations of most retailers, it was reported, although it was a common experience that the higher-priced stock was slowest to sell and considerable of it was left on hand.

There was considerable discussion of the relationship of the various branches of the trade and at one time an experience meeting was in progress, tending to show that growers and wholesalers are not the only ones who have troubles. It was the consensus that efforts should be made to relieve the retailers of some of the handicaps, said now to be imposed on them.

Finance and Membership.

Although Treasurer Rock could not be present, he sent one of his precise reports, showing the association's income from dues to have been considerably more than was needed for the routine affairs of the organization, leaving a handsome balance for use in development work. It was decided that the example of the S. A. F. should be followed in the matter of safeguarding expenditures and action was taken creating a permanent committee on finance. H. P. Knoble, W. J. Smyth and Karl P. Baum being named to act until next year. All expenditures are to be subject to their scrutiny.

The report of Secretary Poehelon showed the membership to be at high-water mark and rising steadily. It was decided to reëgag L. F. Darnell to travel in the interest of the organization.

The October Convention.

Plans were laid for the annual convention, to be held next October at Toronto. Vice-president Dilleuth and George M. Geraghty showed that Toronto florists are looking forward with much pleasure to this opportunity to entertain visitors from the States and it was decided to have a 3-day convention for the first time in the history of the association, the first two days to be devoted to uninterrupted business and the third day to rest, recreation and sight-seeing.

W. W. Gammage, of London, reported that many of the members are expected to drive through London to Toronto and that plans for entertainment at London are being made.

After two days had been spent in practically continuous session, the evening of the second day was devoted to a dinner given the visitors by the Detroit florists. The affair was at the Hotel

Statler and constituted a finale of more than average enjoyment.

MILDEW ON MUSTARD.

I am sending you some mustard grown in our greenhouses. There is a white substance on the under side of the leaves. I should like to know what it is. I am also sending some soil for examination. I have grown radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers and lettuce in the greenhouses for the last two years and have used nothing but well rotted cow manure for fertilizer. Is this soil good for those crops? M. C. M.—Okla.

The white substance on the leaves is undoubtedly mildew. It usually comes when plants are exposed to cold drafts. To avoid it, ventilate carefully, opening the ventilators just a little at a time. The soil seems heavy and probably a change from cow manure to well decayed horse manure would gradually lighten and improve it. It would be still further improved by rotating crops, digging the soil in the beds deeply and giving it, if necessary, a steam sterilization to get rid of the pests, weed seeds and fungoid affections before planting the fall crops. C. W.

Ashland, Pa.—John G. Shoup has purchased the business of August Mandler and has already started to take over his new store.

Chelsea, Okla.—W. W. Tranah, of the Tranah Art Studio, operates a flower department in connection with his studio.

Decatur, Ill.—Mrs. C. H. Laughlin has purchased the store of A. C. Brown, which is located at 141 Merchant street.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Jacob Gerwig, one of the well known employees of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has left the flower business to venture into the newspaper field.

Reading, Pa.—A store was recently opened here by Philip A. Weiler. It is located at 941A Penn street and will be known as Weiler's Flower Shop. Mr. Weiler has for some time conducted greenhouses at Wyomissing, where he grows all his flowers.

Columbus, Miss.—H. M. Owen, of T. G. Owen & Son, reports a splendid demand for young stock of chrysanthemums. Two or three insertions of a Classified ad in The Review brought so many orders they became heavily oversold on some varieties.

Mexico, Mo.—C. C. Wonneman recently took his two sons, Loyal C. and Forrest A., into partnership in the firm of C. C. Wonneman & Sons. The father, while not actually retiring from the business, is going to take life more easily than in the past. Extensive changes and improvements are contemplated. A new delivery truck was on hand in time for the Easter rush. The two younger Wonnemans were recently married.

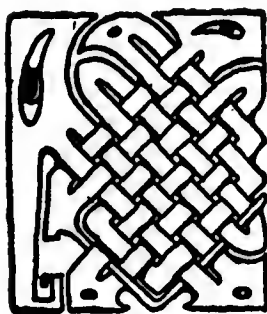

Augusta, Ga.—The rubber plant is coming back. Stulb's Nursery, which specialized on this plant before the war, is working up stock again.

St. Paul, Minn.—D. W. C. Ruff, who has spent the winter at Stuart, Fla., has returned to Buena Vista Gardens, at Bald Eagle Lake, and is daily at his office in the Globe building.

Beresford, Fla.—The Ridgewood Ferneries are enlarging their houses. When the addition is completed they will have 12,000 feet of half shade. C. K. Rohde, the manager, says that asparagus greens will be grown exclusively.

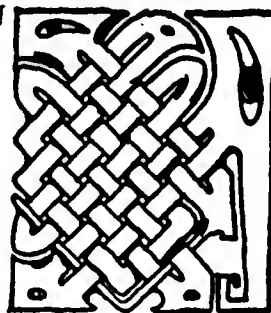

Sedalia, Mo.—The Archias Floral Co. had a large wedding decoration last week in which were used 800 Easter lilies, together with roses and decorative plants. L. H. Archias states that business is good, both in cut flower and plant trade.

Cincinnati, O.—Herman Schlaechter, of St. Bernard, is carrying a cane at present. Sunday, April 10, he and his wife were attempting to cross the street, just as an automobile came down the street at a fast pace. As the machine neared the corner it swerved to go around another machine. It turned toward Mr. Schlaechter and struck him, hurling him against his wife and knocking her down. Mrs. Schlaechter was slightly hurt and Mr. Schlaechter was taken to a hospital, where it was found he had sustained severe cuts and bruises about the head and body.

THE RETAIL STORE

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

CHANGING STYLES.

Times were, years ago, when "Sunday, go-to-meetin'" clothes consisted of black silk for the lady of the house and a stiff white "biled" shirt for the man. No one thought of wearing colors "for best." Black and white remain the color scheme, or lack of it, for the male when he is all dressed up, for in clothes man is less adventurous than woman. But black is a rare note in woman's dress today. Why? The only answer is, the styles have changed.

Times were, years ago, when the retailer clamored for all the white carnations, all the white roses the grower could produce. Recent weeks have seen the white carnation the greatest glut on several markets. White roses are a slight fraction of the vast number of pink blooms sold. Red is a color more requested than furnished. Not only in roses and carnations, but in other flowers as well, the demand is for colors, not for white. The ladies must have bright tints in their flowers as well as in the wearing apparel and millinery. Styles, for our line, too, have changed.

Today the milliners and dressmakers point the way to the public, not the public to the milliners and dressmakers. And business is built by changing styles. Slower mutation takes place in our line, because the public demand leads us, instead of our leading the public. We should be alert to keep abreast of the styles, at least, and some day we may be the creators of them in flowers, too.

KEEPING THE CUSTOMERS.

In the retail flower store, above all others, service is the most important factor in securing and, conspicuously, in holding customers. The flower buyer does not "shop" to find where are the best blooms for the least money. The stock does not vary so that one shop may become noted for one specialty above another, as in millinery, books or rugs. The buyer does not ask, "Are these the freshest you have?" as in the butcher's or grocer's shop. No, the buyer returns to a certain florist because he or she finds there service of a high standard. The buyer takes it for granted, as a rule, that the same sort of flowers at the same general prices are to be had at another store. For that reason it is essential that the florist maintain the most painstaking watch on the quality of service in his store.

It has been demonstrated many times in retail storekeeping that quality and price are not the most important factors in keeping trade. High prices and even a lapse in standard of quality will not drive away customers so rapidly as will the indifference of salespeople in a store. Discourtesy, carelessness, needless and senseless errors, indifference and insolence on the part of salespeople are responsible for more lost customers in retail stores than all other reasons put together. This is a lamentable and avoidable matter. It costs no more to be courteous, considerate, careful and accurate than it does to be otherwise. And even if it did, the difference would be many times made up by the customers kept.

Big business houses realize that an account on their books is worth much more than many "prospects," simply because the initial cost of getting the account there is so large. For that reason they take particular care to see that an account is kept on the books. If customers drop off, letters of inquiry are sent to ascertain the reason for discontinuance and every effort is made to repair any error or slight that produced dissatisfaction. Experience and cold figures have shown that the cost of keeping an old customer in this way was far less than the cost of getting a new one. Usually the grievance is trifling and reparation is a simple matter.

While the retail florist plugs away in the effort to get new customers through advertising, he should constantly maintain the standard of service that will keep the patrons he already has.

SHOWING THE PUBLIC HOW.

One of the most interesting displays at the Boston show, reported at length in last week's issue of The Review, was that composed of vases and dishes filled with flowers as they might be in the home. This was staged by Penn the Florist, of Boston, for the better instruction of visitors to the show in the art of making the most in appearance of flowers in the home. As may be seen in the accompanying illustration, the effects produced were exceedingly artistic. The exhibit was much commented upon and elicited much praise for the firm which made it. It was considered so meritorious by the show management that Penn the Florist received a silver medal for it.

PITTSBURGH WEDDING.

The firm of Mrs. E. A. Williams, Inc., Pittsburgh, had one of the largest and most beautiful church weddings of the season last week at the First Presbyterian church. The entire pulpit was banked with graceful eibotium ferns and massed clusters of pink hydrangeas, lilac, orchids and tinted bougainvilleas. On each side of the pulpit there were two large urns of lavender lilac and pink roses. The decorations extended across the entire front in wave lines under the balcony. The high Gothic columns of the arch were draped with southern smilax and branches of bougainvillea. Masses of eibotium ferns banked the walls of each end of the balconies, with large groups of eibotium ferns overhanging the corners of the organ loft. Stately groups of palms and bamboos were stationed in the corners at the rear of the church and light pink ribbon marked reserved pews and closed the aisles. The bride carried a bouquet of white lilac centered with pale pink roses, showered with lilies of the valley

LIVE WIRES

THE MEETING AT DETROIT.

F. T. D. Directors Are Enthusiastic.

The annual mid-year meeting of the directors of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association was held at the Statler hotel in Detroit April 12 and 13. Two days of continuous discussion resulted, there being the following present:

Philip Brentmeyer, president, Detroit.
H. G. Dillennuth, vice president, Toronto.
Albert Pochelon, secretary, Detroit.
Wm. F. Gude, director, Washington.
Irwin Bertermann, director, Indianapolis.
A. F. Borden, director, Los Angeles.
W. J. Palmer, director, Buffalo.
C. H. Grakelow, director, Philadelphia.
W. J. Smyth, director, Chicago.
Karl P. Baum, director, Knoxville.
W. W. Gammage, director, London, Ont.
H. P. Knoble, director, Cleveland.
Edward Seecy, director, Paterson, N. J.
Max Schling, director, New York.
George M. Geraghty, representing the Retail Florists' Association of the next convention city Toronto.

The only absentee was Treasurer W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, who had business which detained him.

Everybody Optimistic.

When members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association get together the discussion which ensues is so broad in character that it is impossible to distinguish between that which concerns the welfare of the flower business in general and that which pertains to the affairs of the organization in particular. There are those who believe the two are so closely related as to make it unnecessary to consider which is which. There was general satisfaction with the way the retail florists have come through a winter of wide-spread depression in general business and a spirit of decided optimism prevailed. The Easter business exceeded the expectations of most retailers, it was reported, although it was a common experience that the higher priced stock was slowest to sell and considerable of it was left on hand.

There was considerable discussion of the relationship of the various branches of the trade and at one time an experience meeting was in progress, tending to show that growers and wholesalers are not the only ones who have troubles. It was the consensus that efforts should be made to relieve the retailers of some of the handicaps, said now to be imposed on them.

Finance and Membership.

Although Treasurer Rock could not be present, he sent one of his precise reports, showing the association's income from dues to have been considerably more than was needed for the routine affairs of the organization, leaving a handsome balance for use in development work. It was decided that the example of the S. A. F. should be followed in the matter of safeguarding expenditures and action was taken creating a permanent committee on finance, H. P. Knoble, W. J. Smyth and Karl P. Baum being named to act until next year. All expenditures are to be subject to their scrutiny.

The report of Secretary Pochelon showed the membership to be at high water mark and rising steadily. It was decided to reëgag L. F. Darnell to travel in the interest of the organization.

The October Convention.

Plans were laid for the annual convention, to be held next October at Toronto. Vice president Dillennuth and George M. Geraghty showed that Toronto florists are looking forward with much pleasure to this opportunity to entertain visitors from the States and it was decided to have a 3 day convention for the first time in the history of the association, the first two days to be devoted to uninterrupted business and the third day to rest, recreation and sight seeing.

W. W. Gammage, of London, reported that many of the members are expected to drive through London to Toronto and that plans for entertainment at London are being made.

After two days had been spent in practically continuous session, the evening of the second day was devoted to a dinner given the visitors by the Detroit florists. The affair was at the Hotel

Statler and constituted a finale of more than average enjoyment.

MILDEW ON MUSTARD.

I am sending you some mustard grown in our greenhouses. There is a white substance on the under side of the leaves. I should like to know what it is. I am also sending some soil for examination. I have grown radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers and lettuce in the greenhouses for the last two years and have used nothing but well rotted cow manure for fertilizer. Is this soil good for those crops? M. C. M.—Okla.

The white substance on the leaves is undoubtedly mildew. It usually comes when plants are exposed to cold drafts. To avoid it, ventilate carefully, opening the ventilators just a little at a time. The soil seems heavy and probably a change from cow manure to well decayed horse manure would gradually lighten and improve it. It would be still further improved by rotating crops, digging the soil in the beds deeply and giving it, if necessary, a steam sterilization to get rid of the pests, weed seeds and fungoid affections before planting the fall crops. Ashland, Pa.—John G. Shoup has purchased the business of August Mandler and has already started to take over his new store.

Newsy Items from All Over

Chelsea, Okla.—W. W. Tranah, of the Tranah Art Studio, operates a flower department in connection with his studio.

Decatur, Ill.—Mrs. C. H. Laughlin has purchased the store of A. C. Brown, which is located at 111 Merchant street.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Jacob Gerwig, one of the well known employees of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has left the flower business to venture into the newspaper field.

Reading, Pa.—A store was recently opened here by Philip A. Weiler. It is located at 911A Penn street and will be known as Weiler's Flower Shop. Mr. Weiler has for some time conducted greenhouses at Wyomissing, where he grows all his flowers.

Columbus, Miss.—H. M. Owen, of T. G. Owen & Son, reports a splendid demand for young stock of chrysanthemums. Two or three insertions of a Classified ad in The Review brought so many orders they became heavily oversold on some varieties.

Mexico, Mo.—C. C. Wonneman recently took his two sons, Loyal C. and Forrest A., into partnership in the firm of C. C. Wonneman & Sons. The father, while not actually retiring from the business, is going to take life more easily than in the past. Extensive changes and improvements are contemplated. A new delivery truck was on hand in time for the Easter rush. The two younger Wonnemans were recently married.

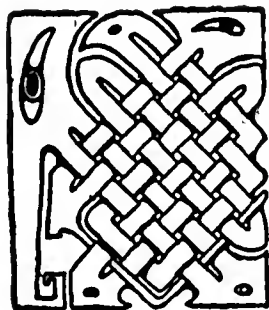

Augusta, Ga.—The rubber plant is coming back. Stulb's Nursery, which specialized on this plant before the war, is working up stock again.

St. Paul, Minn.—D. W. C. Ruff, who has spent the winter at Stuart, Fla., has returned to Buena Vista Gardens, at Bald Eagle Lake, and is daily at his office in the Globe building.

Beresford, Fla.—The Ridgewood Ferneries are enlarging their houses. When the addition is completed they will have 12,000 feet of half shade. C. K. Rohde, the manager, says that asparagus greens will be grown exclusively.

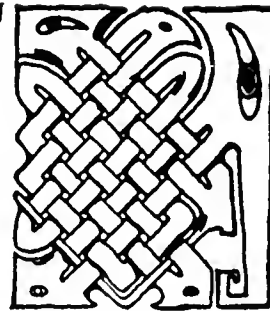

Sedalia, Mo.—The Archias Floral Co. had a large wedding decoration last week in which were used 800 Easter lilies, together with roses and decorative plants. L. H. Archias states that business is good, both in cut flower and plant trade.

Cincinnati, O.—Herman Schlachter, of St. Bernard, is carrying a cane at present. Sunday, April 10, he and his wife were attempting to cross the street, just as an automobile came down the street at a fast pace. As the machine neared the corner it swerved to go around another machine. It turned toward Mr. Schlachter and struck him, hurling him against his wife and knocking her down. Mrs. Schlachter was slightly hurt and Mr. Schlachter was taken to a hospital, where it was found he had sustained severe cuts and bruises about the head and body.

CHANGING STYLES.

Times were, years ago, when "Sunday, go-to-meetin'" clothes consisted of black silk for the lady of the house and a stiff white "biled" shirt for the man. No one thought of wearing colors "for best." Black and white remain the color scheme, or lack of it, for the male when he is all dressed up, for in clothes man is less adventurous than woman. But black is a rare note in woman's dress today. Why? The only answer is, the styles have changed.

Times were, years ago, when the retailer clamored for all the white carnations, all the white roses the grower could produce. Recent weeks have seen the white carnation the greatest glut on several markets. White roses are a slight fraction of the vast number of pink blooms sold. Red is a color more requested than furnished. Not only in roses and carnations, but in other flowers as well, the demand is for colors, not for white. The ladies must have bright tints in their flowers as well as in the wearing apparel and millinery. Styles, for our line, too, have changed.

Today the milliners and dressmakers point the way to the public, not the public to the milliners and dressmakers. And business is built by changing styles. Slower mutation takes place in our line, because the public demand leads us, instead of our leading the public. We should be alert to keep abreast of the styles, at least, and some day we may be the creators of them in flowers, too.

KEEPING THE CUSTOMERS.

In the retail flower store, above all others, service is the most important factor in securing and, conspicuously, in holding customers. The flower buyer does not "shop" to find where are the best blooms for the least money. The stock does not vary so that one shop may become noted for one specialty above another, as in millinery, books or rugs. The buyer does not ask, "Are these the freshest you have?" as in the butcher's or grocer's shop. No, the buyer returns to a certain florist because he or she finds there service of a high standard. The buyer takes it for granted, as a rule, that the same sort of flowers at the same general prices are to be had at another store. For that reason it is essential that the florist maintain the most painstaking watch on the quality of service in his store.

It has been demonstrated many times in retail storekeeping that quality and price are not the most important factors in keeping trade. High prices and even a lapse in standard of quality will not drive away customers so rapidly as will the indifference of salespeople in a store. Discourtesy, carelessness, needlessness and senseless errors, indifference and insolence on the part of salespeople are responsible for more lost customers in retail stores than all other reasons put together. This is a lamentable and avoidable matter. It costs no more to be courteous, considerate, careful and accurate than it does to be otherwise. And even if it did, the difference would be many times made up by the customers kept.

Big business houses realize that an account on their books is worth much more than many "prospects," simply because the initial cost of getting the account there is so large. For that reason they take particular care to see that an account is kept on the books. If customers drop off, letters of inquiry are sent to ascertain the reason for discontinuance and every effort is made to repair any error or slight that produced dissatisfaction. Experience and cold figures have shown that the cost of keeping an old customer in this way was far less than the cost of getting a new one. and tied with white lace and ribbon. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of French blue hydrangeas and white lilac, tied with blue and orchid-tinted chiffon. The matron of honor carried peachblow sweet peas and Ophelia roses tied with chiffon and blue ribbon and the maid of honor carried a bouquet of pink and lavender-blue sweet peas tied with blue and pink chiffon. A reception in the home followed the ceremony. The window boxes were filled with pink and blue hydrangeas, with side groups of bamboos, and the boxes in the side windows were filled with pink hydrangeas. On each side of the fireplace were stationed two tall, slender silver vases filled with pink roses.

H. J. H.

growers claim it does not bloom well in winter.

Francis Scott Key is a wonderfully fine warm-weather rose, in a class by itself. It has large, fine flowers on good stems, but goes absolutely to sleep during the wintertime and a great many growers, on that account, feel it is unprofitable. I am sorry not to see it grown more extensively. In the fall some wonderful flowers are produced.

Call a Yellow.

Mrs. George Shawyer is now little grown and, apparently, will soon be a rose of the past, although it has many good points.

My Maryland is still favored by a number of growers and is grown successfully by those who go into it wholeheartedly and use it as a bread-and-butter rose the year around. It has its place.

Richmond is grown by few and more for a Christmas crop than anything else.

Sunburst I am sorry to see almost out of the market. A new yellow rose is needed badly, for we today do not have a good yellow variety that is grown extensively. Neither Ophelia nor Butterfly fills the place of a yellow. Let us hope that some of our enthusiasts in rose breeding will come along with a good commercial yellow rose; something on the Sunburst color and shape of bud, with Pilgrim stem.

It is regrettable to notice the tendency to drop Ophelia. It is a splendid rose, and one that I should be sorry to see the growers discard. Some say Butterfly will replace it, but it seems to me there is room for both roses. Butterfly is so distinct from Ophelia that they could be sold by any up-to-date retail store without one interfering with the other.

Mrs. Aaron Ward also seems to be passing. It was a great favorite—a beautiful little rose, which probably made as much of a sensation when it was first put on the market as any rose we have ever had.

The Lone White Rose.

The only good, first-class white rose that we have available today, commercially, is Double White Killarney. It is still holding its own, although Angelus may supersede it. I do not know much of Angelus, only having seen it in an exhibition way, when it certainly impressed all present. The old few-petaled white is not nearly so satisfactory from a dealer's standpoint as are the double roses.

Kaiserin Augusta Victoria is still a wonderfully good summer rose, but, unfortunately, the growers have almost entirely dropped it, claiming that it was not profitable, by reason of its season being too short.

Jonkheer J. L. Mock is another rose that is passing. It is not a winter rose and bruises easily. Mainly on that account, the growers have dropped it. It is an excellent grower and good keeper, barring its bruising habits.

Among the little, or debutante, roses, Cecile Brunner and Old Gold still hold their own. A number of other small roses have been tried, but, after the first year or two, are discarded, and I believe few, outside of these two, are grown successfully.

Last, but not the least, we come to American Beauty, which has been on [Concluded on page 29.]

COMMERCIAL ROSES.

As the Wholesaler Sees Them.

As a commercial flower, the rose stands head and shoulders above every other flower grown today and, so far as one can see now, there is nothing in sight to supplant it. In the commercial roses we can go back probably fifty or sixty years, when there were only a few varieties, with a new sort added now and then. Interest has steadily increased until today we have more than one rose enthusiast devoting all his energies to giving the rose world something better each year.

Killarney, a European introduction of several years ago, was so much easier to grow and bloomed so much more freely that, before the growers realized it, they were overdoing it. A store man would buy mostly Killarney, pink and some white, as there was little else to buy. Some markets, of course, had more variety than others. One year in particular the Philadelphia market was especially overworked with Killarneys.

This is a situation that the growers today need to guard against with Columbia and Premier. If a customer comes into a retail store and finds just two or three varieties of roses, there is certainly not the encouragement to purchase that would exist if there were a large variety to choose from.

Who's Who in Roses.

Both Columbia and Premier are fine roses—there's no question about it—wonderful flowers, with fine foliage, good growers; roses that give splendid satisfaction. Columbia, for the year around, is probably the better of the two, but Premier, during the midwinter months, forges ahead with its wonderful foliage and large, well shaped buds.

We have Pilgrim, which, when it first came on the market last summer, was not received with quite the favor that was hoped. However, as the season progressed and the weather became cooler, it became more of a favorite, until it is now one of our best roses. I believe it is a splendid rose for about nine months of the year, but not a particularly good hot-weather rose, although the growers may be able to grow it during the hotter parts of the year so that it will do better. It is a good keeper, holds its head up, and has an attractive color. The 2-tone color gives it a class by itself.

American Legion, which is to be called Legion because of an objection by the organization of that name, is coming out this year and seems like an attractive rose; but every new rose has to be tried out before it can be determined whether it will be a success. I like it personally, but whether, from a grower's standpoint, it will equal or be better than our present roses will have to be determined.

Varieties: Going and Coming.

Dunlop, here in the east, has not proved the success that was hoped. It seems to be better in warm than in cold weather.

It was thought Crusader would supersede Hadley, but it has neither the color nor the holding qualities of Hadley, although it is a larger rose and, I understand, is a better and easier grower. It will turn dark after it is cut a day or two, which is enough to condemn it among retailers. It may be that this could be improved upon by the grower, as some roses have been in the past. Meteor, for instance, was found to be a success in a warmer temperature.

Hoosier Beauty is still grown by some, but not nearly so much as in the past. Some growers call it a money-maker.

Milady is and has been grown more extensively in the west than in the east. While it is not a recent introduction, some of the eastern growers are taking it up again, and it looks as if it were coming back. From the standpoint of a producer, there is nothing in the red rose line to touch it.

Russell is still a favorite, and I see no decrease in the plantings of those who do it well; in fact, most of the successful Russell growers in the east are increasing, rather than decreasing. This, for an all-year-round rose, is the best in its class today, although most

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Washington Convention.

The mailing of prints of the floor plan of the convention hall in Washington has just been completed. The plan covers the whole of the second floor of the building, which is most admirably adapted for the trade exhibition. As will be seen on reference to the plan, there is not a column, pillar or other obstruction on the floor to interfere with the arrangement of the exhibits. Applications already received for space would seem to indicate that the trade displays will be even larger than those at the Cleveland convention, at which all records were broken.

The space rental remains the same as in previous years, 60 cents per square foot. The cost of the official sign, including the rental of an upright, or stand, is $3. Rule XXV of the rules relating to the management of the trade exhibition, reading, "The selling of goods by persons or firms not having engaged space will be prohibited, unless such person or firm shall have secured a permit or license from the secretary, the same to cost not less than $35," will be strictly enforced, so that none other than exhibitors will be permitted to transact business on the floor until the license or permit mentioned has been obtained from the secretary.

Orders for signs should be sent to the secretary with the application for reservation of space. The rules require that twenty-five per cent of the total amount payable for space shall be paid upon the signing of the contract and the balance before the exhibitor takes possession.

Additional copies of the floor plan may be had upon application to the secretary.

Membership cards will shortly be issued to all members in good standing, and such members will be required to present their cards at the entrance to the hall. The work of the secretary's office will be greatly facilitated if members who have not paid their dues will make remittance now. It might be again mentioned that, at the annual meeting of the executive board held in Washington last January, a resolution was passed authorizing the dropping of the name of any member from the membership roll for nonpayment of dues after one year.

The Membership Drive.

The drive for increased membership, directed and supported by the executive board, is about to commence. Complying with the board's resolution, President Roland has appointed the following committee to take charge of the drive: J. F. Ammann, chairman, Edwardsville, Ill.; Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., and Paul Klingsporn, Chicago.

It will be the purpose and object of this committee to double the membership in the society before the date of the coming convention, and they will commence a vigorous campaign about May 15. Many novel plans and features to bring the desired results have been in process of working out. The different florists' clubs of the country have been called upon to cooperate, and they will appoint local committees to assist in the drive.

The drive slogan is, "Every member get a member," and if this idea materializes, the society's present membership certainly ought to be doubled. The membership roll now contains about 3,500 names, and it is the earnest wish of the officers and directors to see this number increased to 7,000, which is but a nominal number when it is considered that there are upward of 20,000 florists in the country. Our society bears the brunt of battle against all movements detrimental to the interests it represents, and, accordingly, must have strength of support to back it up.

The following have each guaranteed to secure the number of members stated with their names: Thomas Roland, Boston, 10; John Young, New York, 10; J. J. Hess, Omaha, 10; Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., 10; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, 10; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, 11; Paul R. Klingsporn, Chicago, 10; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., 10; Henry Penn, Boston, 10; George Asmus, Chicago, 10; A. Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind., 10; W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., 10; Robert L. Graham, Jr., Baltimore, 10; I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y., 10; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., 10; Frank H. Traendly, New York, 10; Thos. H. Joy, Nashville, Tenn., 10; Alfred M. Campbell, Philadelphia, 10; W. H. Englehart, Memphis, Tenn., 10; W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C., 10; A. Gude, Washington, D. C., 10; Joseph Kohout, Libertyville, Ill., 12; Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., 10; John Canning, Ardsley, N. Y., 5 life.

National Publicity Campaign.

The secretary has been instructed to send out another appeal to guarantors who are delinquent in the payment of sums guaranteed to the campaign fund. The publicity committee is anxious to resume the national advertising at the earliest possible date and is greatly handicapped in making contracts when there are insufficient funds in hand to cover obligations.

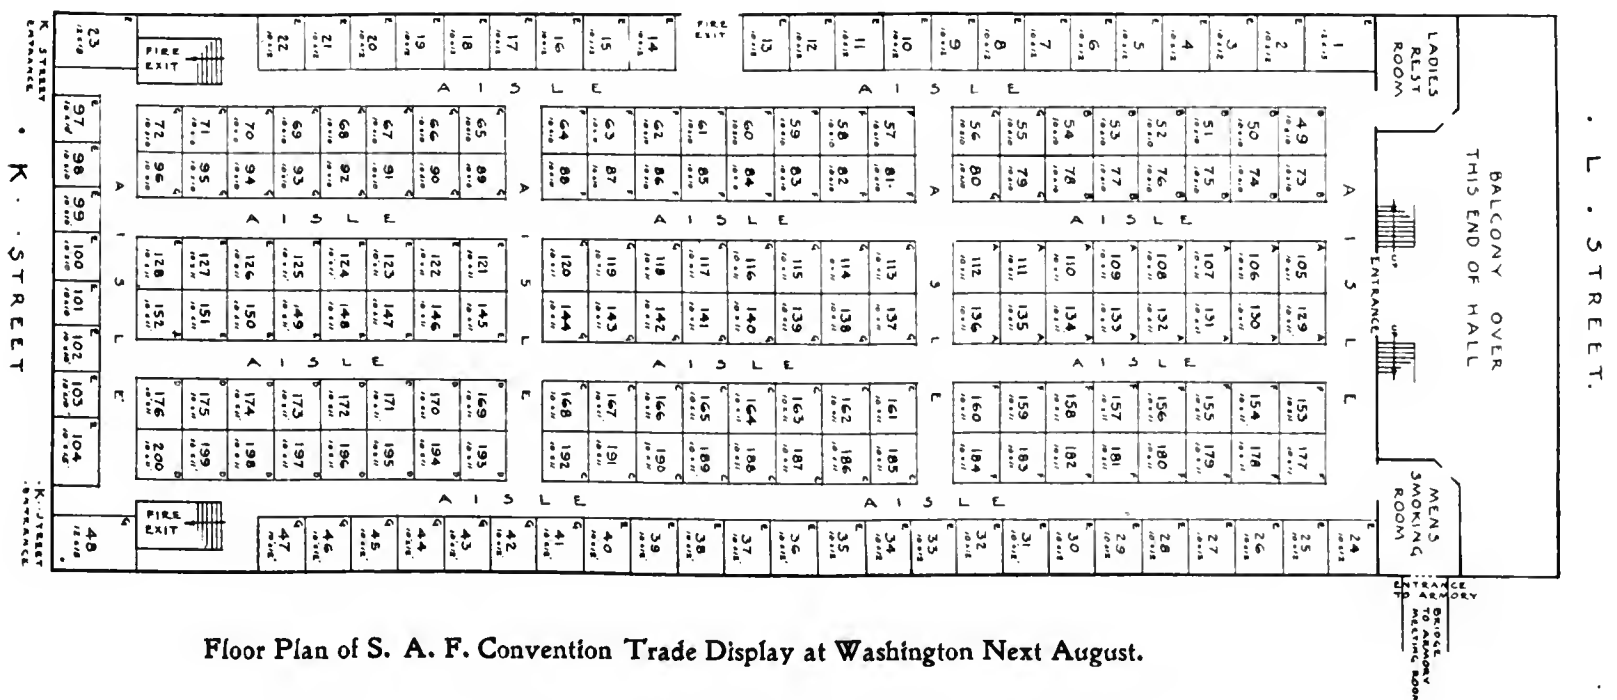

Department of Plant Registration

Public notice is hereby given that Henry J. Doll, Wankuck Greenhouses, Providence, R. I., submits for registration the new plant here mentioned:

Geranium Mrs. Hattie A. Doll: Seedling, parentage unknown; plant a strong grower, and free and early bloomer; zone in leaf very distinct; height, eighteen inches; color, glowing scarlet; flowers single, thirty to thirty-five to a large cluster; single florets two inches in diameter, with five large petals.

tration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from date of April 20. John Young, Sec'y.

FLOOR PLAN FOR CONVENTION.

Complying with the many requests that have been received, Secretary Young has sent out earlier than usual the floor plan of the convention hall, Washington, D. C., where the thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Society of American Florists will be held August 16 to 18.

"Applications for space now on file indicate that the trade exhibition in connection with this convention will be even better than last year, when all records were broken," says Mr. Young. "We know that there will be a record-breaking attendance of florists from all sections of the country, as so many have expressed their intention of taking this opportunity of visiting the national capital."

The cost of space rental is 60 cents per square foot. The selling of goods by persons or firms not having engaged space will be prohibited, unless such person or firm shall have secured a permit or license from the secretary, the same to cost $35. The official sign, including rental of upright or standard, will cost $3. Inquiries or reservations should be addressed to Secretary John Young, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York.

The Washington advisory committee in regard to the trade display is composed of Adolph Gude, Z. D. Blackstone and David Grillbortzer.

The accompanying reproduction of the floor plan indicates the arrangement of exhibits, the classes being located according to the following letters:

- A—Plants.
- B—Cut blooms.
- C—Bollers and heating apparatus.
- D—Greenhouse structures.
- E—Florists' supplies.
- F—Bulbs, seeds and garden requisites.
- G—Miscellaneous.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"A big success," commented W. J. Palmer, of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y., referring to the executive meeting of the F. T. D. at Toronto, from which he had just returned charged with electricity, so to speak, from contact with fellow live wires who jointly transacted a tremendous amount of business, which cannot help but benefit the profession at large. Mr. Palmer was grading the morning cut of roses in the Lancaster place and remarked to Superintendent Barney Myers about the fine quality of flowers which were seen at Brampton and Toronto. It was rumored there that Mme. Butterfly will supersede Ophelia and at the same time the opinion was expressed that as long as Ophelia continues to do so well with them they will continue to grow it. In fact, one house is now being planted to it. "We have no surplus," observed Mr. Myers, "for just as soon as a crop is off and the room is needed for something else, out go the plants." When commenting upon the general outlook, optimism was uppermost. Mr. Myers incidentally mentioned that his venture at Dansville, N. Y., which was in charge of his son, Leo A. Myers, has cleared expenses the first year and has every prospect of joining in the generally expected continuing prosperity.

S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, is ever on the alert for choice things for the holidays. He had a grand stock of Bougainvillea Sanderiana in various shapes. These vied with lilies in popularity. Manager A. Adams maintains his reputation as a business booster.

Louis Neubeck, Buffalo, has the florists' slogan displayed more prominently than any other florist in the Bison city. A fine electric sign over the show house and office, with the regulation signboard close by, almost touches elbows with the passers-by. Undoubtedly it has assisted in building up his business.

The store window of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, had a centerpiece consisting of a vase filled with Ophelia roses and larkspur. It was the acme of simplicity and beauty.

Valentine Gatz, Albion, N. Y., is renovating his houses. He has had a good season thus far. Mothers' day will not greatly affect the demand, but Memorial day is always good and he has a nice stock prepared.

W. & T. Smith Co., Geneva, N. Y., is enjoying a wonderful season in all lines of nursery stock, as expressed in the language of the truckman, who, cranking his machine, ejaculated, "Aw! Golly! Now is the time to dig and we are all doing our share."

Thomas Hick, of T. Hick & Son, Auburn, N. Y., was plunging geraniums in the greenhouse and remarked that, though he was entering his eighty-fifth summer, he is just as eager and certainly is as nimble as he was when the writer first met him, about thirty years ago. This caused the younger Hick to express the hope that we might all round out the century and that it would be in the florists' business. "What is there more enjoyable and profitable?" added he. "Looked at in the right light, it is a continuous floral procession."

"What surprises me," observed Robert H. Bard, of Syracuse, N. Y., "is that, even in this day of enlightened floriculture, some growers persist in pickling stock preparatory to the periods when we look for the best results. No, it is not the weather, for my experience as a grower convinces me that it is not that. When one sees the rose petals spotted as if with the palsy, it is the result of confinement in a dark place." There was a faint twinkle in the eye of our confrere as he denied the imputation of being guilty of doing such a thing when he was a grower and the shoe was on the other foot. There has been fine business right along and, aside from the pickled stock which brought down invectives upon the heads of the growers, everything is serene with Mr. Bard, who paid a tribute to the Pink Section of The Review by observing that its value has been practically demonstrated.

Schwerdt & Berner, Forks, N. Y., cater to the Buffalo market, chiefly through the W. F. Kasting Co. Among their offerings are thousands of Pelargonium Easter Greeting, Lucy Becker and their offspring in four or five shades, calceolarias in both the hybrid kinds grown from seed and the shrubby form from cuttings. It has been suggested that the cloudy atmosphere prevalent here during the growing season is in a great part responsible for the splendid conditions. Certain it is that finer-grown stock would be hard to find, either here or in Europe.

W. E. Day, of Syracuse, N. Y., expressed entire satisfaction with the season's business. As he is located in the town's leading hotel, there is something doing continually and, with an unlimited supply, it is comparatively an easy matter to fill the largest contract.

Gustave Bartholme, Syracuse, N. Y., one of the pioneers in the trade, who has a splendid cemetery business, expects a spring demand fully equal to that of previous years and is preparing to meet it.

M. B. Kay, Syracuse, is the son of Peter Kay, formerly superintendent of Woodland cemetery, who left behind him an excellent reputation, with the nucleus of a business that is going ahead rapidly. Mrs. Kay is a great help to her hustling husband.

The proprietor of Johnston's, Syracuse, is well pleased with the returns following special advertising during the Easter period and is making an effort to boost business for Mothers' day.

E. Bultmann, P. R. Quinlan & Co., Albert H. Davis and Henry Morris, who are all located downtown, speak favorably of business in Syracuse. Foreman Dyer, of Quinlan's, had a grand stock of pot roses for the holidays.

Carl Beckstedt, Oswego, N. Y., was unfortunate in losing some of his best Easter stock on account of a fire. "It might have been worse," observed our philosophical friend, who received some compensation in insurance and the fact that the expenditure in coal is much less than last season. A fine stock of Geranium Mrs. Lawrence was noted. It was far superior to Beaute Poitevine and sold at sight.

"Overanxiety and the desire to bring in all we could for Easter is the reason for having an oversupply of lilies," commented A. Stoeckle, Watertown, N. Y. "In all our experience we never had finer formosums and the fact that practically every bulb was healthy helped swell the total returns and surpassed our expectations. Withal, the general trade has been good. Prospects for Mothers' day are promising and we are boosting the occasion for all it is worth."

OBITUARY

Augustus H. Goodwin.

Augustus H. Goodwin, vice-president of the W. W. Barnard Co., died suddenly from a stroke of apoplexy, at the Drexel Arms hotel, Chicago, April 16. Mr. Goodwin was born at Waterville, N. Y., July 16, 1843. His early business career was in the cotton business in the east. He entered the seed business about thirty years ago, when he became one of the firm of the Northrup, Braslan & Goodwin Co., Minneapolis, Minn. His next venture was with the Goodwin-Harries Co., of Chicago, of which firm he was president. In 1905 this firm consolidated with the W. W. Barnard Co., and Mr. Goodwin became the vice-president. He retired from active work several years ago, but returned to his duties five years ago, when Mr. Barnard's health forced him to retire. From that time until a week previous to his death, he was on active duty. He was confined to his apartment the last week, as he complained of a bad cold. His death was unexpected, for he was up early and ate heartily and seemed to be feeling well on Saturday, a few hours before he suffered the stroke. There was a brief service held Tuesday, April 19, at the chapel of Boydston Bros. Funeral services and the burial will be at Waterville. He leaves a widow, who was in the east at the time of his death.

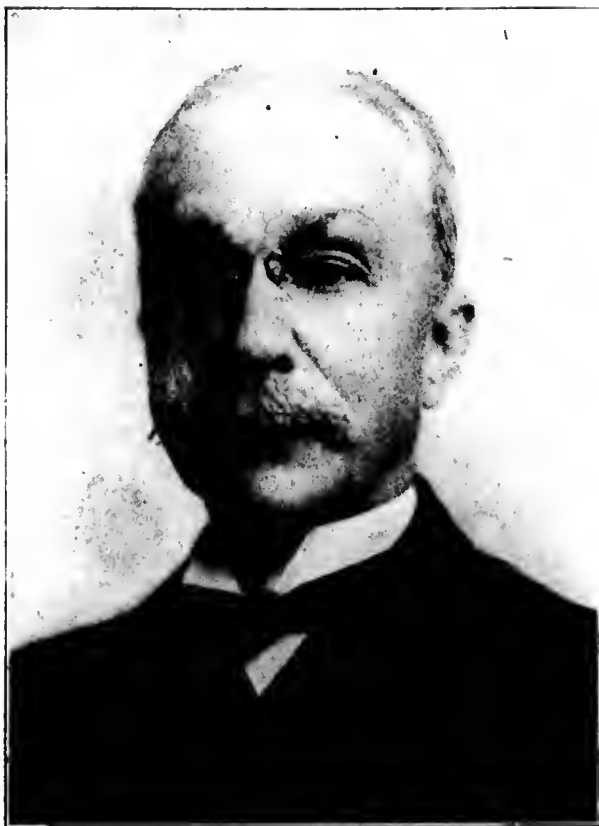

Gustav Hackbarth.

Gustav Hackbarth, who was for years connected with the florists' business in Utica, N. Y., died April 6, at Syracuse, N. Y., where he had lived for the last eighteen years. He was born in Stolp, Pomerania, April 19, 1838, and came to America in 1870. He worked for a short time in the greenhouses of Henry Wagner. For fifteen years he worked in the vegetable garden of the Utica State hospital. For a while he was in charge of the grounds of Judge Doolittle. In 1888 he erected a greenhouse, in which he grew flowers for the market. He moved to Syracuse in 1903. He leaves a widow and two children, Mrs. Amelia Schneider, of Syracuse, and Gustav, Jr., of Liverpool, N. Y.

John S. Stuart.

John S. Stuart, aged 71, died of cancer, Sunday, April 10, at his home, 2025 Jackson street, Anderson, Ind. Funeral services were held Wednesday, April 13, at 3 p. m. at the home, with Rev. L. C. Bentley in charge, and burial was in Maplewood cemetery. Besides his widow, he is survived by one son, Edgar; two sisters, Mrs. E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Mrs. Edward J. Teas, Eaton, O., and three brothers, E. A. Stuart and R. A. Stuart, of Seattle, Wash., and Frank Stuart, of El Paso, Tex.

Mr. Stuart was born in Guilford county, N. C. He lived at Richmond, Ind., about ten years. He had been a resident of Anderson thirty-four years, during which time he had been engaged in the florists' business. He was the senior member of the firm of Stuart & Haugh, later J. S. Stuart & Son. He was a former president of the American Carnation Society, and was a member of the Society of American Florists. He was affiliated with the Knights of Pythias and Maccabees and an active member of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Anderson, Ind.

THE WEST MENTOR WIZARD.

There are not many florists from the famous horticultural center of Ohio that are better known to the trade than Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor. Mr. Hagenburger is a natural born florist, choosing this profession as his vocation when 15 years of age. He worked first for his father, the late Philip Hagenburger, then in charge of the Lake Shore railroad's greenhouses and of all the landscape work from Toledo to Buffalo. The flower beds and ornamental plantings at intermediate stations, as it has been said by many railroad officials, were the most beautiful and artistic in the country. After working at this a few years, Carl Hagenburger became eager to learn growing cut flowers and plants in a general way, having a keen desire of some day possessing a business of his own.

This was in 1893, and he took a position with the Storrs & Harrison Co., working there about a year. He went later to the J. M. Gasser Co., Rocky River, and also worked for William Scott, at Buffalo, N. Y., gathering knowledge and experience to enable him to carry out his ambitions. In 1895 ground was broken at West Mentor and three greenhouses were erected. From that time until now the name of Carl Hagenburger has remained as a pillar in floriculture.

At the beginning his path was not strewn with roses, and it was an uphill fight. Working night and day was not an unusual occurrence for Mr. Hagenburger. At one time he also owned greenhouses at Painesville, O., and Madison, O., which were both paying propositions, but the mental strain of looking after so many places prompted him to dispose of the two mentioned, so that he could give his entire attention to his main establishment at West Mentor. Mr. Hagenburger has 50,000 square feet of glass devoted to growing choice pot plants and ten acres of well enriched soil, which is used for growing outdoor cut flowers and Cleveland cherries. For the latter this place is world-famous.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Executive Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held at Horticultural hall, Boston, April 7. Nearly all the members were present and the guests included ex-Secretary White and Thomas N. Cook.

After the secretary and treasurer's reports had been read the editor reported that the 1921 Rose Annual had been sent out to all 1921 members.

There was a long discussion in regard to increasing the membership and several directors pledged themselves to bring in twenty-five members each before the middle of the summer.

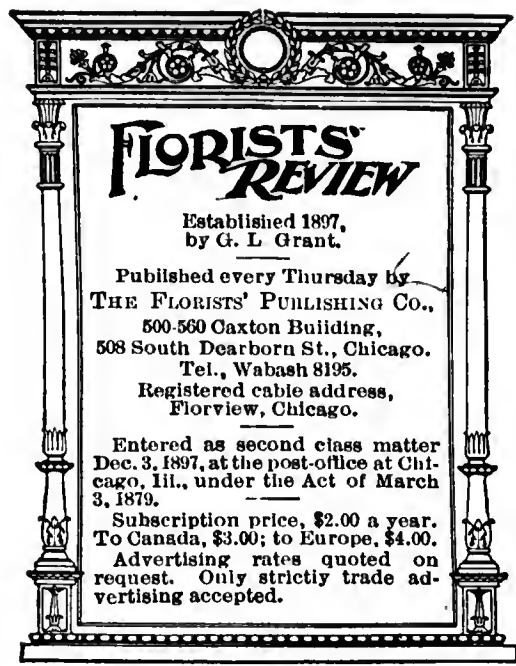

John C. Wister, Sec'y.

COMMERCIAL ROSES.

the market now for about thirty years and today stands by itself. It is noted with great regret that so many of the growers are dropping it or decreasing the space devoted to it. It is still a wonderful rose if well grown. What can you get that will give the effect of a dozen fine, long-stemmed American Beauties? Twenty-five or fifty of any other rose would hardly make as good a showing. Unless it continues to bring a good price, it will not be grown by anyone in a few years, which will be a great pity.

Natchez, Miss.—The store which was formerly conducted by Miss Ruth Davis, and which was taken over by Miss F. D. Dixon at the time of Miss Davis' death, has been purchased by F. D. Bennerseheidt.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE rent of many a retailer will get a good big boost at the end of this month.

It never was more "unfair" to sell flowers on Mothers' day than flags on the Fourth of July.

LEARN to use a few loose flowers in funeral pieces instead of many stuck in stiffly. The appearance will be better and your cost less.

WHEN one can get 1,000 good letter-heads with envelopes to match, printed and delivered for a $10 bill, it is unwise to send out orders or inquiries written on a leaf from a child's school block. Still many florists do it.

THE April bulletin of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society consists of a bibliography on the rose, comprising books on the subject in the libraries of the society and of the Arnold Arboretum, a list that should be useful to florists who wish to delve deep in the lore of this flower.

THE seesaw character of this spring's weather has emphasized the influence of that factor on the flower supply. Few industries besides our own are affected so markedly by the elements. Rose crops have been doubled in a week's time and almost as suddenly and as extensively diminished.

It is considered the "peak of ridiculousness" by Secretary Vick that the January bulletin of the American Dahlia Society should have cost 18 cents per copy in printing costs, though it was only "a little 32-page pamphlet" of 2,500 copies. If by no other way than embarking in the publishing business, those previously unaware of the facts are learning that the margin on which a publication is operated today is a precarious one.

AFTER climbing steadily for years, the price of folding out flower boxes has at last hit the toboggan. While the reductions are considerable, due to a large cut in the cost of box board following general business stagnation, it has not been possible to reduce the prices of boxes in the same proportion board has fallen, as labor still is high. Box board now is lower than before the war, but it is almost sure to rise again when general business picks up.

CLUTTER your store or your window, and see how cheap it looks. Then arrange things as simply and neatly as you can, and note the distinction.

IN the florists' profession there is an unusual abundance of room "at the top." Whether one is growing flowers or selling them, there is always great opportunity to do more and do it better.

THE April issue of the quarterly bulletin of the American Dahlia Society contains, in addition to much other interesting reading regarding that flower, the first installment of a list of all known dahlia varieties, something which will be welcomed by members.

A GOOD many retailers feel that the general business situation calls for the reduction of their expenditures. Economy in management always is commendable, but, unfortunately, in numerous cases the first step in retrenchment is a relaxation of selling effort, which is absolutely the wrong policy.

THE Editor's desk has been decorated for several days with a fine vase of Spanish and Dutch irises grown from bulbs imported under permit for propagation by Brown's Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Cal. The blooms were sent by express without ice and arrived in surprisingly fresh condition considering their long journey.

THE autumn show of the American Dahlia Society will be held September 27 to 30, occupying the whole of the roof garden of the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York. It will be conducted along the lines which made it so successful an event last year. Secretary E. C. Vick, 205 Elwood avenue, Newark, N. J., is making the arrangements.

BENCH rose plants, the stock thrown out for replanting, are selling unexpectedly well. It was at one time thought such large replanting operations as are in progress this season would result in a surplus, but there seems to be no limit to the demand, although it is well within the recollection of many growers when such stock went to the brush heap.

PIPE PRICES GO DOWN.

Following recent reductions in the price of structural steel and some other steel products, the U. S. Steel Corporation, through the Republic Iron & Steel Co. and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., has announced reductions in price of steel pipe averaging $8 a ton. The heavier current demand is for 1-inch to 3-inch material.

THE COAL MARKET.

The present absence of any market at all for soft coal has caused fuel merchants some concern as to conditions in the late summer and the autumn, when proportionately heavy buying is certain to take place. The railroads, poorly equipped to meet the exigencies of last fall, have not improved their equipment for handling heavy shipments next autumn. In the hopes of lower freight rates, most buyers have postponed their purchases and storage bins are emptier than for a long time past. The demands on retail dealers in the localities hit by the cold wave last week showed that householders, too, were without any fuel in their cellars. Should buying not be started soon, there is, coal men believe, strong likelihood of a rush at the eleventh hour that will send prices skyward when the stampede begins. Coal production now has reached a level perilously low, statisticians relate, and the lack of good transportation facilities makes the outlook doubly gloomy.

Florists should give thought to the matter of refilling their storage bins before the rush begins and with it the consequent ascension of prices. The prices at present quoted are surely low enough. There seems little likelihood of lower ones before the coal is needed to heat greenhouses next winter.

MISS JARVIS GIVES US HER DAY.

Ever since florists, at the suggestion of The Review, took hold of Mothers' day and advertised it into a national institution the trade has been hearing regularly from Miss Anna Jarvis, who conceived the idea and attempted to designate the white carnation as the emblem of the day. Miss Jarvis alternately has solicited financial assistance from the trade and threatened to designate some other emblem if florists did not cease "commercializing" her day. Last week she in part carried out the alternative by causing the following item to be circulated in the daily papers:

ABANDON FLOWERS AS MOTHER EMBLEM.
The Mothers' Day International Association in Philadelphia has abandoned the flower as a symbol for this year's Mothers' day on May 8. "These are not times to waste money on flowers," the proclamation reads. It warns against impostors, saying no one is authorized to solicit funds or sell anything for Mothers' day.

Mothers' day now belongs to anyone who can take it—the "proclamation" seems to release florists from all obligation. No other emblem can be designated without encountering the same commercializing to which Miss Jarvis objects when it is done by florists and many lines of business have tried and will try to make money out of the day. But this trade, having had a long start, should be able, by individual and cooperative advertising, to hold the day as its very own.

APPLY IT TO YOUR OWN NEEDS.

There are a great many florists who do not seem to realize that what the other fellow does with profit, they, too, can do. Especially in the eastern states there are scores of florists who let stock hang on their hands for lack of a local market, not realizing that among the readers of The Review there are ready buyers for everything that is offered—sharp eyes are watching the little liners. The result is like this:

About your valuable trade paper, seed orders came in fast, thick and plenty; moreover, they still are coming strong.—J. Dabbertin & Son, Rochester, N. Y., April 9, 1921.

Orders are so heavy we must withdraw our offer of named varieties, thanks to The Review.—J. Sylvester, Oconto, Wis., April 13, 1921.

Orders for the stock advertised last week are coming in fine now.—Perry Gardens, Painesville, O., April 10, 1921.

We congratulate you on the results The Review produces for its advertisers.—Zetitz Florist Products Co., Dayton, O., April 12, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

F. W., Wash.—Mix the chicken manure with soil and use it as a top dressing.

W. S. L., Ill.—It is Berberis Thunbergii, or Japanese barberry, much used as a hedge plant.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

After several days of dark and rainy weather, the market shows considerable improvement through a shortening of the supply. The business of Friday and Saturday, April 15 and 16, was good, with prices firmer and higher in some lines. Roses were in heavy supply and earlier in the week clearances were difficult, even at worthwhile concessions in price, particularly on the long-stemmed grades. Accumulations of all kinds of stock were cleaned up before the week-end, so that the market Monday, April 18, had promise of continued good business. The weather cut down the oversupply of sweet peas, which had become a problem. As several growers have thrown out their plantings, peas are not likely to occasion much anxiety from now on. The weather, too, was having an effect on the oncoming crops.

Roses were in heavy supply despite the dark weather, but the demand for them was active. American Beauty was shorter in supply than other varieties, but quite sufficient to meet a light demand. Hybrid teas were of good quality and moved well. The variety Mme. Butterfly sold freely, rather to the disadvantage of its parent, Ophelia, which at this time is varicolored. Yellow varieties were not particularly abundant.

Carnations were in fair supply and moved well at an advance over the previous week's prices.

White lilies were plentiful, but there was a heavier demand for them and they were moving well. Valley was in lighter supply and met with a moderate demand.

There was a good supply of cattleyas and sales were active. The variety gigas made an appearance, but the bulk of arrivals were Schroederæ and Mossiæ. Spray orchids were not much in demand outside of oncidiums.

In bulbous flowers, there was a shortening in the supply of indoor-grown tulips, but a heavy cut from outside stock was arriving. Narcissus in many varieties was closed out.

Gardenias were in generous supply and moved slowly. Some growers were shipping in amaryllis, but it did not seem to sell and was closed out at any price for window display purposes. Callas were in large supply and moved slowly.

Miscellaneous flowers were abundant in a large variety of offerings. New arrivals were the Blue Lace flower, centaureas in several colors and Pæonia officinalis. Other subjects were yellow daisies of fine quality, delphiniums, irises, lilac, mignonette, stocks, wall-flowers, calendulas, myosotis, pansies, pyrethrums, camellias, snapdragons, nasturtiums, alyssums and gladioli. Violets were about finished for the season.

Various Notes.

A. L. Young put in an anxious time Friday night, April 15, when the 6-story building on Sixth avenue, at the rear of his building, was gutted by fire. His store, however, escaped damage.

A. Warendorff is featuring in his window $5 baskets of cut flowers. He shows some artistic baskets which sell freely, as they look well worth the price asked for them. Several retailers are now pricing the flowers displayed in their windows and they report that their sales are increased by this practice.

The first peonies of the season were displayed in the window of the S. S. Pennock Co. last week. It looks as though peonies will be cut early this season by local growers, as plants of some varieties are already set with buds. There is considerable speculation as to the prospect for a Memorial day supply.

Henry Weston, of Hempstead, L. I., has his large sweet pea house planted to tomatoes, his usual between-seasons crop.

W. H. De Graaff, bulb grower of Leiden, Holland, is a visitor in the city. He expresses himself as greatly disappointed at not being able to time his arrival for the flower show. H. L. Orchard, of St. Louis, Mo., is in the city, introducing his line of wrapping and other papers watermarked with the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. is doing a lively business at its Vesey street establishment as well as at the new quarters on Greenwich street, to which it will shortly remove.

The rose growers of this vicinity seem to be finding a ready sale for quantities of rose plants which are being cleared from their benches to make way for young stock. J. H. P.

A. Schravendeel, of Segers Bros., Ltd., Lisse, Holland, will sail on the Ryndam April 23. He will not be alone, numerous other bulb travelers having booked passage on the same steamer. Most of them have thin order-books this year and are not in the most cheerful mood.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

The market last week showed a marked change over the previous week, roses and sweet peas tightening more than any other flower. The extremely cold and cloudy weather helped to shorten the supply of stock. The change was welcome, because conditions were such that venders on the streets were selling long-stemmed roses and good sweet peas at small prices, opening an old sore between retailer and wholesaler that had been previously forgotten.

Calla lilies are more plentiful now than ever before this season, but at that they move fairly well. Carnations are quite plentiful, but the choice ones move out without much trouble, as is always the case. Snapdragons are now arriving steadily and bring a fair price, but some of the growers seem to be troubled with the pest they thought they were rid of, namely, rust. There seems to be no remedy for that disease here because of the continual changes in weather conditions. Miscellaneous stock moves well, as do greens.

Various Notes.

H. W. Sheppard reports a record week in weddings and luncheon parties, having as many as three large ones in one day. This shop now has one less on the staff, with the going of H. E. Klunder.

The Wm. Murphy Co. has been receiving some excellent Kaiserin roses from J. Walter Gray, of College Hill, and some choice peas from F. A. Schneider, of Price Hill.

C. E. Critchell reports a record week in the sale of southern decorating greens and also a good many orders for hanging baskets.

Julius Baer has been exceedingly busy with funeral work the last week. He reports a number of orders for funeral baskets.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is receiving some excellent marguerites and calendulas from Chas. Windram, of Cold Springs, Ky.

The Ohio district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association held its first meeting in Cincinnati Wednesday, April 13, at the Hotel Gibson. It was voted to organize a branch here, and the following were elected officers: President, R. H. Witterstaetter; secretary, Joseph Imholte. Among those present were Charles, Louis and F. H. Murphy; R. H. Witterstaetter; J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill.; George Bate, of Cleveland, O.; Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O.; Mr. Anderson, of Cleveland, O.; Edward and Alfred Murphy, Chas. Burtchey, Joseph Imholte, Gus Adrian, Samuel Kuhn, H. W. Sheppard, Ray Murphy and Roy Kuhn.

Among visitors last week were Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Joseph Marks, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, and A. H. MacDonald, of the Indianapolis Reed Co.

G. Brunner's Sons, of Price Hill, have sent the first calceolaria and lupinus plants to market. They report quick sales on them because of their size and popular price. G. H. K.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

April 9 it was apparent that the market was about to turn and last week opened with a situation quite different from that which had existed in the week before. There was a steady reduction in supply throughout the week and an equally steady increase in the demand. That the condition was not wholly local was shown by the improvement in the number and size of the shipping orders; the whole country evidently had passed through a fortnight of abnormally heavy supplies and the crops apparently were going off simultaneously throughout the greater part of the United States. The buyers who had needed little from this market for a fortnight began increasing their orders. The improvement has been continuous from April 11 to date. Nothing like a shortage has resulted and the increase in prices has been only moderate so far as selected flowers were concerned, but the improvement in the average price of the day's receipts has been marked.

The present week sees nothing that looks like an oversupply of flowers. While there is no pronounced shortage, crops have gone off so generally, that the supply is unusually small for this season of the year. If the demand were normally brisk it would be difficult to fill all orders, but the fact is that retail trade is dull just now, not only in Chicago but in many other cities which get most of their flowers from this market. The social activities which followed Easter have subsided and the only call for flowers now is for the everyday uses and for funeral work.

While rose crops have gone off, quality has not suffered and there is splendid stock available for all orders. The supply of carnations has decreased as greatly as has that of roses and the market is cleaning up satisfactorily in both these staples. Here and there one sees considerable quantities of tulips from outdoors, but the bulb season is about over and these flowers now cut little figure.

The sweet pea enjoys about the best demand that comes to any flower this week. At Easter many retailers noted a wonderful increase in the call for corsage bouquets and this demand has

The local publicity program is not developing so rapidly as was expected, partly due to a divergence of opinion. A special meeting of the Wholesale Cut Flower Association was held around the luncheon table at the Hotel Randolph April 14, followed by a meeting with the directors of the Allied Florists' Association. It develops that the growers are nearly all willing to contribute a percentage of their sales, but that enough of the best buyers among the retailers either have not come in or have withdrawn from the arrangement so that their attitude delays the perfection of the details for the second year's campaign.

Two opposite views have developed among the wholesalers and are being urged for consideration. One group wants every wholesaler to add a service charge of one per cent on every sales ticket, the proceeds to go to the publicity fund along with the money obtained from growers. To the other, smaller group this looks like too much of a strong-arm method and it proposes that the retailers be let out completely, the expense of the general advertising being carried by growers and wholesalers only. This would leave each retailer free to spend his publicity money in the interest of his individual business, while the "manufacturers" and distributors look after the general good. Of course the idea is that the demand will be stimulated so much that the improved average price in the long run will reimburse the growers.

Another meeting is to be held April 22 to thresh the subject out. The growers will have a meeting the night before.

Various Notes.

The progress being made by the trade as a whole, as well as individual success, is shown by the increasing activities of members of the trade in the financial affairs of the community. Which is preliminary to recording that "valley king," is a director of the Madison & Kedzie State bank, opened son & Kedzie State bank, opened last week. It is the largest new bank opened in Chicago in years and has an investment company adjunct which owns the big and handsome building. The Senate, the newest Lubliner & Trinz theater, is in the bank building and everybody knows Harry Lubliner and Joe Trinz, now picture palace princes, as former florists.

Poehlmann celebrated their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary April 18.

C. L. Sherer made a trip to New Orleans last week, going by one route and returning by another, calling on customers of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. He found nearly all doing excellent business and planning for a big Mothers' day.

Emil Mittendorf, who for ten or twelve years was a grower for the Chicago Carnation Co., Pyfer & Olsem and Nick Reding, fell from a ladder at the New Trier high school last week, breaking both arms.

George Wittbold, manager for Henry Wittbold Co., who for some time has been looking for a suitable downtown location, has found one to his liking at 71 and 75 East Adams street, in the Pullman building, which stands at the corner of Adams street and Michigan avenue. A lease has been made and the new store will be opened as soon as it can be fitted up in first-class style by the fixture department of the A. L. Randall Co.

George Witt, the south side florist, is in the hospital as the result of an accident at State and Monroe streets a few days ago. He was hit by one of the big north side motor busses. An arm and some of the bones in one foot were broken.

purpose except as a temporary relief from the housing shortage, so he also has bought a fine large lot in River Forest and plans to build to his liking as soon as labor conditions are easier.

The death of Augustus H. Goodwin, vice-president of the W. W. Barnard Co., which occurred Saturday, April 16, is reported in the obituary column in this issue.

The biggest wind in the history of Chicago, lasting practically a day and two nights, April 15 and 16, seems to have done little damage in greenhouses. A few lights of glass were broken, but the principal loss thus far reported was in the coal and labor necessary to maintain greenhouse temperatures against a 60-milo cold wind. The retailers lost heavily in patronage; nobody was out to buy. The newspapers made a widely disseminated story of the woman "blown through the window of a Michigan avenue flower shop." The incident occurred at the store of Kreitling & Co., 77 East Van Buren street, where a small pane, not over two feet wide, beside the door, was broken.

Doris Weiland, 3-year-old daughter of John Weiland, Evanston florist, was killed April 19 in front of her home, 1516 Greenwood boulevard, when she was struck by an automobile. Little Doris had gone out on the lawn of the Weiland residence to play. She went into the roadway and the heavy car ran her down. The driver, a negro employed by John C. Shaffer, newspaper publisher, was held by the police.

August F. Pochlmann was reelected, for the 'steenth time, April 19, as president of the village of Morton Grove. On the same day Albert Lies, well known rose grower, was elected a trustee of the village of Niles Center.

C. W. Erne has a new Buick, his second.

William Snyders, representing the supply department of Pochlmann Bros. Co., has started for the Pacific coast with a large line of samples compactly stowed in a big Cole touring car.

P. C. Schupp manages to preserve his good nature and urbanity in spite of two vigorous boils which have decorated his jaw for several days.

H. B. Kennicott is on his way home from Florida, driving his car. He expects to devote a fortnight or more to Max Cohen, who does business as the Jackson Flower Shop, 746 East Sixty-third street, at Easter took twenty-four orders for out-of-town delivery, ranging from $5 to $15. These he sent to florists represented in the Pink Part of The Review. It set him thinking, especially as he received no incoming orders from other florists. Last week he ordered a card in the Pink Part, sent his check for membership in the F. T. D. and prepared to circularize his neighborhood advertising his facilities for delivering flowers in distant places. He believes each order sent out eventually will bring one back for him to deliver.

Bassett & Washburn, who keep careful records of the returns from each house on the place, say Mrs. Russell has not maintained its pace this season and that they, in common with many others, will cut down on it for next season, planting Premier instead. Russell, however, will be relied on for summer and early autumn. The planting of Ophelia will be cut in two.

to attain quite satisfactory volume before the spring has turned to summer.

Visitors.

Among last week's visitors was A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., Los Angeles. He was the guest of W.

J. Smyth during his day in town and saw as much and met as many people as the time would permit.

Miss Helen Patten, the widely known and aggressive Toledo retailer, has been visiting friends here for several days. Her policy is to employ an efficient manager to look after the daily details of the business, so that she may have her time and mind open for other things.

Karl Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn., spent a couple of days here last week. He is a born optimist and sees nothing but rapid expansion ahead of the florists' business.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

The Newport Horticultural Society held its regular meeting Tuesday evening, April 12. There was a large attendance and much enthusiasm was manifested in the discussion of plans in connection with the public school gardens and in connection with the regular flower exhibitions to be held during the coming summer.

The principal business was the appointment of instructors for the inspecting and instructing at the school gardens. The following list was announced: Charles Philpot and James Robertson at the Calvert school; A. J. Doward and Frederick Carter at the Cranston school, and Bonet Bullerton and William MacKay at the Lanthal school.

President Philpot had an extremely fine collection of early pansies in bloom on display. They were of an extraordinarily large size and of handsome colors.

Various Notes.

Patrick F. Reynolds reports a heavy demand for spraying and pruning of trees and shrubs.

A number of the Newport florists and gardeners visited the Boston rose show last week. Among them were John B. Urquhart, Stewart Riehie, John Brown, Andrew Ramsey and John McGowan.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There has been a happy change in the cut flower market. After two extremely bad weeks, a good week followed. The stores are using all the flowers; waste has ceased.

The improvement is chiefly due to a falling off in the supply. Opinions differ as to whether there is or is not more business. There has been no change in prices, just a firmer market with a better, far better, average. Some good judges of the market think that the overproduction of the fortnight from March 28 to April 9 will not be equaled again this season. The week just closed, April 11 to April 16, saw the last of the daffodils and the first outdoor valley from Maryland and cornflower from near by. This cornflower is four weeks earlier than usual. The week also saw a marked decline in the numbers of carnations and of sweet peas, and a less striking decline in the quantity of roses.

Mrs. C. W. Ward and Matchless are the leading carnations of the day, Laddie, of course, excepted. As a rule, the light pink varieties are not so good in warm weather.

Sweet peas from some growers show a broad range of color as well as fine quality.

The market easily takes the respectable quantity of snapdragons now being

During the warm months of the year, quality is essential and careful selection is also very necessary.

With a large supply of flowers at our disposal, we are in a position to give you a grade of stock that will prove satisfactory in every respect.

Now and during the summer months we will have in quantity

RUSSELL ROSES

No other rose has the same good keeping and shipping qualities. If you depend on us for roses you will have good roses every day in the year.

The next best variety is Columbia. We have them in almost any quantity. It is also a very good variety for shipping.

In the other varieties we recommend: Double White Killarney, Hadley, Aaron Ward, Shawyer and Cecile Brunner.

When you need Beauties, we recommend only the two top grades, 30-inch and specials. You are always safe in depending on us for any quantity of BEAUTIES.

Yellow Daisies are at their best at this time of the year. We have a large supply of them every day.

Cattleyas are not as plentiful as they have been. Mossiae is the variety we are getting now. It is one of the Best for Quality and size.

With our immense supply, and confining ourselves strictly to cut flowers and greens, we offer you many advantages you cannot find elsewhere. Try us out.
